THE very latest, yesterday, from Mexico was not pleasant. Mexican mobs in Guadalajara fired shots into the air, indicating annoyance, when stopped in their march against the American consulate. Mexican students "will fight and die with Calles in this battle against the northern Colussus." Uncle Sam is Colossus.

Ninety-nine are killed in Mexican rows.

The Russian lady envoy to Mexico indignantly denies the truth of President Coolidge's statement about Bolsheviki propaganda in Latin-America. She says, "we are innocent."

This country sends the fifth regiment of Marines to concentrate at the Quantico naval base, for "emergency" service. Two more fighting ships are sent to Nicaragua, and La Prensa, powerful Argentine paper, reflects Latin-American public opinion in callin President Coolidge's message "an imperialistic utterance."

Dispatches from Mexico City report business almost paralyzed, a serious crisis threatening the Mexican cabinet, and Mexico. Many say that the fate of President Calles is in the hands of President Coolidge. Others think a conflict between Mexico and the United States inevitable.

It is dangerous to attack religion and oil, the heart and the pocket, at the same time.

NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN CLEMENTS, of Missouri, says, "Nothing short of a political miracle can stop President Coolidge's re-nomination and re-election in 1928." The only question is: Does President Coolidge want the nomination?

As for a miracle defeating President Coolidge you can imagine even miracles that are impossible. No miracle could make a six weeks old calf in five minutes, for if made in five minutes it wouldn't be six weeks old.

THE son of a Methodist bishop demands a divorce because his wife believes in a new, strange, abhorrent theory of "free love."

It is strange, it is abhorrent, but it is not new. Monkeys entertained that theory before there were any men on earth. And lower animals had it before monkeys came. That is part of the animal inheritance out of which men have been slowly climbing, pushed upward by the institution of marriage and the strong will of women.

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers New Map of Europe

Mont Blanc is not the highest peak in Europe. There are seven higher mountains on that continent.

Nor is the Danube the longest river in Europe. Nor the Rhine.

Lemberg was fought over by Russia and Austria, but it is not now in either country. Nor is it called Lemberg.

The geography of Europe as most of us learned it in school has been changed enormously, by war and by newer surveys and better map making.

Hence every home, office, and and school will want the NEW MAP of EUROPE, showing old and new boundaries, old and new spellings, latest data on areas, populations, debts, cities, rivers, mountains, autos, railroads, etc.

As the cold wave gripped Columbiana county last night, two fires—one in East Liverpool and another in Lisbon—occurred, causing a loss estimated at $6,000.

Home of William Fitzjohn, Pleasant Heights, was badly damaged by a blaze at 9:30 o'clock while members of the family were attending a motion picture show. Neighbors summoned the fire department.

The fire appeared to have started around the stairway in the front room of the two-story frame dwelling. The interior was badly damaged, furnishings being a total loss. While firemen had not determined the cause of the fire, it is supposed to have originated from an overheated stove or defective flue.

Sub-Zero on Hilltop.

The Lisbon fire, which occurred about 6:30 o'clock last night, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Iacco in West Water street. Mrs. Iacco was visiting in the home of a neighbor when the fire started.

The Lisbon volunteer firemen responded to the alarm, but the house was doomed before they arrived. The house was a two-story, five-room structure.

The mercury registered close to the zero mark on the hilltop and outskirts of the city early today, although temperatures ranging from 10 to 15 degrees above were reported in the downtown section.

Defense is Winner In Damage Action Over Horse's Kick

A verdict for the defendant was returned by a jury in common pleas court at Lisbon yesterday in the $25,000 damage action brought by Joseph Szekely of Alliance against David Sanor of Moultrie.

Annual reports of Miss Bertha Miller, hospital superintendent, were received.

COURT UPHOLDS TENNESSEE BAN ON TEACHING OF 'APE' THEORY

State Supreme Judges Rule Anti-evolution Act Valid.

FIGHT GOES ON

Fine of $100 Instead of $50 Means Re-trial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 15.—Tennessee's famous anti-evolution law was held constitutional by the state supreme court today, but the conviction of John Thomas Scopes, Dayton school teacher, was ordered reversed because Scopes was fined $100 instead of $50.

The high court remanded the case to the circuit court for retrial on ground that Judge John Raulston violated the Tennessee constitution in fining Scopes more than $50.

Justice Green, who read the decision, recommended that the case be nolle prossed because Scopes had left the state. Justices Cook, Chambliess and Green assented, while Justice McKinney in a dissenting opinion declared the act was invalid.

Overrules Assignment of Error.

The majority opinion overruled all assignments of error made by Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone and other lawyers for Scopes and held that the legislature has the right to determine what should be taught in state tax-supported schools.

In announcing the majority opinion, Justice Green said:

"If teaching is hampered by the anti-evolution act, the misfortune must be charged to the legislature.

"The act, however, requires the teaching of nothing, but forbids the teaching of evolution of man from a lower order of animals."

The decision was read shortly after court convened this morning nearly two years after the passage of the much discussed bill.

Universal Interest Shown.

Only four of the five supreme court judges who heard the review of the case here in May, 1925, were on the bench, the fifth, Judge Frank Hall of Dresden having died last summer. The four justices who made the decision were Chief Justice Grafton Green and associate Justices C. P. McKinney, W L. Cook, and A. W. Chambliss.

The decision marked another step in one of the greatest legal battles of all time, in which such leading figures as William Jennings Bryan, Darrow, Malone and others took a prominent part. The case is now expected to go to the U. S. supreme court.

Universal interest in the law was shown by the crowd that jammed the supreme court room today. University professors mingled with flappers and learned lawyers rubbed elbows with laborers.

"I'm Sorry," Defendant Says.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—"I'm sorry that the court upheld the constitutionality of the anti-evolution law," John Thomas Scopes, young graduate student at the University of Chicago, who started the legal battle over the "monkey" law while a high school teacher, declared here today.

River Dam Employe Drowns.

CHURCHES URGE PRESIDENT TO AVOID BREAK WITH MEXICO

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman Opposes Force in Nicaragua, Too.

HITS WAR TALK

Suggests Settlement of Difficulties by Arbitration.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The American government "would welcome" the mediatory efforts of any Central American republic to settle the political differences between Dr. Juan Sacasa and Adolfo Diaz, rival claimants for the presidency of Nicaragua, which have drawn intervention by the United States marines, Secretary of State Kellogg said today.

Thus far, it was learned, three Central American governments, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Salvador, have proferred their good offices to adjust the Nicaraguan civil war. Of the three, the offer of President Jiminez, of Costa Rica, appears to have the best chances for success, as Dr. Sacasa has been quoted as favorable to it.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Enormous pressure, some of it political, some of it economical, and a great deal of it religious, is being brought to bear upon President Coolidge not to sanction a break in relations with Mexico.

Ever since the Mexican-Nicaraugan situation became delicate, the White House and state department have been in receipt of the normal flow of the country's opinion, pro and con, but since Mr. Coolidge sent his special message to congress there has been literally a bombardment of Washington by mail and telegraph. Hundreds of such communications have come from Protestant church organizations in the last few days.

The general tenor of these protests was pictured today in a lengthy statement made public by the federal council of churches, through Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of New York, president. The Protestant churches of the country, Dr. Cadman said, are opposed to any application of force to settle difficulties in either Mexico or Nicaragua.

GOVERNMENT WARS ON RUM RINGS ON EVE OF EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OF PROHIBITION IN UNITED STATES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the center of a whirlpool of public controversy, political and otherwise, prohibition will celebrate its eighth birthday in the United States tomorrow

Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief, said upon his assumption of office 18 months ago that if he didn't make material progress in "drying up" the country in a year he would resign.

Today the general declined to make any prediction as to the present state of aridity or the future of the dry movement, other than to say that the government had a well organized dry machine and that provided legislation recommended to congress is enacted a long step can be taken in closing sources of bootleg supply.

On the eve of the anniversary government undercover agents were completing the investigation of a dozen large smuggling rings, representing a capitalization of close to $100,000,000.

One ring alone is said to be operating on a payroll of $1,000,000 a month. Profits of the various rings have been enormous.

The rum trust likewise has a heavy overhead a big item of which comes under the head of bribery of public officials. Evidence that literally millions of dollars in bribe money has been offered to officials is in the hands of authorities.

Details of a number of the smuggling rings will be presented to federal grand juries within the next few months, according to officials. Most of the evidence was obtained through the operation of government "speakeasies" in New York and other cities, which have been the butt of a strong attack from congressional wets.

Most of the liquor conspiracies center in New York. A few operating on the gulf and Pacific coasts and around Chicago are under investigation.

Congressional attacks against the government's prohibition policy were characterized at the treasury as an effort to embarrass enforcement. The objective of the congressional attacks was declared to be repeal of the prohibition laws on the grounds that they cannot be enforced.

Andrews indicated that no change in policy is contemplated.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who just submitted a report to congress on the denaturing policy, is now preparing another report on the activity of undercover prohibition agents. Andrews has asked the undercover chief for a full review of his activities and indicated that a voluminous report would be sent to congress.

GOVERNMENT WARS ON RUM RINGS ON EVE OF EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OF PROHIBITION IN UNITED STATES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the center of a whirlpool of public controversy, political and otherwise, prohibition will celebrate its eighth birthday in the United States tomorrow

Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief, said upon his assumption of office 18 months ago that if he didn't make material progress in "drying up" the country in a year he would resign.

Today the general declined to make any prediction as to the present state of aridity or the future of the dry movement, other than to say that the government had a well organized dry machine and that provided legislation recommended to congress is enacted a long step can be taken in closing sources of bootleg supply.

On the eve of the anniversary government undercover agents were completing the investigation of a dozen large smuggling rings, representing a capitalization of close to $100,000,000.

One ring alone is said to be operating on a payroll of $1,000,000 a month. Profits of the various rings have been enormous.

The rum trust likewise has a heavy overhead a big item of which comes under the head of bribery of public officials. Evidence that literally millions of dollars in bribe money has been offered to officials is in the hands of authorities.

Details of a number of the smuggling rings will be presented to federal grand juries within the next few months, according to officials. Most of the evidence was obtained through the operation of government "speakeasies" in New York and other cities, which have been the butt of a strong attack from congressional wets.

Most of the liquor conspiracies center in New York. A few operating on the gulf and Pacific coasts and around Chicago are under investigation.

Congressional attacks against the government's prohibition policy were characterized at the treasury as an effort to embarrass enforcement. The objective of the congressional attacks was declared to be repeal of the prohibition laws on the grounds that they cannot be enforced.

Andrews indicated that no change in policy is contemplated.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who just submitted a report to congress on the denaturing policy, is now preparing another report on the activity of undercover prohibition agents. Andrews has asked the undercover chief for a full review of his activities and indicated that a voluminous report would be sent to congress.

Congress In A Hodge Podge, Speaking Of Party Alignment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Politically the senate has been a hodge podge for a long time. Democrats have voted with Republicans; Republicans with Democrats. Party lines have meant next to nothing.

JOHN Q TILSON

In the house of representatives its been possible to guess with some certainty who was who.

Now the two parties have been shuffled in the lower house, too, until it's impossible to tell 'em apart.

The newspapermen will hold their regular business session Tuesday morning when they will be addressed by Dr. Thomas L. Kibler, Prof. Howard C. Green, George V. Sheridan and T. T. Frankenberg.

Other speakers to be heard during the two day sessions are Congressmen James T. Begg, James Wright Brown, Paul C. Siddall, Walter S. Brain, Don L. Tobin, A. E. McKee, and Roy L. Durstine.

WHAT is a Republican these times, anyway? What's a Democrat?

Well, it seems fair to call Calvin Coolidge a sample Republican. He was elected president as one.

So suppose we assume that a man who supports Coolidge's policies is a Republican; that a man who fights them is a Democrat.

What, then, are you going to say of 76 Republican representatives who cast anti-Coolidge votes the other day? What are you going to say of 58 Democrats who voted on Coolidge's side?

About all you can say is that you're all mixed up.

IT was on the navy bill.

President Coolidge favored a bill authorizing 10 new cruisers. So far, so good. There was no particular kick on that.

But congress can "authorize" cruisers until it's black in the face and it means no new ships unless money's appropriated, too, to build them.

The "big navy" folk said, "Besides this authorization, we want cash, actually to build three boats."

"No," said President Coolidge. "The authorization's enough."

AT this the "big navy" crowd bucked.

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, introduced an amendment to the "authorization" bill. Its purpose was to provide money for a start on those three cruisers.

Bear this in mind:

Tilson is Republican leader in the house of representatives. When a Republican boss like Tilson defies a Republican president it's some sensation.

TILSON'S amendment was beaten. The president won.

But the president ought to have won, if he'd had his party's full support, with everybody else against him, by a margin of 50 odd votes. As a matter of fact, he won by only 2.

He'd have lost but for Democratic help.

Herein lies another sensation. Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, tried to throw his strength to Tilson. If he could have done it Tilson, not the president, would have won. But about a third of the Democrats refused to follow him and saved the Republican president.

THUS the result was:

1. A kick in the slats for the president, for winning by only two votes instead of half a hundred or more and for having such big men in his party as Tilson and Speaker Longworth opposing him.

2. A sock in the eye for Tilson, for being able, as Republican leader, to line up only 76 out of his nominal force of 247 representatives.

3. A poke on the nose for Garrett, for being shown up as a Democrat leader with about as unreliable a following as Tilson's, on the Republican side.

As for party alignments, they're mussed up now for fair.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

Gripping the rope, he began to pull himself up. I watched him breathlessly. Fortunately, the leg held, though when he was still a foot from the top, I felt the rope give. He made a desperate effort and had just succeeded in clutching the stone edge of the parapet when the rope fell back on top of me. Putting his weight on his hands, he scrambled over the edge and dropped out of sight.

A moment later his head reappeared and he whistled softly. Something pattered down beside me, and, feeling for it, I discovered it to be a coil of rope. In an instant I was clambering up the well side and was quickly pulled over the parapet by Claypole as I came to the top.

"Gee, that was a bit of luck," he exclaimed. "I found that rope right beside the parapet."

We found ourselves, two dripping objects, in the courtyard of the house, with not a soul in sight. We crept stealthily along the wall which ran down to the fence separating the court from the vines and soon had the advantage of their friendly cover.

We went down the hill, crouching between the vines, till we were brought up short by a low stone wall, along which I had come in the taxi some hours previously. Here we paused a moment to get our breath, while my companion cautiously lifted his head and reconnoitered. It was not quite dark, and I judged it to be between enight and nine o'clock.

"Don't think I'm acquainted with this broad highway," said Claypole, withdrawing his head and dropping down beside me.

"It's the main road out of Geneva," I answered. "We've only to follow it and we're bound to make the city in the end."

"That may be so," replied Clapole. "But we can't just take an evening promenade down the main trunk road to that delectable city. No Sir, the whole bunch of toughs will be after us in less than it took a bar attendant to hand you out a highball in the good old days before Old Glory went dry. We got to fix 'em somehow."

He was pulling large tufts out of his mustache, which soon came away altogether, and I watched him in amazement.

"I think," he said, noticing my astonishment, "that this face fungus will no longer grace the homely countenance of Cyrus P. Claypole. Better, perhaps, at this moment to face the world as my Maker made me."

It was only when his mustache was completely off that I realized why his appearance had previously puzzled me with its contradictions. The eyes and mouth and chin were now all of one pattern, alert and eager. This was no longer the face of a harassed schoolmaster from the Middle West.

"Well, we can't stay here," I said, reverting to the problem of our escape. "They'll be searching the vines."

Indeed, at this instant a sudden outcry came to our ears from the house that we had just left. I looked round and saw on the top of the hill lanterns beginning to bob and flicker, while voices mingled with the rustling vine leaves, as the wind, which was rapidly falling, stirred them intermittently.

Claypole turned to me abruptly.

"How far's the lake from here, anyway?" he asked.

"It can't be more than a few hundred yards," I replied. "The road runs right along beside it, as I noticed this afternoon."

"Then we'll hit a trail for that sheet of water and look for a boat."

With a quick glance to right and left, he dropped over the wall and I followed him. We ran across the road nad were soon deep in a small spinney. No sooner were we well beneath its welcome cover than I heard sounds of a car. We turned round and dropped flat, our eyes on the road.

A moment later, a big open touring car passed us in the direction of Geneva, headlights full on, and traveling slowly. There were three men in the car, one at the wheel and two on the footboards on either side. The man nearest to me I recognized. It was Baldassare Marce.

"Cry havoc and let slip the dogs of war," whispered my companion, who, I soon found, was fullest of quotations when most excited.

"The sleuths have their noses well to the ground, and it won't take them long to find we're not on the road."

We turned at his suggestion to our right and began moving through the spinney between the lake and the road, in the direction of Lausanne. A few minutes, sharp walk brought us to the edge of the lake, where our farther progress was barred by a stiff wire fence. There were no signs of any boat on the foreshore and we wondered what to do next.

To ou. left, about a quarter of a mile away, several lights were to be perceived, which we took for those of a village.

"We must make that burg somehow," said Claypole. "They'll hardly dare to touch us if there's any one about."

I agreed, and we continued along the fence for about a hundred yards, till we found a place where it was practicible to cross it. We scrambled over, Claypole tearing his trousers in doing so.

"Rend your hearts but not your garments, as the pastor said when he found a trouser button in the collection plate," chanted Claypole, as we stumbled on. "If my old Ma could see my pants, she wouldn't stop talking for a week."

We hurried along, being careful to avoid any open spaces, and, after climbing two hedges, arrived at a little lane down which we turned to the right. We were about half-way along it when we heard sounds of an automobile descending the lane behind us. The lane was very narrow, and in order to let it pass we should have had to draw ourselves close back to the hedge. Claypole, however, had no such intention.

"Get busy, friend," he said. "For we've got to beat it," and he started running at a remarkable pace down the road.

I toiled after him; but it was a hopeless task. The car was gaining on us rapidly, the headlights creeping up along the hedge on either side till I felt them on my back. Then I heard a shout from behind.

At that instant, however, we turned sharp to the left round a corner, and found ourselves suddenly in front of an open-air cafe with tables, at which a number of people were seated, drinking the white wine of the country. The cafe was situated at the end of a stone jetty which ran out into the lake, and over the shore end of the jetty was a placard with the name "Creux de Genthod" printed on it.

For a moment I was bewildered at the unexpected view of the cafe with the customers, so normal and familiar, taking their ease with no though at all for the desperate events in which we so strangely figured, and I stood still, mentally at a loss and physically dazed by the lights and sounds of the place.

It was then that I felt Claypole's hand on my arm.

"Quick," he said. "The steamboat."

He gripped me by the wrist and pointed as he ran. I looked ahead and saw at the end of the jetty the lights of a small lake paddle steamer. Her nose was toward Geneva, and she was just casting off. Sounds of music came from her upper deck, and she looked an altogether admirable refuge, suggesting tourists and Thomas Cook, and all that was most gregarious and commonplace.

CERAMIC BOOKS 'GREAT GATSBY'

Lois Wilson and Warner Baxter Head Cast.

"If the Jazz Age has done nothing else, it's made mothers popular," according to Lois Wilson, featured along with Warner Baxter, Neil Hamilton and Georgia Hale in Herbert Brenon's new Paramount production, "The Great Gatsby," which is at the Ceramic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

"Only a few years ago," says Miss Wilson, "no young actress would play a mother role. It was a sure sign that she was definitely out of the ingenue class. The lady was automatically relegated to that slightly innocuous, care-worn decrepitude of haus-frau. Night clubs, the Charleston and Prohibition cocktails were taboo. Her hair was gray—and small wonder. The parts written for her were likewise drab and dull. Even though a mother in real life, that fact had to be guarded like some terrible secret.

"Now all is different. Playing the part of a young mother is merely a tribute to one's versatility. The jazz mama, similar to Daisy Buchanan which I play in 'The Great Gatsby,' is often more attractive than her daughter. I can name several examples of screen players who have recently been cast in mother roles: Aileen Pringle, Alice Joyce, Florence Vidor, Esther Ralston, and numerous others. They are all young and beautiful and will be playing flappers or ingenues tomorrow. So much for the much-decried Jazz Age. Its destructive energies have broken down the line between age and youth, with results that are by no means confined to the mimic world of stage and screen."

Findlay, Ohio.—"My kidneys were all out of fix and giving me all kinds of trouble and my back hurt so I could hardly straighten up. I was in misery all the time. CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

Gripping the rope, he began to pull himself up. I watched him breathlessly. Fortunately, the leg held, though when he was still a foot from the top, I felt the rope give. He made a desperate effort and had just succeeded in clutching the stone edge of the parapet when the rope fell back on top of me. Putting his weight on his hands, he scrambled over the edge and dropped out of sight.

A moment later his head reappeared and he whistled softly. Something pattered down beside me, and, feeling for it, I discovered it to be a coil of rope. In an instant I was clambering up the well side and was quickly pulled over the parapet by Claypole as I came to the top.

"Gee, that was a bit of luck," he exclaimed. "I found that rope right beside the parapet."

We found ourselves, two dripping objects, in the courtyard of the house, with not a soul in sight. We crept stealthily along the wall which ran down to the fence seuparating the court from the vines and soon had the advantage of their friendly cover.

Motor Courtesy Prizes

A motor courtesy week, with prizes offered to the most courteous drivers and other prizes offered to the persons who report the courtesies of the courteous, has been inaugurated in Cleveland with its automobile show. Among the acts listed as "courtesies" are stopping to let children cross the street; driving carefully through crowded areas; keeping in the proper traffic lanes and giving more swiftly moving vehicles the right of way; driving quietly by hospitals; parking properly and "behaving on the street as one would in his drawing room before guests."

Well, it is a fine thing to emphasize courtesy in driving. It is perhaps a safe guess, however, that the judges in this particular contest are going to be overwhelmed with names of candidates for the prizes, if all courteous drivers are reported.

It is probably true in every community that there are more courteous drivers than the other kind. A very few discourteous drivers can make a great deal of trouble for everybody else and can do considerable mischief on highways. If the latter type predominated, however, driving would come to an early end, because there would be worse accidents, more smash-ups and impossible jamming everywhere.

The Farmer's Day

It isn't right, according to the Saskatchewan Farmer, that farmers should have to stick so rigidly to their eight-hour day—"eight hours before dinner and eight hours after."

"Why should not the farmer," it asks, "take full advantage of the new freedom given by new and improved agricultural machinery, and shorten his hours of work so that he may be able to enjoy life as he goes along, instead of wearing himself out, so that when he finally breaks down with rheumatism, spavined knee, heaves and his digestion pretty well gone from too hastily gobbled meals which he did not have time to digest, he may creep to town to linger on a few years as a retired farmer."

All right, why not? Henry Ford has the same hunch, and shows the way.

Ford's plan seems to be that the farmer should do all his farm work in about four hours in the morning, with the aid of tractors and accessories, then eat a leisurely meal—not a "dinner" but a light lunch—and spend four hours in the afternoon working in a Ford factory set up at the nearest waterfall or a Ford assembling plant in the nearest village. From which eight hours' labor the farmer would derive such emolument that he would be in the market every few months for another Ford car or truck or tractor.

It's a beautiful and luring ideal. Yet somehow, as you think it over, a suspicion may arise that agriculture isn't quite so simple as that.

Clearing House For Road Facts

A Highway Engineering and Research Council is being organized in Ohio for the purpose of gathering and studying the latest, most economical and efficient road practices. It is to act as a clearing house for information about the construction and testing of good roads. Ohio is pioneering in this effort to make the experience and wisdom of any part of the state available to all the rest of the state.

The council will be headed by an authority on foundations and soils. Its personnel will include a city manager, a service director, a former state highway director, members of legislative highway commissions, a park board director, professors and laboratory men, engineers, contractors and road material men. All shades of opinion will be represented as well as all types of road-building experience.

If the new council does its work well and its findings are promptly used to the best advantage by state and local communities in building and maintaining roads, Ohio should experience a great advance in the quality of its highways. Better roads at most economical costs are worth working for.

Cars And Cars And Cars

This automobilious country, already saturated with motor cars, gained 10 per cent last year, bringing the present registration up to about 22,300,000. This means one car for every five people. According to the usual reckoning, it means an average of one car per family.

By all the prophecies of previous years, it should mean supersaturation. Yet the manufacturers keep right on producing new cars at the rate of several a minute, and the public keeps right on absorbing them. Two and a half millions a year are needed now merely for replacements, as the old wrecks fall by the wayside. And probably a couple of millions more can be sold this year, to people whose consciences are already weakened as they figure out the installment possibilities.

A new idea is rapidly taking possession of the American family mind. Having got used to one car, the family needs two cars. Anybody can see what this is going to lead to.

"Automotive industry" is right. That industry is self-moving, and can't be stopped.

Business, after a slight holiday lull, is speeding up again. But it can't fool the professional pessimists.

A MATTER OF PHYSICS.

In the old wicked days when there were saloons on the corners, there was in Chicago a corner saloon-keeper who sold his whiskey, at the standard price of ten cents a throw, but was proud of the excellence of his wares and hated a customer who poured too freely.

A stranger walked in one day and by way of beginning flattered the proprietor so palpably on the worthiness of his stock that the latter became suspicious. The customer then laid down his dime and asked for whiskey and bitters. He was given the bottle and a glass and while the proprietor turned to get the bitters the caller performed a scientific job by filling the glass brimful without spilling a drop or overflowing.

The saloon-man surveyed the handiwork calmly and then stuck a plump middle finger into it.

"What are you doing?" demanded the patron sharply.

"Making a hole for the bitters to go in," said the saloonist.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANLEGES, Cal., Jan. 15.—Last night we dined with Tom Mix. Nothing has struck me as so symbolic of movie romance as the view of his lighted palace on the hill from the spiral approach to his estate. Fifteen years ago he was an obscure $20 a month cow puncher.

Now he receives a $15,000 salary check every Saturday night. Mix is indeed a strange mixture. He clings to the virginal argot of the corral, mixing an occasional metaphor and splitting a quondam infinitive—I suspect he does it purposely.

Yet underneath one detects a shrewdness and challenging artistry convincing enough that he is equipped for the movies with something infinitely greater than a horse. His high ceiled, blue domed drawing room is a phantasmagoria of incongruity still oddly artistic.

On the walls are gleaming pistols in fan shaped sprays, racks of quick functioning guns, mounted saddles —one owned by Madero, another by Brigham Young — bison and deer heads and polished long horns. In one corner his desk piled high with fan mail and the swankily racked telephone of perfidious old Albion.

Also a brace owl eyed English butlers in ramrod dignity. Mrs. Mix is a cultured English lady, and the chief interest of each is centered on their precocious little dauhter Tommy. There is a tennis court and a hidden swimming pool, which may be emptied almost immediately by pressing a button at Mix's bedside.

This in case roystering Hollywoodites decide upon a midnight bathing party without formality of invitation. In the center of the dining room table is a fountain rising and falling and shot with hidden, colored lights. The delicate lace tablecloth was so fragile I determined that if a spark from my cigarette despoiled one thread I would repair to the drawing room and pistol myself behind a large and translucent ear.

At the entrance hall departing, I playfully slipped on his cream colored, four dimpled hat. He disappeared and presented me with one. He buys them by the crate.

Movie stars have almost given up golf and substituted tennis therefor on private, secluded courts. They were so assailed on the links by brash salesmen attempting to sell them real estate, stocks, bonds, automobiles and such that the game was shorn entirely of its relaxing quality.

Los Angeles should broadcast the marvel of Magnetic Hill. It comes very nearly being the eighth wonder. The hill is a natural optical illusion. To all appearances a motor car with dead engine will run up hill and it requires top speed to make the car mount what seems to be down hill. Only by pouring a bucket of water do you realize the apparent up grade is down. Topography of the surrounding country is responsible for the illusion.

The biggest literary colony, next to New York, is here. This does not include the army of movie writers. Scores of scribblers have found they can market their wares from here as well as back east. The latest newcomer is Don Herold who has moved his family to Altadena.

It is not easy to leave this sunshine and warmth in the dead of winter. The tourist finds he wants to linger awhile.

But this tourist must be on his way and in a few days will welcome that familiar cry: "Manhattan Transfer—next stop Grand Central."

And to visit Hollywood and only mention Chaplin, Doug and Mary in a fleeting last paragraph such as this is, I submit, an achievement.

Increasing Use of Cotton.

WASHINGTON, D. D., Jan. 15.—In their efforts to relieve in a measure the situation created by the over-production of cotton with a resultant demoralization of cotton prices, manufacturers have been endeavoring in every way possible to create a wider demand for cotton fabrics. To this end they are giving especial attention to the problem of making cotton fabrics more attractive.

They want American women to use cotton as extensively as they have come to use silk, and their selling experience has convinced them, they say, that they can not expect to do this until they have produced cotton fabrics that will arrest the feminine eye and gratify the feminine desire for goods that is soft and clinging and that conveys to the wearer a feeling of luxury and comfort. In short, it has been made evident that the American woman will wear silk until she finds something that she likes better.

One of the notable accomplishments in this direction is the comparatively recent development of celanese, a fabric that looks like silk, feels like silk, and, it is claimed, wears like silk, along with possessing some desirable qualities that silk does not possess. Among the last is its price. In its various uses, milady can be clothed entirely in celanese from the cloche that crowns her head to the toes of her hose.

Selanese has been confused with rayon by many buyers, and even by some mill men and converters, but it is not a rayon. As one authority on cotton and its products explains, all the well known varieties of rayon consist, fundamentally, of cellulose—cotton linters or wood pulp—which has been converted into a cellulose thread by dissolving it in some solvent, squirting the solution through a fine hole, and regenerating, the original cellulose changed only in physical appearance.

Cellulose Also Used for Celanese.

The manufacture of celanese yarn also starts with cellulose, but instead of proceeding immediately with its solution and regeneration, the cellulose is put through a lengthy chemical process which changes its nature entirely and converts it into an entirely different chemical substance, cellulose acetate. It is this substance which is ultimately transformed into the new yarn which differs fundamentally in chemical composition from any of the varieties of rayon, making its properties as a textile yarn wholly dissimilar from those of rayon.

For instance, celanese is not dyed with the dyes used for rayon or cotton, because by reason of its different chemical composition it has no affinity for those dyes. Special dyes therefore had to be developed, and these colors dyes celanese and will not dye cotton or rayon.

The chemical nature of celanese also gives to the yarn a very high resistance to water and acid, it is claimed. A test of the effect of sea water on all the know textile fibres proved that while every other fibre was completely disintegrated at various periods up to one month's immersion, the celanese fibre after six months' immersion had no marine growths on it, nor had it suffered an appreciable loss in strenth. This quality, it is believed, opens up to celanese a big field in the lingeries and other trades the products of which must be subjected to repeated washings, and its resistance to acid enables perspiration-proof fabrics to be made from the yar.

Another physical property induced by its chemical composition is the high elasticity of the yarn, which gives to fabrics woven from it the soft, silk-like feel impossible to obtain with any other fibre except natural silk and likewise gives celanese fabrics a length of life equal to those made from natural silk, although the actual tensile strength of natural silk is considerably higher than that of celanese.

The new fabric has the deep soft lustre of real silk, and in handling celanese the dyer has complete control of lustre. If he wants a highly brilliant surface he can have it, if he desires a soft lustre he can get that finish, and if he wants an absolutely dead flat finish like cotton but with the feel of silk a simple process will obtain that.

Still another selling talk that is used for celanese is that it possesses an extremely high insulating power. Thus it is claimed that the some garments made of the fabric will keep the body of the wearer warm in winter, when the body temperature is higher that the outside, and similarly keep the body cool in summer when the outside temperature is the higher.

How It Helps Cotton.

The new yarn helps cotton, obviously, because it increases consumption since it is made from cellulose which in turn is made from cotton linters. Then, too, the yarn is used in connection with cotton in weaving a combination fabric. From a mechanical point of view, it is claimed, celanese yarn is ideal for use in a cotton loom, and properly handled, weaves as easily and more perfectly than cotton Mill men like its uniformity, for any imperfections discovered in goods woven part or in whole of celanese can be traced directly to the mechanical imperfections in the loom or errors in weaving adjustment.

For use with cotton one of the first things about the new yarn that appeals to the manufacturer is the advantage that can be taken of its individual dyeing properties. Celanese yarn cross-dyes with cotton in the same bath. A cotton-celanese mixture lends itself to an infinite number of color combinations, and these combinations can be had without the necessity of using the dyed yarn.

Also it is said that the manufacturer can weave or knit his cotton-celanese mixture and then hold it in his warehouse to be dyed to order, solid or any contrasting shades desired by his customers. Thus the mill need never be caught with thousands of yards of goods or hundreds

A motor courtesy week, with prizes offered to the most courteous drivers and other prizes offered to the persons who report the courtesies of the courteous, has been inaugurated in Cleveland with its automobile show. Among the acts listed as "courtesies" are stopping to let children cross the street; driving carefully through crowded areas; keeping in the proper traffic lanes and giving more swiftly moving vehicles the right of way; driving quietly by hospitals; parking properly and "behaving on the street as one would in his drawing room before guests."

Well, it is a fine thing to emphasize courtesy in driving. It is perhaps a safe guess, however, that the judges in this particular contest are going to be overwhelmed with names of candidates for the prizes, if all courteous drivers are reported.

It is probably true in every community that there are more courteous drivers than the other kind. A very few discourteous drivers can make a great deal of trouble for everybody else and can do considerable mischief on highways. If the latter type predominated, however, driving would come to an early end, because there would be worse accidents, more smash-ups and impossible jamming everywhere.

The Farmer's Day

It isn't right, according to the Saskatchewan Farmer, that farmers should have to stick so rigidly to their eight-hour day—"eight hours before dinner and eight hours after."

"Why should not the farmer," it asks, "take full advantage of the new freedom given by new and improved agricultural machinery, and shorten his hours of work so that he may be able to enjoy life as he goes along, instead of wearing himself out, so that when he finally breaks down with rheumatism, spavined knee, heaves and his digestion pretty well gone from too hastily gobbled meals which he did not have time to digest, he may creep to town to linger on a few years as a retired farmer."

All right, why not? Henry Ford has the same hunch, and shows the way.

Ford's plan seems to be that the farmer should do all his farm work in about four hours in the morning, with the aid of tractors and accessories, then eat a leisurely meal—not a "dinner" but a light lunch—and spend four hours in the afternoon working in a Ford factory set up at the nearest waterfall or a Ford assembling plant in the nearest village. From which eight hours' labor the farmer would derive such emolument that he would be in the market every few months for another Ford car or truck or tractor.

It's a beautiful and luring ideal. Yet somehow, as you think it over, a suspicion may arise that agriculture isn't quite so simple as that.

Clearing House For Road Facts

A Highway Engineering and Research Council is being organized in Ohio for the purpose of gathering and studying the latest, most economical and efficient road practices. It is to act as a clearing house for information about the construction and testing of good roads. Ohio is pioneering in this effort to make the experience and wisdom of any part of the state available to all the rest of the state.

The council will be headed by an authority on foundations and soils. Its personnel will include a city manager, a service director, a former state highway director, members of legislative highway commissions, a park board director, professors and laboratory men, engineers, contractors and road material men. All shades of opinion will be represented as well as all types of road-building experience.

If the new council does its work well and its findings are promptly used to the best advantage by state and local communities in building and maintaining roads, Ohio should experience a great advance in the quality of its highways. Better roads at most economical costs are worth working for.

Cars And Cars And Cars

This automobilious country, already saturated with motor cars, gained 10 per cent last year, bringing the present registration up to about 22,300,000. This means one car for every five people. According to the usual reckoning, it means an average of one car per family.

By all the prophecies of previous years, it should mean supersaturation. Yet the manufacturers keep right on producing new cars at the rate of several a minute, and the public keeps right on absorbing them. Two and a half millions a year are needed now merely for replacements, as the old wrecks fall by the wayside. And probably a couple of millions more can be sold this year, to people whose consciences are already weakened as they figure out the installment possibilities.

A new idea is rapidly taking possession of the American family mind. Having got used to one car, the family needs two cars. Anybody can see what this is going to lead to.

"Automotive industry" is right. That industry is self-moving, and can't be stopped.

Business, after a slight holiday lull, is speeding up again. But it can't fool the professional pessimists.

A MATTER OF PHYSICS.

In the old wicked days when there were saloons on the corners, there was in Chicago a corner saloon-keeper who sold his whiskey, at the standard price of ten cents a throw, but was proud of the excellence of his wares and hated a customer who poured too freely.

A stranger walked in one day and by way of beginning flattered the proprietor so palpably on the worthiness of his stock that the latter became suspicious. The customer then laid down his dime and asked for whiskey and bitters. He was given the bottle and a glass and while the proprietor turned to get the bitters the caller performed a scientific job by filling the glass brimful without spilling a drop or overflowing.

The saloon-man surveyed the handiwork calmly and then stuck a plump middle finger into it.

"What are you doing?" demanded the patron sharply.

"Making a hole for the bitters to go in," said the saloonist.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANLEGES, Cal., Jan. 15.—Last night we dined with Tom Mix. Nothing has struck me as so symbolic of movie romance as the view of his lighted palace on the hill from the spiral approach to his estate. Fifteen years ago he was an obscure $20 a month cow puncher.

Now he receives a $15,000 salary check every Saturday night. Mix is indeed a strange mixture. He clings to the virginal argot of the corral, mixing an occasional metaphor and splitting a quondam infinitive—I suspect he does it purposely.

Yet underneath one detects a shrewdness and challenging artistry convincing enough that he is equipped for the movies with something infinitely greater than a horse. His high ceiled, blue domed drawing room is a phantasmagoria of incongruity still oddly artistic.

On the walls are gleaming pistols in fan shaped sprays, racks of quick functioning guns, mounted saddles—one owned by Madero, another by Brigham Young — bison and deer heads and polished long horns. In one corner his desk piled high with fan mail and the swankily racked telephone of perfidious old Albion.

Also a brace owl eyed English butlers in ramrod dignity. Mrs. Mix is a cultured English lady, and the chief interest of each is centered on their precocious little dauhter Tommy. There is a tennis court and a hidden swimming pool, which may be emptied almost immediately by pressing a button at Mix's bedside.

This in case roystering Hollywoodites decide upon a midnight bathing party without formality of invitation. In the center of the dining room table is a fountain rising and falling and shot with hidden, colored lights. The delicate lace tablecloth was so fragile I determined that if a spark from my cigarette despoiled one thread I would repair to the drawing room and pistol myself behind a large and translucent ear.

At the entrance hall departing, I playfully slipped on his cream colored, four dimpled hat. He disappeared and presented me with one. He buys them by the crate.

Movie stars have almost given up golf and substituted tennis therefor on private, secluded courts. They were so assailed on the links by brash salesmen attempting to sell them real estate, stocks, bonds, automobiles and such that the game was shorn entirely of its relaxing quality.

Los Angeles should broadcast the marvel of Magnetic Hill. It comes very nearly being the eighth wonder. The hill is a natural optical illusion. To all appearances a motor car with dead engine will run up hill and it requires top speed to make the car mount what seems to be down hill. Only by pouring a bucket of water do you realize the apparent up grade is down. Topography of the surrounding country is responsible for the illusion.

The biggest literary colony, next to New York, is here. This does not include the army of movie writers. Scores of scribblers have found they can market their wares from here as well as back east. The latest newcomer is Don Herold who has moved his family to Altadena.

It is not easy to leave this sunshine and warmth in the dead of winter. The tourist finds he wants to linger awhile.

But this tourist must be on his way and in a few days will welcome that familiar cry: "Manhattan Transfer—next stop Grand Central."

And to visit Hollywood and only mention Chaplin, Doug and Mary in a fleeting last paragraph such as this is, I submit, an achievement.

Austin Wylie's Orchestra Appears In Canton Tuesday

Austin Wylie and his orchestra will play at Moonlight Ballroom, Canton, Tuesday evening, Jan. 18.

Wylie is the dean of Cleveland dance orchestra leaders. He has played in Cleveland for dancing longer than any one else here. He has established a record for continuous playing at one place.

On the twentieth of next month Wylie begins his fifth year at the Golden Pheasant restaurant.

He took up study of the violin when about seven years old and like most boys didn't like to practice. He had no idea of making it a profession, for he went to business school and then took a position in a railroad office.

One day he was asked to fill in on a dance engagement which put the germ of the idea into his head. He was an excellent violinist an had the natural directorial ability so he was put at the head orchestras playing at Anderson's old dancing academy about 10 or 12 years ago.

When war was declared Wylie visited Europe with the famous 135th division. He and Ev Jones, who has since become famous for his novelty radio programs, formed a jazz band in the army and spent thirteen weeks entertaining the boys "over there," after the armistice was signed.

Returning to Cleveland, he teamed up with Elmer Wahl, banjoist, forming the popular Wylie-Wahl orchestra which has played successfully at the Crystal Slipper for two seasons.

GIFFORD PINCHOT, RETIRING FROM GOVERNORSHIP OF PENNSYLVANIA, DESCENDS ON WASHINGTON

(Gifford Pinchot, retiring governor of Pennsylvania, militant, a Roosevelt progressive and constantly in the public eye, has created some wonderment in Washington by his decision to go to the national capital in the interest of old Rooseveltian policies. To learn first hand what Pinchot expects to accomplish, the Review-Tribune sent its New York correspondent, Alexander C. Herman, to Harrisburg, and the interview, the first given by the retiring governor on his future plans, is printed below. It is exclusive.)

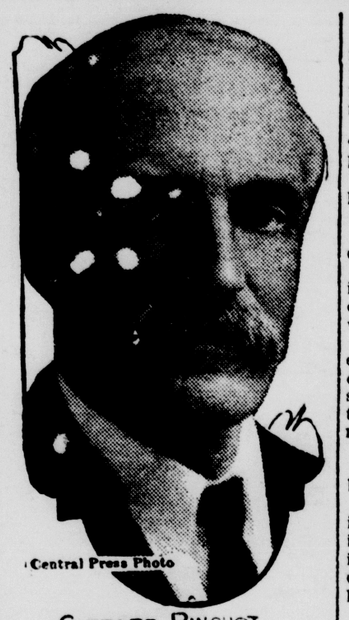

By Alexander C. Herman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Gifford Pinchot, retiring from the governorship of Pennsylvania, moves on to Washington—and far sighted political wise-acres there are furrowing deeply their brows.

It soon will be open season for presidential booms and bombs. There is no telling who may spring one, or throw the other.

That is why the presence at the capital of this outspoken critic of bad government, who revolutionized the administration of a corrupt, boss-ridden state in just one term of office, begins to loom into national importance.

Pinchot, naturally, dismisses such interpretation with modest gesture.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

"I am just going back," he says, "to my first love—that of conservation."

Broader Field Now.

But that term, which he and Roosefelt originated to cover the preservation of forests and later, of all natural resources, now is applied to other fields, too.

"It includes," the governor admits, "child welfare, public health—and the like."

"Good government, too?" I asked him.

Snap came the reply:

"One cannot conserve that which does not exist."

And therein lies the key to concern in certain political quarters. For Pinchot is relentless in his attack on what he deems wrong.

In his own state he assailed the government machinery "administered chiefly for the service of political insiders, while the people got little more than the crumbs which fell from the rich men's tables."

Outspoken on Prohibition.

In the Coolidge government, he lambasts the prohibition attitude.

"The federal service for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, with its entire control over the sources of illegal drink, has broken down not only disgracefully, but dishonestly," he says.

"Prohibition can be enforced.

"If the federal government had any intention to enforce this law, this country would be completely dry."

He minces no words about political ring corruptness, developed "as a part of the business of certain great moneyed interests.'"

"There is today," says Pinchot "no question more vividly before the people of the United States than election frauds. I speak from practical experience. My own administration would never have come into office except for an error of judgment on the part of the Philadelphia gang as to how many votes they had to steal."

Another Concise Opinion.

In the senatorial election he refused to support Vare, his party's candidate.

It is this conciseness of expression, and fearlessness, that is making party leaders quake a bit. For Pinchot has never forgotten his allegiance to the Progressivism of Roosevelt.

"The general let-down of moral standards is not limited only to our politics," he says. "It is evidenced in all phases of our national life. What we need is a return to the simple virtues and direct point of view of Roosevelt—a Renaissance of the Ten Commandments.

"Progress in the right direction is being made. People are willing to talk things over. There is a realization that the control of special interests is not the best in the world.

"But the shifting is slow, from that point of view so well expressed by Bill White: 'Nobody cares what happens to anybody except to an investment broker.'"

A knock at the door interrupted the interview. The game commission was making its last call. Felicitations. . . . And a warm good-bye.

The governor returned beaming.

"After all, I am sorry to have to give a this up. It has been four years of fun."

Silence. Then a broader smile.

What He'll Do.

That's what he likes best to do—and that is what he will do just as soon as he can get away from Washington. There, officially, he will devote himself to a study of the Muscle Shoals project (Pinchot was one of the first to fight Henry Ford's offer), the Boulder Dam agitation, the development of giant power, and the grazing in the national forests.

Then, he'll run up to Milford, Pa., where he has a fine home, good streams and a 2 3-8-ounce rod that lands 'most everything.

If needs be, he could bring this rod down to Washington. But Pinchot still is undecided whether there is any good casting after further office or nomination.

One day he was asked to fill in on a dance engagement which put the germ of the idea into his head. He was an excellent violinist an had the natural directorial ability so he was put at the head orchestras playing at Anderson's old dancing academy about 10 or 12 years ago.

GIFFORD PINCHOT, RETIRING FROM GOVERNORSHIP OF PENNSYLVANIA, DESCENDS ON WASHINGTON

(Gifford Pinchot, retiring governor of Pennsylvania, militant, a Roosevelt progressive and constantly in the public eye, has created some wonderment in Washington by his decision to go to the national capital in the interest of old Rooseveltian policies. To learn first hand what Pinchot expects to accomplish, the Review-Tribune sent its New York correspondent, Alexander C. Herman, to Harrisburg, and the interview, the first given by the retiring governor on his future plans, is printed below. It is exclusive.)

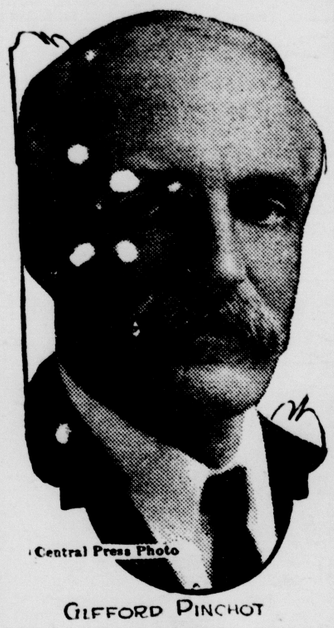

By Alexander C. Herman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Gifford Pinchot, retiring from the governorship of Pennsylvania, moves on to Washington—and far sighted political wise-acres there are furrowing deeply their brows.

It soon will be open season for presidential booms and bombs. There is no telling who may spring one, or throw the other.

That is why the presence at the capital of this outspoken critic of bad government, who revolutionized the administration of a corrupt, boss-ridden state in just one term of office, begins to loom into national importance.

Pinchot, naturally, dismisses such interpretation with modest gesture.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

"I am just going back," he says, "to my first love—that of conservation."

Broader Field Now.

But that term, which he and Roosefelt originated to cover the preservation of forests and later, of all natural resources, now is applied to other fields, too.

"It includes," the governor admits, "child welfare, public health—and the like."

"Good government, too?" I asked him.

Snap came the reply:

"One cannot conserve that which does not exist."

And therein lies the key to concern in certain political quarters. For Pinchot is relentless in his attack on what he deems wrong.

In his own state he assailed the government machinery "administered chiefly for the service of political insiders, while the people got little more than the crumbs which fell from the rich men's tables."

Outspoken on Prohibition.

In the Coolidge government, he lambasts the prohibition attitude.

"The federal service for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, with its entire control over the sources of illegal drink, has broken down not only disgracefully, but dishonestly," he says.

"Prohibition can be enforced.

"If the federal government had any intention to enforce this law, this country would be completely dry."

He minces no words about political ring corruptness, developed "as a part of the business of certain great moneyed interests.'"

"There is today," says Pinchot "no question more vividly before the people of the United States than election frauds. I speak from practical experience. My own administration would never have come into office except for an error of judgment on the part of the Philadelphia gang as to how many votes they had to steal."

Another Concise Opinion.

In the senatorial election he refused to support Vare, his party's candidate.

It is this conciseness of expression, and fearlessness, that is making party leaders quake a bit. For Pinchot has never forgotten his allegiance to the Progressivism of Roosevelt.

"The general let-down of moral standards is not limited only to our politics," he says. "It is evidenced in all phases of our national life. What we need is a return to the simple virtues and direct point of view of Roosevelt—a Renaissance of the Ten Commandments.

"Progress in the right direction is being made. People are willing to talk things over. There is a realization that the control of special interests is not the best in the world.

"But the shifting is slow, from that point of view so well expressed by Bill White: 'Nobody cares what happens to anybody except to an investment broker.'"

A knock at the door interrupted the interview. The game commission was making its last call. Felicitations. . . . And a warm good-bye.

The governor returned beaming.

"After all, I am sorry to have to give a ' this up. It has been four years of fun."

Silence. Then a broader smile.

What He'll Do.

That's what he likes best to do—and that is what he will do just as soon as he can get away from Washington. There, officially, he will devote himself to a study of the Muscle Shoals project (Pinchot was one of the first to fight Henry Ford's offer), the Boulder Dam agitation, the development of giant power, and the grazing in the national forests.

Then, he'll run up to Milford, Pa., where he has a fine home, good streams and a 2 3-8-ounce rod that lands 'most everything.

If needs be, he could bring this rod down to Washington. But Pinchot still is undecided whether there is any good casting after further office or nomination.

MEXICAN LAND LAWS ARE CLARIFIED BY WRITER

CALLES SYSTEM OF TENURE IS COMMUNISTIC

Farm Land Below Rio Grande Held by State.

ALLOTMENTS MADE

Kellogg Denounces Mexico's Plan as Confiscatory.

By Charles P. Stewart.

(With a view of learning in an unbiased manner the exact nature of the Mexican land laws, which have created an international problem of grave nature, the Review-Tribune had its Washington correspondent, Charles P. Stewart, examine them from beginning to end. His report—made by a man who has passed much time in Latin America as an American correspondent—is presented below. It is written in a careful, interesting, easy-to-read, unprejudiced manner.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Is the Calles government of Mexico communistic?

Secretary of State Kellogg has made the charge over and over again. How much is there in it?

The answer to the question hinges on the present Mexican land laws. If they're communistic, then the government is communistic, for the government is trying to enforce them. If the laws are not communistic, then the government is not, for its land laws are the only thing about Mexico that, by any stretch of the imagination, can be interpreted as savoring of communism.

Mexico's system of land tenure, from before the Spanish conquest up to 1874, undoubtedly was communistic, in a way.

That is to say, the farm land was held by the state.

An Example is Quoted.

When a young Indian married and wanted to set up an establishment of his own, he applied to the authorities of his village or town for an allotment of land. He always got it, for the country was not sufficiently crowded not to afford room for everybody.

There was a choice of land, of course. The young couple was at liberty to take the best it could find, provided it was unoccupied. It was also welcome to as much as was available, upon one condition—

It must all be cultivated by the family to which it was granted.

As soon as a landholder permitted any part of his farm to go uncultivated, that part was automatically open to occupancy by another applicant.

If a farmer could only make half a dozen acres productive, that was all he could keep. If he could make 1,000 acres productive, it was his so long as he kept it productive.

Ideal for Agriculturists.

The average holding was of about 15 acres. That was about all one head of a family could farm unaided. He was under no temptation to take more since he would be sure to lose it.

This system was ideal for the agricultural masses.

It was unsatisfactory, however, to capitalists who saw an opportunity to enrich themselves still further by the acquisition of vast acreages in fee simple.

Accordingly, in 1874, a law was passed requiring all farm holders to register these holdings within a specified period under penalty of eviction, and setting up a new system by which the land might be re-acquired, as soon as vacant, in unlimited area.

The Mexican peasantry was almost wholly illiterate. Notices of the new land requirements were perhaps posted conspicuously enough, but practically none of the small farmers could read them. Few were aware of the necessity to register. Few, consequently, did so, and promptly upon expiration of the stated period almost the entire agricultural population of the country found itself landless.

The forfeited farm immediately passed into the hands of great lords of the land, whose former independent cultivators were transformed, at a stroke, from free farms to peons, hardly removed from a state of actual slavery.

Difference of View.

Under present laws the Calles government is attempting to restore the old system. It is this attempt which Secretary Kellogg denounces as confiscatory and communistic. The Calles contention is that it seeks only to restore stolen property to its origiual owners.

The dispute over the petroleum land laws is slightly different in form.

The Spanish conquerors established the principle that all minerals vested in the crown. The same rule was carried over into the days of Mexico's independence. Even holders of land were not entitled to mineral deposits beneath its surface except upon the governments' terms.

The terms were not and are not onerous; are, in fact, milder than those governing mineral claims in the United States. They always, however, have prevented the outright acquisition in perpetuity of Mexican mineral deposits. The system was one of leasing and neglected claims were and are open to relocation.

Under the Diaz regime an exception was made as to oil and coal deposits. They had not originally been thought of as valuable. As soon as they became so, the law was made to provide that they might be acquired as ordinary private properties.

Oil and Coal Category.

In 1917 the Diaz exemption was repealed. Oil and coal were placed in the same category as other minerals. They may be developed upon conditions which are not so severe but that fresh claims are constantly filed. They are, however, available only upon a leasehold basis.

But the new law of 1917 is not retroactive. All owners who, prior to that year, secured legal titles under the then law are confirmed in them. The Calles government's sale demand on them is that they file their titles, as deeds are recorded in this country. If they are valid, they stand. If they prove defective, of course, claimants under them are in the same position as any other claimant under a defective title.

Overrules Motion For New Trial in City Court Action

Motion for a new trial in the case of the Liverpool Paint and Wall Paper company against George Peters in which the plaintiff was awarded The motion waso etaoinshrdlu $158.95 this week by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley was overruled today. The motion was filed by Foulks and Stevenson representing the defendant.

Arguments for new trials were heard in the cases of Mary Allen, Toronto, against Edward F. Arnold, of West Third street, and also of Chris Panalopolous, Klondyke, against Valentine Neiser, both of which were decided in favor of the defendants at trials this week. The judge reserved his decisions.

either in Nicaragua or Mexico, finds no suport among the church groups.

"Now is the time for the United States to give concrete reality to the prophetic utterance of President Coolidge in his Omaha address in 1925, when he declared that 'our country has definitely relinquished the old standards of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding.'"

As regards the specific dispute with Mexico over the land and petroleum laws, Dr. Cadman said, "there is room for an honest difference of opinion. This statement is at decided variance with the views expressed by Secretary of State Kellogg, who has held that the laws are confiscatory on their face and indefensible from the standpoint of principle.

Arbitration Tribunal.

With this inflow of pressure from church organizations not to break with Mexico, and with Senator Heflin (D) of Alabama, publicly charging on the senate floor that Catholic organizations are seeking to "bring about war with Mexico" there has crept into the present acute situation a religious aspect that is worrying administration officials exceedingly.

Meanwhile President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg maintained today complete silence as to the arbitration proposal advocated by Senator William E. Borah. At the state department, the Borah proposal was not viewed with much enthusiasm. At the White House, President Coolidge declined to answer questions concerning it.

In the opinion of some administration officials, there is already in existence a tribunal which could be resorted to in the land law dispute. This is the general claims commission, set up in the treaties by which recognition was accorded the Calles government, some three years ago. This commission is empowered to deal with all cases involving property rights in Mexico. Inasmuch as the present controversy deals almost entirely with property rights — Mexico's "interference" in Nicaragua being legally a side issue—the availability of the commission to deal with the present controversy is under consideration. The commission consists of one Mexican, one American and one Hollander.

This will seat approximately 880 persons, allowing four square feet for each person. The tabernacle was erected Thursday by volunteer labor.

The church had an active membership of 150 on January 9, the opening day of the Fife campaign. The church property is valued at $10,000. The debt is $550. The cost of material for the indebtedness will be underwritten and nated by men and women under the leadership of John W. Smith. WEALTHY MAN SHOT WHEN HE ANSWERS RING

New York Bachelor Wounded as he Awaits Girl.

BLONDE FAINTS

Apartment House Scene of Louise Lawson Strangling.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The strangling of Louise Lawson, girl singer, was recalled today by the mysterious shooting last night of Snatz Salz, 48, fountain pen manufacturer, in the apartment house at 22 West 77th street where the Texas girl was murdered two years ago.

Salz, who was awaiting the arrival of a girl at his bachelor apartment, was shot at the door by one of two men when he answered their ring. The bullet entered the right side of his back and lodged in the abdomen. He was taken to a hospital where it was said today that he was seriously wounded, but probably would recover.

An attractive blonde, who called at Salz's apartment, shortly after the shooting occurred, fainted when told Salz had been shot. She said she had a dinner engagement with Salz. The girl refused to give her name but told police she was married. After questioning her for several hours, detectives said they did not believe she had any knowledge of the crime.

Police believed that the two men shot Salz because of jealousy over a woman. They dismissed a robbery motive when jewelry and $1,000 was found in Salz's clothes.

Salz could give police only a vague description of his assailants, who escaped without attracting attention. He said that just before he was wounded, one of the men shouted 'give it to him.'

Salz was well known as a patron of night clubs. Detectives recalled that in addition to the Lawson murder, two other unsolved murders, those of Joseph B. Elwell, bridge expert, and Dot king, Broadway butterfly, took place in this neighborhood.

Beatty Pays Fine When Court Refuses New Trial Motion

Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today overruled a motion for a new trial in the disorderly conduct charge, filed by police against J. C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, and upon which he was convicted December 31. Beatty paid his fine of $25 and costs.

The charge of intoxication, which was also filed against Beatty and upon which the judge reserved his decision, was dismissed. The two charges against Beatty were prepared in connection with an alleged disturbance in the Larkins restaurant, Market street, on Christmas eve.

the first sub-zero temperatures of the winter today, as the mid-western cold wave moved in from Illinois to the Buckeye state.

Toledo reported a drop in the mercury to four below zero, and was the coldest point in the state, according to the weather bureau here. Cleveland experienced a minimum of eight degrees above, while Cincinnati, at the other end of the state, recorded a minimum of 3 degrees below.

No relief from the cold weather was promised during the next 24 hours, the forecaster said, although the cold wave was reported moving slowly eastward into West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania.

Cloudy weather Sunday probably will bring snow in parts of the state, with somewhat higher temperatures, the forecasters said.

One Ohio Victim.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 15.—John Franklin Baker, 60, is dead here today an indirect victim of the cold wave in Ohio. He dropped dead in the basement of his home last night while stoking the furnace. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The weather bureau today issued a northwest storm warning, advising of disturbances centering south of Nantucket, and extending from Cape Hatteras to Boston. The storm will move northeastward with increasing intensity, causing north and northwest winds of gale force, diminishing tonight.

Relief for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The toll of the greatest Chicago cold wave since Jan. 21, 1924, was set at 13 today as a slight rise in the thermometer from the official "low" of nine below, bore out the weather man's prediction of more moderate temperatures by tonight. The fatalities were partially due to conditions resulting from the storm but not directly caused by Arctic weather, more than six having resulted from accidents.

The frigid wave blew in from the Canadian northwest, following the course taken by the snowstorm of two days ago. No immediate relief is in sight, according to weather bureau forecasts. The cold wave is expected to follow the course of the storm, reaching the Atlantic seaboard and New England states late tonight or tomorrow.

International Falls Coldest Spot.

The extreme cold centered over the northern plain states. International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border, with a temperature of 27 below zero, was the coldest spot in the United states. Devil's Lake, N. D., reported 21 below.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Railroad stocks were pushed to the front in the short session of the stock market today. Renewal of merger discussion affecting some of the well known transportation systems, with prospects of new combinations of the smaller roads at strategic points, stimulated speculative buying of stocks which have been comparatively inactive of late.

The downward trend in motor stocks continued, the same tendency being in evidence in the high-priced industrial and specialty stocks which led the rally in the early part of the week. General Motors and United States Steel were freely offered in professional speculative quarters, and prices here were inclined moderately downward. The oil stocks made a good showing, good buying being in evidence in Standard of New Jersey Pure Oil, Skelley and Phillips Petroleum.

The common and preferred stocks of Wheeling and Lake Erie, Western Maryland, Chicago and Alton and the reorganized St. Paul road led the activity in the so-called speculative rail group. Wheeling and Lake Erie common advanced to 32, while the preferred stock reached a new high at 58. The Northwestern rails, with Colorado & Southern attained a slightly higher market rating, Great Northern preferred moving up another point to 86½.

The battle of the big railroad interests for representation on the board of Lehigh Valley was reflected in a continuation of the spirited buying of the stock which created such a sensation at Friday's close.

Engineer and Road Foreman Are Blamed For 19 Deaths

Interstate Board Holds Locomotive Crew Responsible for Wreck at Rockmart, Ga. — State Investigates Another Theory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Blame for the southern train wreck at Rockmart, Ga., on Dec. 23, in which 19 persons were killed and 123 injured, was placed today by the interstate commerce commission upon two employes of the road—Engineer Keith and Road Foreman of Engines Pearce.

The commission found, after investigation, that "the failure of Road Foreman of Engines Pearce and Engineer Keith either to have thorough understanding as to the contents of a train order which required the train to take a siding at Rockmart for another train, or failure of Pearce to remember the contents of the order" was responsible for the disaster.

Signal Light Removed.

ATLANTA, Jan. 15. — Aroused by evidence that a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the Ponce De Leon, crack Florida-to-Chicago train at Lindale last night, the Georgia public service commission ordered a thorough investigation today.

The Ponce De Leon is the same train that figured in a disastrous wreck December 23 at Rockmart, resulting in the death of 19 persons.

A preliminary investigation by Southern Railway officials revealed that a 16-foot signal light had been removed and thrown into a nearby sewer, causing the Ponce De Leon to pass through the open switch. The locomotive and three cars left the rails.

J. G. Waitt, engineer of the train, was seriously injured. The station agent declared the light was burning properly a half hour before the derailment.

slump. It's an excellent slogan, especially if you put the heavy accent on "work."

Florida's future is assured as one of the great National sun parlors. Incidentally, at this moment, you can't for love, money or pull, engage rooms for the season at the big Palm Beach hotels. Try it.

"YEA, the sparrow has found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself."

It is reported that Count Salm, from Europe, who married a daughter of the Standard Oil, Miss Rogers, will withdraw all claims against the lady and her father for balm in the shape of $325 000.

Old Bible times are no more. Mrs. Potiphar walked away with a piece of Joseph's coat. Count Salm walks away with a piece of Standard Oil change. And the mother must allow him to see his dear little boy. Very touching scene in modern domesticity.

either in Nicaragua or Mexico, finds no suport among the church groups.

"Now is the time for the United States to give concrete reality to the prophetic utterance of President Coolidge in his Omaha address in 1925, when he declared that 'our country has definitely relinquished the old standards of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding.'"

As regards the specific dispute with Mexico over the land and petroleum laws, Dr. Cadman said, "there is room for an honest difference of opinion. This statement is at decided variance with the views expressed by Secretary of State Kellogg, who has held that the laws are confiscatory on their face and indefensible from the standpoint of principle.

Arbitration Tribunal.

With this inflow of pressure from church organizations not to break with Mexico, and with Senator Heflin (D.) of Alabama, publicly charging on the senate floor that Catholic organizations are seeking to "bring about war with Mexico" there has crept into the present acute situation a religious aspect that is worrying administration officials exceedingly.

Meanwhile President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg maintained today complete silence as to the arbitration proposal advocated by Senator William E. Borah. At the state department, the Borah proposal was not viewed with much enthusiasm. At the White House, President Coolidge declined to answer questions concerning it.

In the opinion of some administration officials, there is already in existence a tribunal which could be resorted to in the land law dispute. This is the general claims commission, set up in the treaties by which recognition was accorded the Calles government, some three years ago. This commission is empowered to deal with all cases involving property rights in Mexico. Inasmuch as the present controversy deals almost entirely with property rights — Mexico's "interference" in Nicaragua being legally a side issue—the availability of the commission to deal with the present controversy is under consideration. The commission consists of one Mexican, one American and one Hollander.

WEALTHY MAN SHOT WHEN HE ANSWERS RING

New York Bachelor Wounded as he Awaits Girl.

BLONDE FAINTS

Apartment House Scene of Louise Lawson Strangling.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The strangling of Louise Lawson, girl singer, was recalled today by the mysterious shooting last night of Snatz Salz, 48, fountain pen manufacturer, in the apartment house at 22 West 77th street where the Texas girl was murdered two years ago.

Salz, who was awaiting the arrival of a girl at his bachelor apartment, was shot at the door by one of two men when he answered their ring. The bullet entered the right side of his back and lodged in the abdomen. He was taken to a hospital where it was said today that he was seriously wounded, but probably would recover.

An attractive blonde, who called at Salz's apartment, shortly after the shooting occurred, fainted when told Salz had been shot. She said she had a dinner engagement with Salz. The girl refused to give her name, but told police she was married. After questioning her for several hours, detectives said they did not believe she had any knowledge of the crime.

Police believed that the two men shot Salz because of jealousy over a woman. They dismissed a robbery motive when jewelry and $1,000 was found in Salz's clothes.

Salz could give police only a vague description of his assailants, who escaped without attracting attention. He said that just before he was wounded, one of the men shouted 'give it to him.'

Salz was well known as a patron of night clubs. Detectives recalled that in addition to the Lawson murder, two other unsolved murders, those of Joseph B. Elwell, bridge expert, and Dot king, Broadway butterfly, took place in this neighborhood.

nacle addition to the main church building at last night's service. The new structure contains 1,920 square feet of floor space which added to the 1,600 square feet in the old church auditorium makes a total of 3,520 square feet in the building. This will seat approximately 880 persons, allowing four square feet for each person. The tabernacle was erected Thursday by volunteer labor.

The church had an active membership of 150 on January 9, the opening day of the Fife campaign. The church property is valued at $10,000. The debt is $550. The cost of material for the indebtedness will be underwritten and nated by men and women under the leadership of John W. Smith. The indebtedness will be underwritten nad paid in 12 equal payments, beginning March 1.

Contributions this week will be used to meet overhead expenses of the evangelistic campaign. A thank offering for the Fife brothers will be given on January 30, closing day of the meetings.

During the coming week two headliner sermons—"Bobbed Hair' and "Let No Man Take Thy Crown," based on the Tunney-Dempsey fight—will be delivered.

The "Bobbed Hair" sermon will be given on Tuesday night when all high school students of the city are invited.

Rev. C. Melvin McKay, pastor of the tabernacle-Church of Christ, said "Everything is now centered on the dedication of the tabernacle at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"We ask the help and prayers of all God's people in this city for the salvation of souls and the unbuilding of all our churches, especially in this part of our city. We feel that this should challenge the fire and zeal of the entire city and believe that it will. The presence and help of our friends is certainly appreciated."

the first sub-zero temperatures of the winter today, as the mid-western cold wave moved in from Illinois to the Buckeye state.

Toledo reported a drop in the mercury to four below zero, and was the coldest point in the state, according to the weather bureau here. Cleveland experienced a minimum of eight degrees above, while Cincinnati, at the other end of the state, recorded a minimum of 3 degrees below.

No relief from the cold weather was promised during the next 24 hours, the forecaster said, although the cold wave was reported moving slowly eastward into West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania.

Cloudy weather Sunday probably will bring snow in parts of the state, with somewhat higher temperatures, the forecasters said.

One Ohio Victim.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 15.—John Franklin Baker, 60, is dead here today an indirect victim of the cold wave in Ohio. He dropped dead in the basement of his home last night while stoking the furnace. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The weather bureau today issued a northwest storm warning, advising of disturbances centering south of Nantucket, and extending from Cape Hatteras to Boston. The storm will move northeastward with increasing intensity, causing north and northwest winds of gale force, diminishing tonight.

Relief for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The toll of the greatest Chicago cold wave since Jan. 21, 1924, was set at 13 today as a slight rise in the thermometer from the official "low" of nine below, bore out the weather man's prediction of more moderate temperatures by tonight. The fatalities were partially due to conditions resulting from the storm but not directly caused by Arctic weather, more than six having resulted from accidents.

The frigid wave blew in from the Canadian northwest, following the course taken by the snowstorm of two days ago. No immediate relief is in sight, according to weather bureau forecasts. The cold wave is expected to follow the course of the storm, reaching the Atlantic seaboard and New England states late tonight or tomorrow.

International Falls Coldest Spot.

The extreme cold centered over the northern plain states. International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border, with a temperature of 27 below zero, was the coldest spot in the United states. Devil's Lake, N. D., reported 21 below.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Railroad stocks were pushed to the front in the short session of the stock market today. Renewal of merger discussion affecting some of the well known transportation systems, with prospects of new combinations of the smaller roads at stretegic points, stimulated speculative buying of stocks which have been comparatively inactive of late.

The downward trend in motor stocks continued, the same tendency being in evidence in the high-priced industrial and specialty stocks which led the rally in the early part of the week. General Motors and United States Steel were freely offered in professional speculative quarters, and prices here were inclined moderately downward. The oil stocks made a good showing, good buying being in evidence in Standard of New Jersey Pure Oil, Skelley and Phillips Petroleum.

The common and preferred stocks of Wheeling and Lake Erie, Western Maryland, Chicago and Alton and the reorganized St. Paul road led the activity in the so-called speculative rail group. Wheeling and Lake Erie common advanced to 32, while the preferred stock reached a new high at 58. The Northwestern rails, with Colorado & Southern attained a slightly higher market rating. Great Northern preferred moving up another point to 86½.

The battle of the big railroad interests for representation on the board of Lehigh Valley was reflected in a continuation of the spirited buying of the stock which created such a sensation at Friday's close.

Engineer and Road Foreman Are Blamed For 19 Deaths

Interstate Board Holds Locomotive Crew Responsible for Wreck at Rockmart, Ga. — State Investigates Another Theory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Blame for the southern train wreck at Rockmart, Ga., on Dec. 23, in which 19 persons were killed and 123 injured, was placed today by the interstate commerce commission upon two employes of the road—Engineer Keith and Road Foreman of Engines Pearce.

The commission found, after investigation, that "the failure of Road Foreman of Engines Pearce and Engineer Keith either to have thorough understanding as to the contents of a train order which required the train to take a siding at Rockmart for another train, or failure of Pearce to remember the contents of the order" was responsible for the disaster.

Signal Light Removed.

ATLANTA, Jan. 15. — Aroused by evidence that a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the Ponce De Leon, crack Florida-to-Chicago train at Lindale last night, the Georgia public service commission ordered a thorough investigation today.

The Ponce De Leon is the same train that figured in a disastrous wreck December 23 at Rockmart, resulting in the death of 19 persons.

A preliminary investigation by Southern Railway officials revealed that a 16-foot signal light had been removed and thrown into a nearby sewer, causing the Ponce De Leon to pass through the open switch. The locomotive and three cars left the rails.

J. G. Waitt, engineer of the train, was seriously injured. The station agent declared the light was burning properly a half hour before the derailment.

of pounds of yarn dyed up in color combinations that have suddenly gone out of style, and mobility of stock is achieved, with the undyed fabric in his warehouse the manufacturer can always dye up quickly and cheaply any portion of his stock to meet the everchanging and often unpredictable demands of fashion.

One of the hurdles that it has been said cotton could never make in a race with silk for woman's favor has been for use in the intimate underthings that in present day fashions must be soft, clinging, and very light, to say nothing of soothing to the feminine form divine. Celanese, it is insisted, puts cotton over in this respect. It has all those qualities, and in addition it wears well, stands up under repeated washing, and never fades or turns yellow. And in the matter of hosiery, celanese yarn is made into an article that should please the most fastidious—just as silky as the silk which it isn't.

Merchants are said to find one virtue in the new fabric, a virtue that recommends it to them mos highly, aside from the appeal it is making to shoppers, which evidences its marketability. That is, celanese fabrics do not deteriorate on the shelves A merchant can carry his stock almost indefinitely knowing that it will not become shop-worn and fit only for the bargain counter.

"BREAKFAST" in
Baker's Breakfast Cocoa
Means Something

The United States Food Standards define "Breakfast" cocoa as cocoa containing not less than 22 per cent of cocoa butter. Many cheap cocoas (which cannot be labelled "Breakfast" Cocoa) contain not more than 14 per cent or 15 per cent of butter.

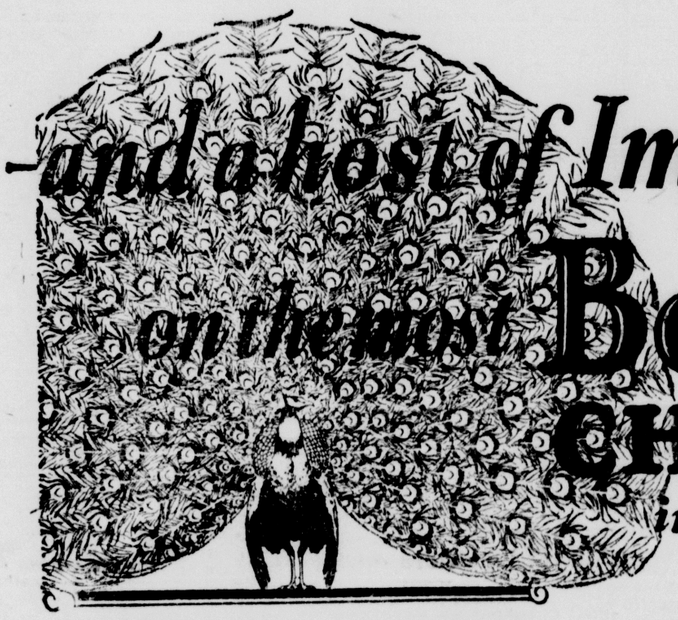

Baker's Breakfast Cocoa contains not less than 26 per cent of cocoa butter, almost one-fifth more than Government requirement. The phrase Baker's Breakfast Cocoa means a pure, delicious cocoa of high quality and possessing a considerable amount of nourishment.

When Winter Comes

Good Elimination Is Essential.

HABITS of life change with the changing seasons. Winter brings us more indoors; we are apt to get less fresh air and exercise, to eat heavier food and to be less active generally. These winter-time habits impose heavier burdens upon our hard-working kidneys.

Sluggish kidney function permits retention of poisonous waste in the blood and makes one an easier victim of winter's colds and chills. Presence of these unfiltered toxins makes itself felt in many unpleasant ways.

One is apt to feel tired, achy and listless—to have drowsy headaches, dizziness and perhaps a dull "toxic" backache. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning secretions.

At such times the use of a stimulant diuretic* to the kidneys is indicated. Doan's Pills act on the kidneys only. Grateful users the country over recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

THREE DAMAGE CASES SETTLED

Long Standing Actions Removed From Common Pleas Docket.

Damage and personal injury cases totalling $60,000 and which have been pending in common pleas court for a long period of time have been settled out of court, according to journal entries just filed.

The case of Joseph Markovich against the Natural Gas company of West Virginia, wherein $45,000 damages was claimed was the first to be settled out of court and at the costs of the defendant.

On October 12, 1925, Mary E. Deming filed a $10,100 damage action against C. V. Rakestraw, of Salem. This also was a personal injury action. This cause has also been settled out of court at the costs of the defendant.

In this connection, Helen B. Deming filed an action against the same defendant seeking $5,200 damages for personal injuries. This was also settled.

ROBERT EWING HANDED FINE

Robert M. Ewing was fined $50 and costs and given a 30-day jail sentence, which was suspended by Mayor Robert Clark of Lisbon on a charge of petty larceny.

Ewing with Roy Santullo of Lisbon are alleged to have taken two tires and a wheel lock from automobiles during a recent evangelistic meeting at the Lisbon Christian church.

Santullo's case is to be disposed of by Juvenile Judge Lodge Riddle next week.

Davis Granted Divorce.

On the grounds of wilful absence for over a period of three years, a decree of divorce has been granted by the court to Charles A. Davis against his wife, Margaret Davis. This petition was filed Oct. 14th last.

Marriage License.

A marriage license has been issued to Merrill Bates, residing at Salem, and Mary Elizabeth Gardner, a clerk employed at Salem, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Gardner. They are to be married by the Rev. Kinsey.

Money Appropriated.

A court order has been issued appropriating $3,000 for the use of the prosecuting attorney in the conduct of his office for the current year. The order which has been signed by Judge W. F. Lones, sets this amount of money aside for the compensation of assistants, clerks and stenographer for 1927.

Divorce Granted.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been granted Hazel G. Felger, of East Palestine, in the action pending against her husband, Clarence Earl Felger. The custody of children was awarded to Mrs. Felger.

Granted Leave To File.

In the case of Lloyd Robusch against Louis Howells, which is an appeal action from a lower court, the court has granted leave to the defendant to file his answer and cross petition at once.

Divorce Decree Issued.

Because her husband, Shelby Carlisle, is now an inmate in the Mansfield reformatory, serving a long sentence upon his plea of guilty to robbery, Mrs. Pearl Carlisle was granted a decree of divorce from her husband by Judge W. F. Lones.

The custody of the children was given in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Carlisle of Jordonville.

Sale Confirmed.

In the foreclosure action filed in common pleas court by J. A. Dopler against Clyde Shields, the court has confirmed the sale of property and has ordered the issuing of a warranty deed.

Divorce Suit Filed.

Through her counsel, Brookes and Thompson of East Liverpool, Ada May See has filed a petition for divorce in common pleas court against her husband, Frank Fay See, of Wilkinsburg, Pa.

The couple were married June 25, 1912. Gross neglect for over a period of three years is set up in the petition.

of pounds of yarn dyed up in color combinations that have suddenly gone out of style, and mobility of stock is achieved, with the undyed fabric in his warehouse the manufacturer can always dye up quickly and cheaply any portion of his stock to meet the everchanging and often unpredictable demands of fashion.

One of the hurdles that it has been said cotton could never make in a race with silk for woman's favor has been for use in the intimate underthings that in present day fashions must be soft, clinging, and very light, to say nothing of soothing to the feminine form divine. Celanese, it is insisted, puts cotton over in this respect. It has all those qualities, and in addition it wears well, stands up under repeated washing, and never fades or turns yellow. And in the matter of hosiery, celanese yarn is made into an article that should please the most fastidious—just as silky as the silk which it isn't.

Merchants are said to find one virtue in the new fabric, a virtue that recommends it to them mos. highly, aside from the appeal it is making to shoppers, which evidences its marketability. That is, celanese fabrics do not deteriorate on the shelves A merchant can carry his stock almost indefinitely knowing that it will not become shop-worn and fit only for the bargain counter.

"BREAKFAST" in
Baker's Breakfast Cocoa
Means Something

The United States Food Standards define "Breakfast" cocoa as cocoa containing not less than 22 per cent of cocoa butter. Many cheap cocoas (which cannot be labelled "Breakfast" Cocoa) contain not more than 14 per cent or 15 per cent of butter.

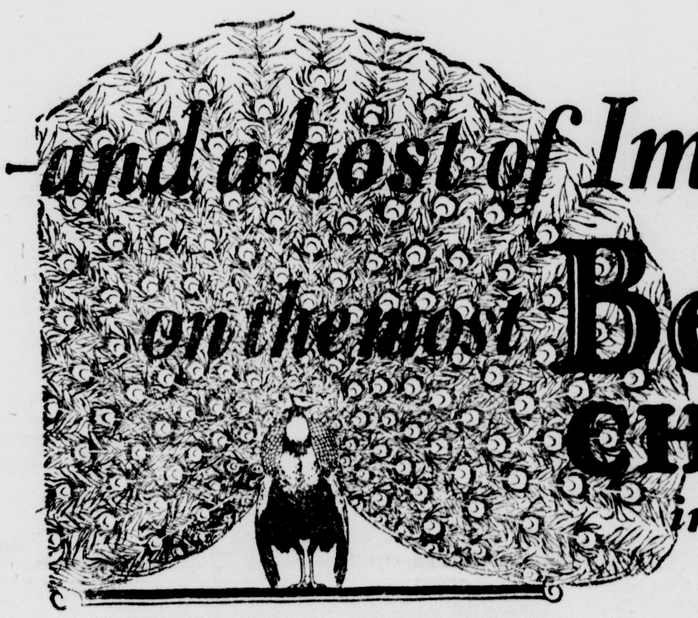

Baker's Breakfast Cocoa contains not less than 26 per cent of cocoa butter, almost one-fifth more than Government requirement. The phrase Baker's Breakfast Cocoa means a pure, delicious cocoa of high quality and possessing a considerable amount of nourishment.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The 'Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

534. Does the Bible say that Christ has the keys to hell (Hades)?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 1:18.

535. What will He do with the keys of Hades (Hell)?

Answer: He will unlock the prison-house of Hades and call all prisoners forth.—John 5:28, 29; Isaiah 42:7.

536. Does the Bible say that Hades will deliver up the dead that are in it?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 20:13.

537. When the time comes that no more go into Hades and all are called forth from that state or condition, what will become of Hades?

Answer: Hades will be no more. It will be destroyed.

538. What is meant in Revelation 20:14 where it says that Hell (Hades is "cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death?"

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and the text quoted means the destruction of Hades, or the conditon of Adamic death. The second death means utter destruction.

539. If Sheol in the Old Testament means the same thing as Hades in the New Testament, does not the Bible say that Sheol is to be destroyed?

Answer: In Hosea 13:14, it says: "O grave (Sheol), I will be thy destruction."

540. Does this same verse (Hosea 13:14) show that Sheol is to be destroyed by bringing all out of the condition of death (Sheol)?

Answer: It does; for it says: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave (Sheol)".

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The 'Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

534. Does the Bible say that Christ has the keys to hell (Hades)?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 1:18.

535. What will He do with the keys of Hades (Hell)?

Answer: He will unlock the prison-house of Hades and call all prisoners forth.—John 5:28, 29; Isaiah 42:7.

536. Does the Bible say that Hades will deliver up the dead that are in it?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 20:13.

537. When the time comes that no more go into Hades and all are called forth from that state or condition, what will become of Hades?

Answer: Hades will be no more. It will be destroyed.

538. What is meant in Revelation 20:14 where it says that Hell (Hades is "cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death?"

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and the text quoted means the destruction of Hades, or the conditon of Adamic death. The second death means utter destruction.

539. If Sheol in the Old Testament means the same thing as Hades in the New Testament, does not the Bible say that Sheol is to be destroyed?

Answer: In Hosea 13:14, it says: "O grave (Sheol), I will be thy destruction."

540. Does this same verse (Hosea 13:14) show that Sheol is to be destroyed by bringing all out of the condition of death (Sheol)?

Answer: It does; for it says: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave (Sheol)".

Ellis Tells of Advantage of Journeys To Foreign Lands

True Realities are Faced by Readers Who Turn to Sunday School Lesson on Prayer.

One advantage of long and repeated journeys to foreign lands is that the traveler thus learns to look beneath the surface of the life which at first seemed so novel and interesting. Beginners in travel are absorbed in the strangeness of speech and of clothes and of customs. They pay more attention to a turban than to the head beneath it. "Queer" houses mean more to them than the sort of life that goes on within the walls.

This is the kindergarten stage of travel; the sort of thing that interests the children back home. Doubtless some persons have kindergarten minds, which they never outgrow. Such see only the superficial aspects of their fellows — the clothes they wear, the automobiles they drive, the styles of houses in which they live. Mature observers of life, however, are more interested in what goes on inside a man's clothes than in what he wears; in what sort of thoughts he thinks than in the language he speaks; in his spirit than in his circumstances. For "the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Obviously, for instance, Arabs wear flowing robes and head-rolls and daggers, and have dark skin and a stately mein. More important, though, is the fact that the Arabs of Arabia today have turned anew to their religion and to prayer, as well as to deep-flowing purposes of nationalism. The religious revival in mid-Arabia, led by the Akwan, is one of the portentous phases of present politics. China's turbulent patriotism today is of vaster significance than her pigtails or pride or poverty. Russia's ideas mean more than Russia's markets. Egypt's new national self-consciousness is far more important to the world than her antiquities. The ideas of patriotism that are boiling in the heads of the people of Syria and of the Holy Land outrank their ruins and persisting customs. The sober thinking that is going on in the English-speaking world signifies more than the day's noisy jazz or its battleships. The real life of mankind is its inner life. Things always have been and always will be of secondary importance. Everybody's true identity is spiritual. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." A person's prayer-life really means more to him and to the world than his position in business or in society.

Getting Down To Realities.

So when a score of millions of persons turn this week to the consideration of the Sunday school lesson on prayer, they are facing the true realities. This inner life is none the less real because it cannot be shared even by one's nearest and dearest friend. The man who is alive in his spirit has an identity which even the wife by his side does not apprehend. Nothin else is so important as this unplumbed, unshared experience of the soul. Perhaps it was in recognition of this principle that Jesus said, "When thou hast shut thy door;" and "The Father who seeth in secret." Only God may partake of the intimacy of a man's spiritual yearnings.

Wistfully I have watched uncounted men in foreign lands at prayer—Hindus in Benares; Moslems in the desert; Chinese worshippers in ancient emples; Japanese pilgrims at the Imperial Shrine at Ise; Thibetan monks turning their prayer-wheels, inscrutable Russians in scores of churches all over that vast land; Italians peasants making the rounds of the great churches of Rome; Afghan devotees in St. Sophia—and ever I have wondered about the passion of their prayers. Their tongues and their forms were strange to me; but their upreach toward God was the universal and ageless quest of the human soul. It has been my privilege to visit scores of unearthed ancient temples of many forgotten faiths; and they seem to me to symbolize the race's ceaseless procession of prayer. When a man seeks to find God for himself, he is following the oldest fashion of human nature.

In this unity all mankind are bound together. There have been times when the reality of religion, the sense of the spiritual and the power of prayer, have been for a time denied by large blocks of people. A noisy section of our own era's population is just now engaged in asserting that only the material matters. But when we listen to the ether made vocal, almost continuously for a fortnight, with Christmas music; and when dozens of radio stations broadcast prayers and hymns and sermons, and when we read the returns of a nation-wide newspaper census concerning religious belief, we are reassured that the human quest for God is more vocal than ever before.

Seen Across the Years.

"Teach me the patience of unanswered prayer," sang the poet. There is something better than that. It is the patience which waits to see prayer answered. One of the great lessons taught by mature experience is that God is not in a hurry, but that He surely does fulfil His word. "I want what I want when I want it" chants childish selfishness. That sort of praying does not seem to impress God. He gives what we need (often a different matter entirely from what we want) when we need it. In times of meditation I find myself marveling at the way in which the Heavenly Father has quietly and almost imperceptibly granted the deep desires of life. His ways are not our ways; His times are not our times; but, nevertheless, God does fulfil His Father-function toward His children.

So one first lesson to be learned in the school of prayer is patience. Spurgeon once spoke of seeing a weather-vane inscribed "God is love." He accosted the farmer with "Do you mean to say that God's love is as changeable as a weather-vane."

"Not at all;" returned the farmer heartily; "that motto means that God is love whichever way the wind blows." Despite denials and disappointments, despite all adverse seeming, "God is love," and love always answers.

Often forgotten in man's petty self-engrossment, is the tremendous truth of the greatness and wisdom of God. He is on His throne, as surely as we are on our knees. Shall the petitioner impose his own will upon the Sovereign? Has God no kingrights, that He may be commanded by every wilful, undiscerning subject? As the Moslem loves to throw down a prayer-rug on which to pray, so the Christian's prayer-rug, on which he reverently prostrates his spirit, is the word of Jesus, "Father, if it be Thy will." Who would be so foolish, once he has given throught to it, to want anything contrary to the will of the Father who is all-wise as well as all-loving?

Places, Postures, Phrases, Practices.

This morning, as I moved about my room, the radio brought the familiar strains of "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed by the usual morning prayer service, broadcast from New York. It symbolized and vocalized the unity of the volume of prayer which every morning flies through the ether of all the world to the heart of God. What lessons of universality the radio is teaching us all! While we ceaselessly marvel at its wonders yet we cannot forget the greater wonders of the ancient wireless of prayer, which has always been in operation between seeking souls and the bountiful Being who is the Source and Center of the universe.

Any place is a good place for prayer: once the Outlook printed a remarkable poem describing a city man's ride in the crowded subway as his daily hour with God. Jesus sought the desert, where it seems natural to pray. Apartness is essential to truest prayer. Any posture is possible in prayer; through the attitude of devotion is itself a symbol of supplication. Prayer phrases, such as Jesus taught in the Lord's Prayer, are desirable; for elevated language lifts up the level of thought; but ever the holiest phrases may become petrified and meaningless. We cannot forget the contrast between the Pharisee's rounded periods and the publican's blunt ejaculation, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"

A cry in need it should be; and an ever-present attitude of the spirit — life's desire directed Godward—but prayer is also a habit of life, a regular practice, as recurring a soul-food as breakfast or dinner. Jesus consistently practiced prayer, and did not reserve it for emergencies. So much a part of His being was the usage of prayer that in His extremity He could say, "Not what I will, but what Thou wilt."

Wellsville Christian Church Organized By Mahlon Martin

First House of Worship, Established in 1843, Was Log Structure in Flats School District.

With a charter membership of about 50 persons, the First Christian Church, of Wellsville, was organized by Elder Mahlon Martin in 1843. The first house of worship was a log structure which occupied a site in what is commonly known as the Flats school house vicinity.

William Wells, who founded the city of Wellsville, deeded the congregation a lot in what was known as Phelps addition, Main street, in 1845, two years after the church had been formally organized. On this site there was erected a church building in the same year. This structure was built under the supervision of Trustees Alexander Campbell, George Martin and Thomas Hamilton.

In 1896 the present building was erected on the Main street site. This building covers the entire lot. In 1924 because of a lack of room in caring for the growing church school the Bright property, adjoining the church on the east, was purchased at a cost of $10,000. This building which was a commodious double dwelling was remodeled inside and connected with the church building and is now used as a church school annex. The church office and pastor's study is located here and the cradle roll, beginners, primary and junior departments also meet there.

Upon the purchase of the annex the entire property was overhauled inside and out. The buildings were given a coat of stucco. The church building was completely cleaned and redecorated. A new and beautiful metal ceiling was placed in the auditorium and an indirect X-ray lighting system installed. This lighting system was probably the most pleasing change that was made.

The church maintains a completely graded, well manned church school. It is the desire of the church to be of service, to build up the life of the community out of the life of the church.

Rev. L. E. Lee.

A complete list of ministers who have served the church in Wellsville not available but following is a list of names of men who have mnistered here: Mahlon Martin, Israel Bolton, Eli Reagle, William Beaumont, Mr. Van Horn, Dr. Lucy, Dr. Dite, D. 'Revival of Religion,' Topic of Rev. J. F. Dimit's Sermon

Pastor of First Methodist Protestant Church Refers to Greatest Blessing That Can Come to Individual.

By Rev. J. F. Dimit.

Habakkuk 3:2—"O Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years."

The greatest blessing that can come to the individual, the community, and the nation is a revival of the Lord's work. I think the prophet had this in mind when he prayed: "O Lord, revive they work in the midst of the years." He observed existing conditions. He saw faith on the wane, love cold, morals low, and sin wrecking life and characters. The prophet believed that the remedy for existing conditions was in a revival of the Lord's work.

What is a revival of religion? Rev. W. A. Sunday says, "a philosophical common sense result of the right was of divinely appointed means.' It is an interest in spiritual things. An interest in politics is a political revival. An interest in business is a business revival. An interest in learning is an intellectual revival. Thus an interest in spiritual interests is a religious revival.

A revival of religion has a logical place in the work and service of the church. There is much time given each year to teaching and preaching in the church and Sunday school. The revival meeting is the reaping time. The time when the church centralizes her efforts to influence men and women to make a definite decision for Christ, and seven out of every ten church members have made their decision during special meetings.

When may a revival be expected? The Scriptures answer in no uncertain language, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face and turn from their evil ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their wound." God always keeps his promises. When his people preach and teach the Gospel, when they pray and believe and keep humble before Him. He knows all their sincere efforts and gives a spiritual harvest.

What are the results of a revival of the Lord's work? I am not thinking of some mere emotional or superficial results that some may term a revival. I am thinking of spiritual results. What are they? A deeper interest in the Bible. The quickening of the spiritual life. The church and its services taking precedence over all other things. New faces in the prayer meeting. A closer walk with God. The conversion of sinners. These are the results of a real revival of religion. Therefore in my humble judgment, there is no more worthy cause to which we can give our time and energy than to the promotion of a real revival of religion.

Turkey's "Grand Old Man" Has Competition In Longevity Race

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Zaro Agha, Turkey's "Grand Old Man," who is reputed to be 153, has a competitor in the race for longevity in Teku Oglu Ali Agha, who claims to be 147.

Ali Agha appeared as a witness in a case in the courts here, and the announcement of his age caused a mild sensation. It was nevertheless established to be true.

Ali enjoys the full use of his mental activities, is robust, and has a good appetite. He has a remarkable memory, and recalls events which took place 135 years ago.

In spite of poor business conditions during the hot weather in Mexico recently, Mexicans continued to go to the movies in increasing numbers.

This is the kindergarten stage of travel; the sort of thing that interests the children back home. Doubtless some persons have kindergarten minds, which they never outgrow. Such see only the superficial aspects of their fellows — the clothes they wear, the automobiles they drive, the styles of houses in which they live. Mature observers of life, however, are more interested in what goes on inside a man's clothes than in what he wears; in what sort of thoughts he thinks than in the language he speaks; in his spirit than in his circumstances. For "the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Obviously, for instance, Arabs wear flowing robes and head-rolls and daggers, and have dark skin and a stately mein. More important, though, is the fact that the Arabs of Arabia today have turned anew to their religion and to prayer, as well as to deep-flowing purposes of nationalism. The religious revival in mid-Arabia, led by the Akwan, is one of the portentous phases of present politics. China's turbulent patriotism today is of vaster significance than her pigtails or pride or poverty. Russia's ideas mean more than Russia's markets. Egypt's new national self-consciousness is far more important to the world than her antiquities. The ideas of patriotism that are boiling in the heads of the people of Syria and of the Holy Land outrank their ruins and persisting customs. The sober thinking that is going on in the English-speaking world signifies more than the day's noisy jazz or its battleships. The real life of mankind is its inner life. Things always have been and always will be of secondary importance. Everybody's true identity is spiritual. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." A person's prayer-life really means more to him and to the world than his position in business or in society.

Getting Down To Realities.

So when a score of millions of persons turn this week to the consideration of the Sunday school lesson on prayer, they are facing the true realities. This inner life is none the less real because it cannot be shared even by one's nearest and dearest friend. The man who is alive in his spirit has an identity which even the wife by his side does not apprehend. Nothin else is so important as this unplumbed, unshared experience of the soul. Perhaps it was in recognition of this principle that Jesus said, "When thou hast shut thy door;" and "The Father who seeth in secret." Only God may partake of the intimacy of a man's spiritual yearnings.

Wistfully I have watched uncounted men in foreign lands at prayer—Hindus in Benares; Moslems in the desert; Chinese worshippers in ancient emples; Japanese pilgrims at the Imperial Shrine at Ise; Thibetan monks turning their prayer-wheels, inscrutable Russians in scores of churches all over that vast land; Italians peasants making the rounds of the great churches of Rome; Afghan devotees in St. Sophia—and ever I have wondered about the passion of their prayers. Their tongues and their forms were strange to me; but their upreach toward God was the universal and ageless quest of the human soul. It has been my privilege to visit scores of unearthed ancient temples of many forgotten faiths; and they seem to me to symbolize the race's ceaseless procession of prayer. When a man seeks to find God for himself, he is following the oldest fashion of human nature.

In this unity all mankind are bound together. There have been times when the reality of religion, the sense of the spiritual and the power of prayer, have been for a time denied by large blocks of people. A noisy section of our own era's population is just now engaged in asserting that only the material matters. But when we listen to the ether made vocal, almost continuously for a fortnight, with Christmas music; and when dozens of radio stations broadcast prayers and hymns and sermons, and when we read the returns of a nation-wide newspaper census concerning religious belief, we are reassured that the human quest for God is more vocal than ever before.

Seen Across the Years.

"Teach me the patience of unanswered prayer," sang the poet. There is something better than that. It is the patience which waits to see prayer answered. One of the great lessons taught by mature experience is that God is not in a hurry, but that He surely does fulfil His word. "I want what I want when I want it" chants childish selfishness. That sort of praying does not seem to impress God. He gives what we need (often a different matter entirely from what we want) when we need it. In times of meditation I find myself marveling at the way in which the Heavenly Father has quietly and almost imperceptibly granted the deep desires of life. His ways are not our ways; His times are not our times; but, nevertheless, God does fulfil His Father-function toward His children.

So one first lesson to be learned in the school of prayer is patience. Spurgeon once spoke of seeing a weather-vane inscribed "God is love." He accosted the farmer with "Do you mean to say that God's love is as changeable as a weather-vane."

"Not at all;" returned the farmer heartily; "that motto means that God is love whichever way the wind blows." Despite denials and disappointments, despite all adverse seeming, "God is love," and love always answers.

Often forgotten in man's petty self-engrossment, is the tremendous truth of the greatness and wisdom of God. He is on His throne, as surely as we are on our knees. Shall the petitioner impose his own will upon the Sovereign? Has God no kingrights, that He may be commanded by every wilful, undiscerning subject? As the Moslem loves to throw down a prayer-rug on which to pray, so the Christian's prayer-rug, on which he reverently prostrates his spirit, is the word of Jesus, "Father, if it be Thy will." Who would be so foolish, once he has given throught to it, to want anything contrary to the will of the Father who is all-wise as well as all-loving?

Places, Postures, Phrases, Practices.

This morning, as I moved about my room, the radio brought the familiar strains of "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed by the usual morning prayer service, broadcast from New York. It symbolized and vocalized the unity of the volume of prayer which every morning flies through the ether of all the world to the heart of God. What lessons of universality the radio is teaching us all! While we ceaselessly marvel at its wonders yet we cannot forget the greater wonders of the ancient wireless of prayer, which has always been in operation between seeking souls and the bountiful Being who is the Source and Center of the universe.

Any place is a good place for prayer: once the Outlook printed a remarkable poem describing a city man's ride in the crowded subway as his daily hour with God. Jesus sought the desert, where it seems natural to pray. Apartness is essential to truest prayer. Any posture is possible in prayer; through the attitude of devotion is itself a symbol of supplication. Prayer phrases, such as Jesus taught in the Lord's Prayer, are desirable; for elevated language lifts up the level of thought; but ever the holiest phrases may become petrified and meaningless. We cannot forget the contrast between the Pharisee's rounded periods and the publican's blunt ejaculation, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"

A cry in need it should be; and an ever-present attitude of the spirit — life's desire directed Godward—but prayer is also a habit of life, a regular practice, as recurring a soul-food as breakfast or dinner. Jesus consistently practiced prayer, and did not reserve it for emergencies. So much a part of His being was the usage of prayer that in His extremity He could say, "Not what I will, but what Thou wilt."

Wellsville Christian Church Organized By Mahlon Martin

First House of Worship, Established in 1843, Was Log Structure in Flats School District.

With a charter membership of about 50 persons, the First Christian Church, of Wellsville, was organized by Elder Mahlon Martin in 1843. The first house of worship was a log structure which occupied a site in what is commonly known as the Flats school house vicinity.

William Wells, who founded the city of Wellsville, deeded the congregation a lot in what was known as Phelps addition, Main street, in 1845, two years after the church had been formally organized. On this site there was erected a church building in the same year. This structure was built under the supervision of Trustees Alexander Campbell, George Martin and Thomas Hamilton.

In 1896 the present building was erected on the Main street site. This building covers the entire lot. In 1924 because of a lack of room in caring for the growing church school the Bright property, adjoining the church on the east, was purchased at a cost of $10,000. This building which was a commodious double dwelling was remodeled inside and connected with the church building and is now used as a church school annex. The church office and pastor's study is located here and the cradle roll, beginners, primary and junior departments also meet there.

Upon the purchase of the annex the entire property was overhauled inside and out. The buildings were given a coat of stucco. The church building was completely cleaned and redecorated. A new and beautiful metal ceiling was placed in the auditorium and an indirect X-ray lighting system installed. This lighting system was probably the most pleasing change that was made.

The church maintains a completely

graded, well manned church school. It is the desire of the church to be of service, to build up the life of the community out of the life of the church.

A complete list of ministers who have served the church in Wellsville not available but following is a list of names of men who have mnistered here: Mahlon Martin, Israel Bolton, Eli Reagle, William Beaumont, Mr. Van Horn, Dr. Lucy, Dr. Dite, D. J. White, Henry White, William Baxter, C. P. Cowen, J. M. Van Horn, M. P. Hayden, P. H. Jones, H. H. Tilock, J. A. Lytle, Edward Bowers, H. Newton Miller, W. L. Barnes, W. C. Prewitt, H. E. Sala, C. 'Revival of Religion,' Topic of Rev. J. F. Dimit's Sermon

Pastor of First Methodist Protestant Church Refers to Greatest Blessing That Can Come to Individual.

By Rev. J. F. Dimit.

Habakkuk 3:2—"O Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years."

The greatest blessing that can come to the individual, the community, and the nation is a revival of the Lord's work. I think the prophet had this in mind when he prayed: "O Lord, revive they work in the midst of the years." He observed existing conditions. He saw faith on the wane, love cold, morals low, and sin wrecking life and characters. The prophet believed that the remedy for existing conditions was in a revival of the Lord's work.

What is a revival of religion? Rev. W. A. Sunday says, "a philosophical common sense result of the right was of divinely appointed means.' It is an interest in spiritual things. An interest in politics is a political revival. An interest in business is a business revival. An interest in learning is an intellectual revival. Thus an interest in spiritual interests is a religious revival.

A revival of religion has a logical place in the work and service of the church. There is much time given each year to teaching and preaching in the church and Sunday school. The revival meeting is the reaping time. The time when the church centralizes her efforts to influence men and women to make a definite decision for Christ, and seven out of every ten church members have made their decision during special meetings.

When may a revival be expected? The Scriptures answer in no uncertain language, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face and turn from their evil ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their wound." God always keeps his promises. When his people preach and teach the Gospel, when they pray and believe and keep humble before Him. He knows all their sincere efforts and gives a spiritual harvest.

What are the results of a revival of the Lord's work? I am not thinking of some mere emotional or superficial results that some may term a revival. I am thinking of spiritual results. What are they? A deeper interest in the Bible. The quickening of the spiritual life. The church and its services taking precedence over all other things. New faces in the prayer meeting. A closer walk with God. The conversion of sinners. These are the results of a real revival of religion. Therefore in my humble judgment, there is no more worthy cause to which we can give our time and energy than to the promotion of a real revival of religion.

Turkey's "Grand Old Man" Has Competition In Longevity Race

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Zaro Agha, Turkey's "Grand Old Man," who is reputed to be 153, has a competitor in the race for longevity in Teku Oglu Ali Agha, who claims to be 147.

Ali Agha appeared as a witness in a case in the courts here, and the announcement of his age caused a mild sensation. It was nevertheless established to be true.

Ali enjoys the full use of his mental activities, is robust, and has a good appetite. He has a remarkable memory, and recalls events which took place 135 years ago.

In spite of poor business conditions during the hot weather in Mexico recently, Mexicans continued to go to the movies in increasing numbers.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Seine tribunal has granted a divorce to Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, the former Salena Elizabeth Wrentmore.

The marriage took place almost immediately upon the issuance of a decree of divorce from his second wife.

WELLSVILLE MAYOR WILL FIGHT PROCEEDINGS

FOGO READY TO GO TO MAT IN COURT CASE

"I'll be There," he Says When Petition is Served.

HEARING DELAYED

No Formal Answer on Defendant's Part Necessary.

Following receipt of a copy of the petition filed against him in common pleas court, Mayor W. L. Fogo, today announced he will fight the ousters proceedings to a finish.

"I'll be there," said the city's chief executive.

Merely a copy of the petition, signed by 417 persons, which was filed several weeks ago, demanding that Mayor Fogo be ousted fro moffice, was served upon him yesterday by Sheriff George Wright of Lisbon.

This, according to court officials, is the only step that will be taken prior to the actual hearing of the charges, 10 of which were cited in the petition, filed through Attorney W. H. Spence of Lisbon.

The case will proceed as any other court action. Following the service on the mayor yesterday, the next step will be the assignment of the case for hearing.

No formal answer is necessary on the part of the defendant prior to the hearing of the charges.

Statutes provide that the formal notice to the defendant be made 10 days prior to the trial but the great amount of work already on the court docket indicates, it is said, that the case will not be called for several weeks.

APPROVE BONDS OF LOCAL MEN

Fusco and Carbicella Released From Jail.

Bonds of $5,000 each have been approved by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine for the release from the county jail of Frank Fusco and Rocco Carbicella, Wellsville, re-indicted by the January grand jury for an attempt to bribe Sheriff George Wright with $390 to "lay off" the investigation of the murder of Patrolman James Kenney.

Approved valuation of the bonds means in reality that the two men have been released under $10,000 each, as the value of the bond by law must be double the amount required as bond.

Both men entered a plea of not guilty to the re-indictment.

They were convicted by a jury when first tried, and a motion for a new trial was sustained when argued before Judge W. H. Spence.

ASSESSMENT SUIT IS FILED

The City of Wellsville and Fred Eckfeld, its city auditor, in addition to County Auditor E. E. Walker and County Treasurer Jo Pike have been restrained from collecting a street improvement assessment on Wells avenue, Wellsville, on property owned by Luther E. Merical and Rachel M. Mercial. A petition seeking this restraining order has been filed in common pleas court, and a temporary order has been granted by the court. The assessment has to do with the recent improvement of that thoroughfare, which is a part of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road.

EXPECT DOZEN BIDS ON NEW HIGHWAY JOB

Salineville-Summitville Work Attracts Contractors.

WILL ACT MONDAY

First Major Road Project to be Started This Year.

Bids for the surfacing of the Salineville-Summitville road will be received and opened by the county commissioners at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. It is expected that at least 12 proposals will be submitted, and as some of the largest contracting interests in the state have been inspecting the plans at the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, it is taken to mean that competition for this job will be keen.

This project is one of several included in the road improvement program approved by the county commissioners several years ago, and resulted in a bond issue of $950,000 being authorized for the county share of the program.

The Salineville-Summitville road is to be surfaced for a distance of 4.60 miles, the top being of concrete. The estimate for the project, should gravel be used as a course aggregate, has been placed at $121,058.82, and should limestone be used as an aggregate the estimate shows $125,527, and should slag be used as an aggregate, the estimate has been placed at $116,590.

It is not probable that the project will be awarded by the commissioners Monday, the rule being that the proposals lay over for one week after they have been tabulated.

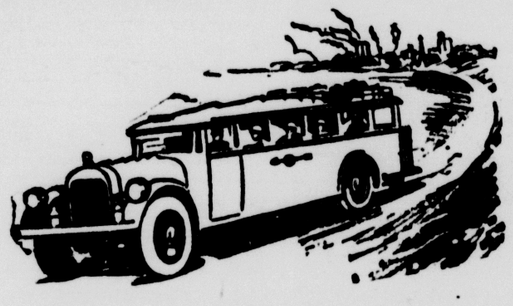

This will be the first of the major road projects to be put under construction this year, and should favorable weather prevail, it is believed the road will be completed within three months of actual work.

Bids for the surfacing of the Salem-Hanover road will be opened by the commissioners January 31, it was announced today.

WELLSVILLE MAYOR WILL FIGHT PROCEEDINGS

FOGO READY TO GO TO MAT IN COURT CASE

"I'll be There," he Says When Petition is Served.

HEARING DELAYED

No Formal Answer on Defendant's Part Necessary.

Following receipt of a copy of the petition filed against him in common pleas court, Mayor W. L. Fogo, today announced he will fight the ousters proceedings to a finish.

"I'll be there," said the city's chief executive.

Merely a copy of the petition, signed by 417 persons, which was filed several weeks ago, demanding that Mayor Fogo be ousted fro moffice, was served upon him yesterday by Sheriff George Wright of Lisbon.

This, according to court officials, is the only step that will be taken prior to the actual hearing of the charges, 10 of which were cited in the petition, filed through Attorney W. H. Spence of Lisbon.

The case will proceed as any other court action. Following the service on the mayor yesterday, the next step will be the assignment of the case for hearing.

No formal answer is necessary on the part of the defendant prior to the hearing of the charges.

Statutes provide that the formal notice to the defendant be made 10 days prior to the trial but the great amount of work already on the court docket indicates, it is said, that the case will not be called for several weeks.

ELKS CAPTURE OVERTIME DECISION FROM DAMASCUS HERE, 38-34

HIGH SCHOOL PASSERS DROP TWO CONTESTS TO SALEM SQUADS

QUELL LEAGUE FOES AND HOLD TO TOP PLACE

Practically Clinch Loop's First Half Championship.

IN a sensational battle that went five minutes over time before a final decision was rendered, Bill Powell's Elks last night turned back the Damascus Quakers, their most dangerous rivals, and practically clinched their hold on the first half championship of the Columbiana County Amateur basketball league with two weeks' play remaining.

The game was fast from the first whistle to the last, faster than the Salem engagement here in which the noted "Red" Matticks and his mates bit the dust. Both teams were off in their shooting, especially their efforts from beneath the basket, due largely to the fact, doubtlessly, that guards on both teams were rushing and harrying the rival forwards every second of play. There were no "pose" shots. The ball did not tarry long in the finger tips of team marksmen. It came and was gone, from any and all angles and scoring, as a result, suffered to a certain extent.

The desperate battle waged by the visitors in the final half to overcome a 10-point lead held by the Elks at the half way mark and to tie the score at 32-32 when the whistle ended the engagement after 40-minutes of warfare, and then the thrilling rally by the Elks to sink two fouls and two field goals in the extra five minutes of play provided the top spots of the clash.

Practically all of the lodge players had a hand in the scoring, showing a well balanced attack against the Quakers, as contrasted with the offensive movements of the visitors, which were placed largely in the custody of Gilbert and Grice, the two forwards, with Center Oesch backing them up.

Grice played a brilliant game, especially under the basket, serving as an excellent foil for the performances of Center Wilde, of the Elks.

This pair battled through the game to a deadlock for field goal honors, each bucketing the leather seven times. In the matter of total points Grice had the advantage of three which he counted from seven foul chances while Wilde was unable to make the ball drop in four attempts from the free zone.

This, however, did not detract from his floor game. He was guard, center and forward, all in one, the key man in most of the offensive drives against the Quaker goal. On one occasion he brought the crowd to the edge of their seats with a lone handed dash with the ball from one end of the floor to the basket at the other end, there to deposit it neatly inside the ring.

The "pony express" crew Pusey and Wilson, were almost lost from sight at times when the hulking forms of the stalwart Damascus representatives towered above them in scrimmage, but they lost few opportunities to add a point or so when it was needed. McConville, Canne and Clark starred at the guard positions, Clarke substituting for Canne in last period. "Chuck" McConville was first to score at the beginning of the game and was the lead-off man in the overtime period when he dropped a foul to break the 32-32 deadlock. Damascus went into a 5-4 lead for a few minutes in the opening quarter but was trailing, 11-7 at the end of the period. The Elks found the basket in the second period for 14 more points and the reckoning was 25-15 at the half. The gap narrowed in the third period as the Quakers began to creep up, with the count 29-25, Elks, at the intermission. A rally enabled the visitors to erase the difference altogether and when the timer's whistle blew again, the score was knotted up. Grice sank a field goal in the extra period, but fouls by McConville and Pusey and field goals by Wilde and Pusey clinched the contest.

Movin' On

GRIMES

BURLEIGH GRIMES, recently traded to the Giants by the Dodgers in a four-cornered deal, will look odd in his new "uni." He wore a Brooklyn one for nine consecutive seasons.

Most folk know that, but may not know that the Detroit Tigers, always hard up for pitchers, owned him for seven days in 1913. Bought him from Otumwa, June 12, 1913, and sold him to Chattanooga, June 19.

He played with Chattanooga, Birmingham and Richmond clubs before the Pirates bought him Aug 8, 1916, from Birmingham. He remained with that club through 1917 campaign but his total five victories didn't impress Pirates bosses, who let him go to Brooklyn with Ward and Mamauz for Stengel, Cutshaw and some dough.

Six of his nine years with Brooklyn he was a winning hurler. Best years were 1920-21-24, when his won and lost records were 23-11, 22-13 and 22-13. During his major league career he has won a total of 163 games and lost 140. Won 12 and lost 13 last season.

WOLCOTT STOPS SHUFFLE IN 7TH

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Those lucky few who wagered odds that the Shuffle Callahan-Wolcott Langford fight would result in a knockout were around collecting their bets today.

Langford, pride of Chicago's black belt, had Callahan, Chicago Heights eight, so badly beaten in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout here last night that Referee Miller stopped the fight.

Callahan has a powerful right with which he has knocked out many careless fighters. But he has little or no defense, and a clever boxer who can keep away from his pile-driving swings always beats him. That is what Langford did.

RED AND WHITE QUINTET LANDS 31-17 DECISION

Miss Imbrie Stars as Girls Lose 30-15 Game to Rivals.

PLAYING one of the strongest teams that has represented Salem high in recent years, Coach N. F. Lorah's scholastic passers last night were defeated by the Red and White, 31 to 17, while the locals were losing to the Salem lassies 30 to 15.

Both Salem teams were "on" and played bang-up contests all the way through.

Forward Rush and Center Campbell led the attack for the Red quint, the former collecting six field goals and the latter four and four fouls.

The East Liverpool lads played their Salem foes to a standstill, as far as scoring is concerned, in the first period, when the count stood 4 to 4, but Rush, Campbell and their crowd definitely located the hoop in the second quarter and ran the tally up for 18 more points, the score standing 22 to 4 at the half.

The Blue and White added four more points in the third quarter while Salem was getting five and outscored the north county five, 9 to 4, in the concluding period. But that second quarter did the damage that could not be overdone.

English led the East Liverpool scorers with three field goals, McKeever collecting two.

A record crowd of approximately 1,500 fans jammed their way into the high school auditorium, the S. R. O. sign being hung out early.

Tonight the local lads are back on the home court, meeting Youngstown Chaney, a new opponent on the Blue and White schedule.

Miss Imbrie, East Liverpool forward, provided the thrills for Ceramic City fans in the preliminary between the girls' teams. Besides playing an excellent floor game, she starred as the chief team scorer with six field goals and one foul for a total of 13 points, all but two of the squad's entire score. Miss Corns contributed the other field goal.

The Salem sextet led, 8 to 3, at the end of the first quarter and widened the gap to 14-5 at the half. The locals outscored the home lassies in the third period when the tally stood 19 to 11, but lost out again in the concluding quarter when the Red and White piled up 11 more counters.

153 Aquatic Stars On Their Toes for Catalina Marathon

AVALON, CATALINA ISLND, Cal., Jan. 15.—Avalon, summery little metropolis of the sea-snatched isle of Santa Catalina, 21 miles out in the Pacific from the nearest point on the southern California coastline, was today temporary capital of the wide domain of Neptune.

The occasion was the gathering on the island of 153 swimmers of all ages, sizes and degrees of ability and from all parts of the United States and Canada to compete in the $40,000 Wrigley ocean marathon between Isthmus Cove, near here, and Pedro Point, Los Angeles harbor.

The race was expected to get under way at 11 a. m.

Sixteen of the contestants are women with such swimmers as Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmel, of Howard Beach, Long Island, N. Y.; Clarabelle Barrett, Pelham, N. Y., and Lottie Mayer of Chicago, Ills., given an edge over the rest of the feminine field and a good chance of finishing.

Norman Ross, entry from Casa Del Mar, Chicago, ruled a heavy favorite among the men entrants even though at the last minute he announced he would not don the usual coat of grease considered necessary to protect him against the numbing cold of the Catalina channel waters.

SALINEVILLE AT CHESTER

Wilde's Teams to Figure in Double Bill Tonight.

Coach Ray Wilde's Chester high school athletes, idle, with the exception of regular practice workouts, since their victory last week over Irondale, are set for their clash tonight with Salineville on the Chester court.

The two teams will put on a double header, with both the girls' and the boys' squads in action, the preliminary beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Salineville has been hitting a fast stride to date with victories over several good district teams and are expected to provide the West Virginians with plenty of opposition.

Ty and Tris Fired For Third League Ideas, Says Writer

Dropped From Organized Baseball Because They Were Accused of Having Negotiated With Promoters of Proposed New Major Loop.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times, in a copyrighted article today says:

"Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were dropped from organized baseball because they were accused of negotiating with promoters of a proposed third league to rival the American and National leagues.

"When a high American league official was quoted in the Times yesterday as saying Cobb and Speaker would never again appear in the American league he added, 'the half has never yet been told.'

"Well, here is the other half.

"Cobb and Speaker were dropped from organized baseball, not because they were accused of having made a bet on a ball game back in 1919, but because they are suspected of having flirted with eastern promoters with the idea of forming a third league to run in opposition to the American and National leagues.

"The incident of 1919 was merely a subterfuge. That Commissioner Landis does not consider matters that happened back before he took office as significant today is indicated by the fact that immediately after he dipped his brush in whitewash and cleansed the players accused of having thrown games in 1919, he immediately recommended to the rules committee of the majors a statute of limitations. He recommends that incidents happening prior to the time he took office in 1926 be outlawed.

"I have it on the best authority that more than a year ago it was charged that both Cobb and Speaker did confer with the men who were trying to establish a league to rival the American and National.

"It is understood that it was proposed that each of these stars should lead a team in the new circuit.

"Ty Cobb himself seems to verify this suspicion. He told the writer that he knew he was slated to go more than a year ago and that only the testimonial banquet given him in Detroit, when he was lauded to the skies, saved him for the time being.

"This new information doubtless will explain why both Landis and Johnson have been so reticent regarding the status of Cobb and Speaker. They have tried, doubtless, to suppress the real reason for the dismissal of the two foremost players fearing that it might lend encouragement to prospective rivals of the major leagues.

"When correspondents wrote to Cobb, immediately after his withdrawal from the Tigers, and suggested that he and Speaker head a movement for a third league, Ty told this writer that he would not consider it.

"'It would take too much money,' he said, 'and it is not practical.'

"That remark alone would indicate that he had studied the situation and knew what he was talking about.

"The alleged acts of Ty and Tris that brought about their banishment took place early in 1926 or late in 1925."

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 15.—Although Tris Speaker referred all interviewers to his attorney, William H. Boyd and the latter said "It's all news to me," local baseball fans seized on the report from Detroit that Speaker and Cobb had been fired from baseball for flirting with a third league as being more than gossip.

During the period between the end of last season and Speaker's retirement, they point out, local newspapers carried many hints of the possibilities of a third circuit. Speaker's name was mentioned prominently in connection with these reports.

Iowa Hopes Dimmed.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Jan. 15.—Iowa's hopes for a basketball championship this year were given a setback last night when the Michigan Wolverines broke through the Hawk defense to a 41-22 win in the first conference game played in Iowa's new field house.

The new building was dedicated before the game by Gov. Hammil.

Harrigan and Petrie shared the high scoring honors of the game with five field goals apiece while McConnell, all-conference guard last year, led the scoring for Iowa with seven points.

Calhoun and Snowden were the chief point makers for Wellsville, the former collecting three field goals and the latter four.

Tonight the two Mingo Junction squads, boys' and girls,' will be in action on the Wellsville court.

ELKS CAPTURE OVERTIME DECISION FROM DAMASCUS HERE, 38-34

HIGH SCHOOL PASSERS DROP TWO CONTESTS TO SALEM SQUADS

Practically Clinch Loop's First Half Championship.

IN a sensational battle that went five minutes over time before a final decision was rendered, Bill Powell's Elks last night turned back the Damascus Quakers, their most dangerous rivals, and practically clinched their hold on the first half championship of the Columbiana County Amateur basketball league with two weeks' play remaining.

The game was fast from the first whistle to the last, faster than the Salem engagement here in which the noted "Red" Matticks and his mates bit the dust. Both teams were off in their shooting, especially their efforts from beneath the basket, due largely to the fact, doubtlessly, that guards on both teams were rushing and harrying the rival forwards every second of play. There were no "pose" shots. The ball did not tarry long in the finger tips of team marksmen. It came and was gone, from any and all angles and scoring, as a result, suffered to a certain extent.

The desperate battle waged by the visitors in the final half to overcome a 10-point lead held by the Elks at the half way mark and to tie the score at 32-32 when the whistle ended the engagement after 40-minutes of warfare, and then the thrilling rally by the Elks to sink two fouls and two field goals in the extra five minutes of play provided the top spots of the clash.

Practically all of the lodge players had a hand in the scoring, showing a well balanced attack against the Quakers, as contrasted with the offensive movements of the visitors, which were placed largely in the custody of Gilbert and Grice, the two forwards, with Center Oesch backing them up.

Grice played a brilliant game, especially under the basket, serving as an excellent foil for the performances of Center Wilde, of the Elks.

This pair battled through the game to a deadlock for field goal honors, each bucketing the leather seven times. In the matter of total points Grice had the advantage of three which he counted from seven foul chances while Wilde was unable to make the ball drop in four attempts from the free zone.

This, however, did not detract from his floor game. He was guard, center and forward, all in one, the key man in most of the offensive drives against the Quaker goal. On one occasion he brought the crowd to the edge of their seats with a lone handed dash with the ball from one end of the floor to the basket at the other end, there to deposit it neatly inside the ring.

The "pony express" crew Pusey and Wilson, were almost lost from sight at times when the hulking forms of the stalwart Damascus representatives towered above them in scrimmage, but they lost few opportunities to add a point or so when it was needed. McConville, Canne and Clark starred at the guard positions, Clarke substituting for Canne in last period. "Chuck" McConville was first to score at the beginning of the game and was the lead-off man in the overtime period when he dropped a foul to break the 32-32 deadlock. Damascus went into a 5-4 lead for a few minutes in the opening quarter but was trailing, 11-7 at the end of the period. The Elks found the basket in the second period for 14 more points and the reckoning was 25-15 at the half. The gap narrowed in the third period as the Quakers began to creep up, with the count 29-25, Elks, at the intermission. A rally enabled the visitors to erase the difference altogether and when the timer's whistle blew again, the score was knotted up. Grice sank a field goal in the extra period, but fouls by McConville and Pusey and field goals by Wilde and Pusey clinched the contest.

Wisconsin Swimmers Win.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—University of Wisconsin's swimming team defeated the University of Chicago tankers by the margin of one point in the dual meet at Bartlett gymnasium last night. The score was 35 to 34. The diving event, won by the Badgers, decided the close meet. The Maroons won the 150-yard relay event in 1:18, which ties the present conference record.

Movin' On

BURLEIGH GRIMES, recently traded to the Giants by the Dodgers in a four-cornered deal, will look odd in his new "uni." He wore a Brooklyn one for nine consecutive seasons.

GRIMES

Most folk know that, but may not know that the Detroit Tigers, always hard up for pitchers, owned him for seven days in 1913. Bought him from Otumwa, June 12, 1913, and sold him to Chattanooga, June 19.

He played with Chattanooga, Birmingham and Richmond clubs before the Pirates bought him Aug 8, 1916, from Birmingham. He remained with that club through 1917 campaign but his total five victories didn't impress Pirates bosses, who let him go to Brooklyn with Ward and Mamauz for Stengel, Cutshaw and some dough.

Six of his nine years with Brooklyn he was a winning hurler. Best years were 1920-21-24, when his won and lost records were 23-11, 22-13 and 22-13. During his major league career he has won a total of 163 games and lost 140. Won 12 and lost 13 last season.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Willie Harmon, of New York, knocked out Meyer Cohen, of Holyoke, Mass., in the seventh round.

Nick Testo, of Troy, N. Y., knocked out Jock Fleming, of Scotland, in the third round.

Pete August, of Connecticut, knocked out Frankie Gargano, of Staten Island, in the fourth round.

Ty and Tris Fired For Third League Ideas, Says Writer

SAFETY, ECONOMY—

in this anti-freeze that 8,000,000 motorists used last winter

COLDER WEATHER COMING!

The U. S. Weather Bureau predicts a drop in temperature for this locality. Be sure today to put Pyro Denatured Alcohol in your car.

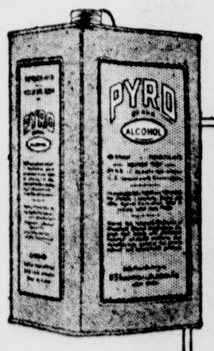

NO matter how cold it gets, there's an easy way to protect your car. Put Pyro Denatured Alcohol in your radiator, today.

You can't buy equal safety cheaper—you can't buy greater safety at any price. The Pyro Proportion Chart shows how much Pyro is needed to give you complete protection at any temperature. Ask the garage man for your copy.

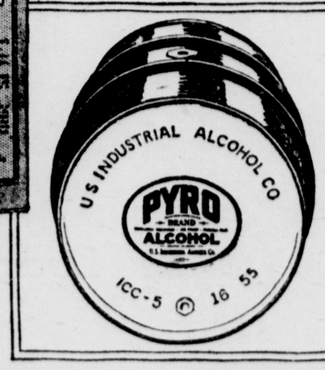

Pyro Denatured Alcohol is the best anti-freeze for any make of car. No fear of rotting hose connections or corroding metal parts. 40% of all motorists in the United States last winter used Pyro.

Almost every garage and filling station handles Pyro. Stop and get some today. See that the garage man takes it from the blue-labeled drum bearing the Pyro name. After the first filling all you have to do is to add a little Pyro and water from time to time to take care of the natural evaporation. Take home a gallon can of Pyro for this purpose.

A Pyro-Meter tells you in an instant whether you have enough Pyro in your radiator. If your garage cannot supply one send us $1.00 and we will mail it promptly. U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., 110 E. 42nd Street, New York

Also in convenient gallon cans. Keep a can of Pyro in your garage

Pyro Denatured Alcohol is sold in bulk from drums bearing the blue Pyro label

As re-sale prices are established by the public—not by the manufacturer—they may be accepted as an accurate reflection of public experience.

Could there be a more eloquent tribute to the stamina and enduring worth of Dodge Brothers product?

LOAN COMPANY HOLDS MEETING

Officers and Directors Elected at Annual Session Here.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hancock County Building and Loan association held this week in the First National bank building, the following directors were elected: W. C. Lynch, Fred B. Lawrence, Robert R. Hobbs, Thomas R. Timothy, J. C. Cunningham, George E Conkle, E. V. Wehner, Robert A. Douglass, Frank Finley, A. L. Skinner, W W. Thompson, John E. Newell, Perry L. Rigby, J. S. D. Mercer, W W. Ingram and Austin Stewart. The latter was named to succeed his brother, the late Thomas Stewart. Ingram is a new member of the board.

The directors organized and elected the following officers: President, John E. Newell; first vice president, A. L. Skinner; second vice president, Frank Finley; secretary-treasurer, Robert A. Douglass; assistant treasurer, Harry Hobbs; assistant secretary, Ady L. Webber; attorney, W. W. Ingram.

The company now has assets of $3,711,272.84. During the past year dividends to share holders amounted to $170,307.59, and an extra dividend of one-fourth per cent was paid for the last six months, making a total of six and one-half per cent for the year.

24 FIRE DEATHS DURING DECEMBER

State Fire Marshal C. L. Topping reports 24 people fatally burned last month, a larger number than for any other month in the five years he has been directing the department and probably a record monthly fire mortality since the department's institution. In November 19 deaths were recorded and that set a near high record up to that time.

Fifteen of the December casualties are charged to unscreened open fires. The victims last month were mostly children whose clothing ignited from homef ires which they approached too closely. Eleven of the 15 are dead, one is still living and there is hope for the recovery of another. Two others were very seriously burned.

The palm for lowered fire waste in West Virginia in 1926 will go to Huntington, it is stated by Mr. Topping. The Cabell city's percentage decrease will be much greater than for other communities in its class and doubtless will exceed the reduction per cent of any city or town in the state.

Huntington's fire losses in 1926 totaled $188,459, a reduction of $715,599 from the total of $904,058 in 1925. The abnormal loss in 1925 was due to a series of serious fires, one of them the burning of the Zenner-Bradshaw department store.

More than 50 agricultural and home demonstration agents opened their annual conference at the university agricultural extension division headquarters today.

SERMON GIVEN BY EVANGELIST

Rev. C. E. Rostofer Talks on "Baptism" in Christian Church.

Rev. C. E. Rostofer, of Ashtabula, O., who is conducting revival meetings in the First Christian church, had as his subject last night, "Christian Baptism."

He spoke in part as follows: "Baptism should be thought of and received in the same spirit in which we arproach prayer and the Lord's supper. We must not over emphasize or undervalue it in the plan of salvation. Baptism is the consumation of the process by which men and women become disciples of Christ According to the new testament teaching when penitent believers were baptized they put on Christ, were baptized in his name and then wore his name. No one is called a christian in the new testament until after the ordinance of baptism was observed."

"I am not exalting baptism above faith and repentence, for without true vital faith and repentence baptism is an empty ceremony. God has provided three great changes in the process of becoming a christian; the change of heart, change of life and change of state or relationship. He has also provided three agencies to produce these changes. Faith is provided to effect a change of heart which involves the intellect, affections and emotions. Repentence changes the life and baptism changes the state of or relationship to God."

Rev. Rostofer will have as his subject tomorrow morning, "The New Man," while in the evening he will speak on the topic, "The Church Glorious." Bible school and the Young People's society will meet at the usual hours.

DUNDEE WINS FROM ROBERTS

Punches Way to Victory After Knockdown in Fourth.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—For forty breathless minutes last night the immortal Stanley Ketchel lived again in the flesh and blood and fighting heart of a young Italian from Baltimore, who, hit on the jowl in the first few minutes of the fourth round by Eddie Roberts in San Francisco, came back even as Ketchell did against Billy Parke, and in getting the decision at the end of ten rounds, showed that he had about everything except the ability to swallow an ivory cue ball.

First of all, he was as tough as an old suspender and proved it in the fourth round when Roberts crossed the dreaded right that ended matters so abruptly in their first fight. It almost was a repetition of the San Francisco disaster, for Dundee forsook the perpendicular for a long count and then weaved his way to the welcome bell.

This was Robert's big chance and he gave it a Snodgrass, muffing the play badly, although he had upward of two minutes in which to finish a man who didn't know whether he was in a fight or a frolic.

Second, Dundee had speed and he used it all the way to left hand the other gent silly. Third, he was ringsmart and always was one jump ahead of the game, barring that slight misunderstanding in the fourth round.

Dundee Forces Fight.

Finally, he could punch and Roberts knew it full well before the end of the tenth round. For Joseph boldly went to the attack whenever possible, which was often, and only the bell saved Roberts from a knockout in the tenth.

In all the writer gave Dundee seven rounds, called two for Roberts and another was a stand-off.

The recapitulation sounds the part of an easy victory for Dundee but if you think that way, you wrong me deeply. It was one of the greatest fights the town has known in years and there wasn't a moment when Roberts didn't have a white man's chance.

The boy is a puncher, sure enough, and he can block very neatly with his chin without visible annoyance. His legs have the slightly convex trend of the true hitter and the gent has real speed, particularly that right. But he can't accept them with any degree of equanimity in the body and it was Dundee's punching below that pared Robert's speed down to a saunter in the late rounds.

The first three went to Dundee without particular incident, barring the fact that Roberts scored with an overhead right near the end of the third, giving due warning of what was to come.

Dundee Is Floored.

It came early in the fourth. Roberts led with a left and, as Dundee headslipped the punch, the Coast entry followed through with a right cross. It was the same punch that knocked Joseph into the right field stands at the first fight and Joseph tendered it exactly the same reception. He flopped like a stuck balloon, arms outflung and head canted back on the canvass at a sickening angle.

But Dundee was in there to win this fight and no man ever won on the floor. So he got up and, goofy as he was, he managed to slip another right lead and hold on. Right after the break, Roberts scored with a right and left and then followed in to finish it but, somehow, he had punched himself out and toward the end of the round Dundee was fighting back so well that he hooked Roberts back on his heels with a left. So much for Roberts, at least at this stage of his development. A first class fighter couldn't have missed in this round. The rest, with the exception of one round, was all Dundee for he became progressively stronger as Roberts became weaker and it was a good bet that the latter wouldn't have lasted much beyond the tenth.

However, no sprinter ever scored a victory at 101 yards and since last night's fight only was scheduled to go ten rounds, they paid off at that point. And while they were about it, they were forced to concede that this young man, having rocked Dundee with rights in the seventh, eighth and tenth, was just as dangerous then as he was in the first.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Now go to the opposite extreme in holding the head still—and we find it in the putting stroke. And what head-moving does to the ball in putting serves as a fine example why the head should be held fixed when making the swing for the long shots. The first precaution in putting is to keep the head absolutely still, for the least movement of the head lets the body move with it—the head is heavy—and the putt will invariably show the result of it. To keep the head still during the stroking of the ball for the putt is more difficult than the player might suspect. To accomplish it I like a rather wide stance for the putt—not very wide, but enough spread of the feet to thoroughly anchor the body. It is well to add to this a push against the left foot during the address. This will have a tendency to hold the body weight back and keep it still while the blade is swung. Then all you have to do is see the blade go through the ball. This will teach you, too, to avoid being in too great a hurry to look up and see the ball go.

LOAN COMPANY HOLDS MEETING

Officers and Directors Elected at Annual Session Here.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hancock County Building and Loan association held this week in the First National bank building, the following directors were elected: W. C. Lynch, Fred B. Lawrence, Robert R. Hobbs, Thomas R. Timothy, J. C. Cunningham, George E Conkle, E. V. Wehner, Robert A. Douglass, Frank Finley, A. L. Skinner, W W. Thompson, John E. Newell, Perry L. Rigby, J. S. D. Mercer, W W. Ingram and Austin Stewart. The latter was named to succeed his brother, the late Thomas Stewart. Ingram is a new member of the board.

The directors organized and elected the following officers: President, John E. Newell; first vice president, A. L. Skinner; second vice president, Frank Finley; secretary-treasurer, Robert A. Douglass; assistant treasurer, Harry Hobbs; assistant secretary, Ady L. Webber; attorney, W. W. Ingram.

The company now has assets of $3,711,272.84. During the past year dividends to share holders amounted to $170,307.59, and an extra dividend of one-fourth per cent was paid for the last six months, making a total of six and one-half per cent for the year.

24 FIRE DEATHS DURING DECEMBER

State Fire Marshal C. L. Topping reports 24 people fatally burned last month, a larger number than for any other month in the five years he has been directing the department and probably a record monthly fire mortality since the department's institution. In November 19 deaths were recorded and that set a near high record up to that time.

Fifteen of the December casualties are charged to unscreened open fires. The victims last month were mostly children whose clothing ignited from homef ires which they approached too closely. Eleven of the 15 are dead, one is still living and there is hope for the recovery of another. Two others were very seriously burned.

The palm for lowered fire waste in West Virginia in 1926 will go to Huntington, it is stated by Mr. Topping. The Cabell city's percentage decrease will be much greater than for other communities in its class and doubtless will exceed the reduction per cent of any city or town in the state.

Huntington's fire losses in 1926 totaled $188,459, a reduction of $715,599 from the total of $904,058 in 1925. The abnormal loss in 1925 was due to a series of serious fires, one of them the burning of the Zenner-Bradshaw department store.

SERMON GIVEN BY EVANGELIST

Rev. C. E. Rostofer Talks on "Baptism" in Christian Church.

Rev. C. E. Rostofer, of Ashtabula, O., who is conducting revival meetings in the First Christian church, had as his subject last night, "Christian Baptism."

He spoke in part as follows: "Baptism should be thought of and received in the same spirit in which we approach prayer and the Lord's supper. We must not over emphasize or undervalue it in the plan of salvation. Baptism is the consumation of the process by which men and women become disciples of Christ According to the new testament teaching when penitent believers were baptized they put on Christ, were baptized in his name and then wore his name. No one is called a christian in the new testament until after the ordinance of baptism was observed."

"I am not exalting baptism above faith and repentence, for without true vital faith and repentence baptism is an empty ceremony. God has provided three great changes in the process of becoming a christian; the change of heart, change of life and change of state or relationship. He has also provided three agencies to produce these changes. Faith is provided to effect a change of heart which involves the intellect, affections and emotions. Repentence changes the life and baptism changes the state of or relationship to God."

Rev. Rostofer will have as his subject tomorrow morning, "The New Man," while in the evening he will speak on the topic, "The Church Glorious." Bible school and the Young People's society will meet at the usual hours.

The Latest—Not Too Good.
A Coolidge Miracle.
Free Love Is Old.
Optimism and Work.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

THE very latest, yesterday, from Mexico was not pleasant. Mexican mobs in Guadalajara fired shots into the air, indicating annoyance, when stopped in their march against the American consulate. Mexican students "will fight and die with Calles in this battle against the northern Colussus." Uncle Sam is Colossus.

Ninety-nine are killed in Mexican rows.

The Russian lady envoy to Mexico indignantly denies the truth of President Coolidge's statement about Bolsheviki propaganda in Latin America. She says, "we are innocent."

This country sends the fifth regiment of Marines to concentrate at the Quantico naval base, for "emergency" service. Two more fighting ships are sent to Nicaragua, and La Prensa, powerful Argentine paper, reflects Latin-American public opinion in callin President Coolidge's message "an imperialistic utterance."

Dispatches from Mexico City report business almost paralyzed, a serious crisis threatening the Mexican cabinet, and Mexico. Many say that the fate of President Calles is in the hands of President Coolidge. Others think a conflict between Mexico and the United States inevitable.

It is dangerous to attack religion and oil, the heart and the pocket, at the same time.

NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN CLEMENTS, of Missouri, says, "Nothing short of a political miracle can stop President Coolidge's re-nomination and re-election in 1928." The only question is: Does President Coolidge want the nomination?

As for a miracle defeating President Coolidge you can imagine even miracles that are impossible. No miracle could make a six weeks old calf in five minutes, for if made in five minutes it wouldn't be six weeks old.

THE son of a Methodist bishop demands a divorce because his wife believes in a new, strange, abhorrent theory of "free love."

It is strange, it is abhorrent, but it is not new. Monkeys entertained that theory before there were any men on earth. And lower animals had it before monkeys came. That is part of the animal inheritance out of which men have been slowly climbing, pushed upward by the institution of marriage and the strong will of women.

CHICAGO DEATH TOLL NOW 13

Frigid Blasts Blow in From Canadian Northwest, Following Course Taken by Snowstorm.

As the cold wave gripped Columbiana county last night, two fires—one in East Liverpool and another in Lisbon—occurred, causing a loss estimated at $6,000.

Home of William Fitzjohn, Pleasant Heights, was badly damaged by a blaze at 9:30 o'clock while members of the family were attending a motion picture show. Neighbors summoned the fire department.

The fire appeared to have started around the stairway in the front room of the two-story frame dwelling. The interior was badly damaged, furnishings being a total loss. While firemen had not determined the cause of the fire, it is supposed to have originated from an overheated stove or defective flue.

Sub-Zero on Hilltop.

The Lisbon fire, which occurred about 6:30 o'clock last night, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Iacco in West Water street. Mrs. Iacco was visiting in the home of a neighbor when the fire started.

The Lisbon volunteer firemen responded to the alarm, but the house was doomed before they arrived. The house was a two-story, five-room structure.

The mercury registered close to the zero mark on the hilltop and outskirts of the city early today, although temperatures ranging from 10 to 15 degrees above were reported in the downtown section.

COURT UPHOLDS TENNESSEE BAN ON TEACHING OF 'APE' THEORY

State Supreme Judges Rule Anti-evolution Act Valid.

FIGHT GOES ON

Fine of $100 Instead of $50 Means Re-trial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 15.—Tennessee's famous anti-evolution law was held constitutional by the state supreme court today, but the conviction of John Thomas Scopes, Dayton school teacher, was ordered reversed because Scopes was fined $100 instead of $50.

The high court remanded the case to the circuit court for retrial on ground that Judge John Raulston violated the Tennessee constitution in fining Scopes more than $50.

Justice Green, who read the decision, recommended that the case be nolle prossed because Scopes had left the state. Justices Cook, Chambliss and Green assented, while Justice McKinney in a dissenting opinion declared the act was invalid.

Overrules Assignment of Error.

The majority opinion overruled all assignments of error made by Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone and other lawyers for Scopes and held that the legislature has the right to determine what should be taught in state tax-supported schools.

In announcing the majority opinion, Justice Green said:

"If teaching is hampered by the anti-evolution act, the misfortune must be charged to the legislature.

"The act, however, requires the teaching of nothing, but forbids the teaching of evolution of man from a lower order of animals."

The decision was read shortly after court convened this morning nearly two years after the passage of the much discussed bill.

Universal Interest Shown.

Only four of the five supreme court judges who heard the review of the case here in May, 1925, were on the bench, the fifth, Judge Frank Hall of Dresden having died last summer. The four justices who made the decision were Chief Justice Grafton Green and associate Justices C. P. McKinney, W. L. Cook, and A. W. Chambliss.

The decision marked another step in one of the greatest legal battles of all time, in which such leading figures as William Jennings Bryan, Darrow, Malone and others took a prominent part. The case is now expected to go to the U. S. supreme court.

Universal interest in the law was shown by the crowd that jammed the supreme court room today. University professors mingled with flappers and learned lawyers rubbed elbows with laborers.

"I'm Sorry," Defendant Says.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—"I'm sorry that the court upheld the constitutionality of the anti-evolution law," John Thomas Scopes, young graduate student at the University of Chicago, who started the legal battle over the "monkey" law while a high school teacher, declared here today.

CHURCHES URGE PRESIDENT TO AVOID BREAK WITH MEXICO

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman Opposes Force in Nicaragua, Too.

Suggests Settlement of Difficulties by Arbitration.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The American government "would welcome" the mediatory efforts of any Central American republic to settle the political differences between Dr. Juan Sacasa and Adolfo Diaz, rival claimants for the presidency of Nicaragua, which have drawn intervention by the United States marines, Secretary of State Kellogg said today.

Thus far, it was learned, three Central American governments, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Salvador, have proferred their good offices to adjust the Nicaraguan civil war. Of the three, the offer of President Jiminez, of Costa Rica, appears to have the best chances for success, as Dr. Sacasa has been quoted as favorable to it.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Enormous pressure, some of it political, some of it economical, and a great deal of it religious, is being brought to bear upon President Coolidge not to sanction a break in relations with Mexico.

Ever since the Mexican-Nicaraugan situation became delicate, the White House and state department have been in receipt of the normal flow of the country's opinion, pro and con, but since Mr. Coolidge sent his special message to congress there has been literally a bombardment of Washington by mail and telegraph. Hundreds of such communications have come from Protestant church organizations in the last few days.

The general tenor of these protests was pictured today in a lengthy statement made public by the federal council of churches, through Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of New York, president. The Protestant churches of the country, Dr. Cadman said, are opposed to any application of force to settle difficulties in either Mexico or Nicaragua.

"The churches of this country," the manifesto set forth, "insistently urge that the present difficulties between the United States and Mexico be settled by some form of arbitration. Loose talk of military intervention

GOVERNMENT WARS ON RUM RINGS ON EVE OF EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OF PROHIBITION IN UNITED STATES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the center of a whirlpool of public controversy, political and otherwise, prohibition will celebrate its eighth birthday in the United States tomorrow

Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, enforcement chief, said upon his assumption of office 18 months ago that if he didn't make material progress in "drying up" the country in a year he would resign.

Today the general declined to make any prediction as to the present state of aridity or the future of the dry movement, other than to say that the government had a well organized dry machine and that provided legislation recommended to congress is enacted a long step can be taken in closing sources of bootleg supply.

On the eve of the anniversary government undercover agents were completing the investigation of a dozen large smuggling rings, representing a capitalization of close to $100,000,000.

One ring alone is said to be operating on a payroll of $1,000,000 a month. Profits of the various rings have been enormous.

The rum trust likewise has a heavy overhead a big item of which comes under the head of bribery of public officials. Evidence that literally millions of dollars in bribe money has been offered to officials is in the hands of authorities.

Details of a number of the smuggling rings will be presented to federal grand juries within the next few months, according to officials. Most of the evidence was obtained through the operation of government "speakeasies" in New York and other cities, which have been the butt of a strong attack from congressional wets.

Most of the liquor conspiracies center in New York. A few operating on the gulf and Pacific coasts and around Chicago are under investigation.

Congressional attacks against the government's prohibition policy were characterized at the treasury as an effort to embarrass enforcement. The objective of the congressional attacks was declared to be repeal of the prohibition laws on the grounds that they cannot be enforced.

Andrews indicated that no change in policy is contemplated.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who just submitted a report to congress on the denaturing policy, is now preparing another report on the activity of undercover prohibition agents. Andrews has asked the undercover chief for a full review of his activities and indicated that a voluminous report would be sent to congress.

What's What in Washington

Congress In A Hodge Podge, Speaking Of Party Alignment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Politically the senate has been a hodge podge for a long time. Democrats have voted with Republicans; Republicans with Democrats. Party lines have meant next to nothing.

JOHN Q TILSON

In the house of representatives its been possible to guess with some certainty who was who.

Now the two parties have been shuffled in the lower house, too, until it's impossible to tell 'em apart.

The newspapermen will hold their regular business session Tuesday morning when they will be addressed by Dr. Thomas L. Kibler, Prof. Howard C. Green, George V. Sheridan and T. T. Frankenberg.

Other speakers to be heard during the two day sessions are Congressmen James T. Begg, James Wright Brown, Paul C. Siddall, Walter S. Brain, Don L. Tobin, A. E. McKee, and Roy L. Durstine.

WHAT is a Republican these times, anyway? What's a Democrat?

Well, it seems fair to call Calvin Coolidge a sample Republican. He was elected president as one.

So suppose we assume that a man who supports Coolidge's policies is a Republican; that a man who fights them is a Democrat.

What, then, are you going to say of 76 Republican representatives who cast anti-Coolidge votes the other day? What are you going to say of 58 Democrats who voted on Coolidge's side?

About all you can say is that you're all mixed up.

IT was on the navy bill.

President Coolidge favored a bill authorizing 10 new cruisers. So far, so good. There was no particular kick on that.

But congress can "authorize" cruisers until it's black in the face and it means no new ships unless money's appropriated, too, to build them.

The "big navy" folk said, "Besides this authorization, we want cash, actually to build three boats."

"No," said President Coolidge. "The authorization's enough."

AT this the "big navy" crowd bucked.

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, introduced an amendment to the "authorization" bill. Its purpose was to provide money for a start on those three cruisers.

Bear this in mind:

Tilson is Republican leader in the house of representatives. When a Republican boss like Tilson defies a Republican president it's some sensation.

TILSON'S amendment was beaten. The president won.

But the president ought to have won, if he'd had his party's full support, with everybody else against him, by a margin of 50-odd votes. As a matter of fact, he won by only 2.

He'd have lost but for Democratic help.

Herein lies another sensation. Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, Democratic leader, tried to throw his strength to Tilson. If he could have done it Tilson, not the president, would have won. But about a third of the Democrats refused to follow him and saved the Republican president.

THUS the result was:

1. A kick in the slats for the president, for winning by only two votes instead of half a hundred or more and for having such big men in his party as Tilson and Speaker Longworth opposing him.

2. A sock in the eye for Tilson, for being able, as Republican leader, to line up only 76 out of his nominal force of 247 representatives.

3. A poke on the nose for Garrett, for being shown up as a Democrat leader with about as unreliable a following as Tilson's, on the Republican side.

As for party alignments, they're mussed up now for fair.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

Gripping the rope, he began to pull himself up. I watched him breathlessly. Fortunately, the leg held, though when he was still a foot from the top, I felt the rope give. He made a desperate effort and had just succeeded in clutching the stone edge of the parapet when the rope fell back on top of me. Putting his weight on his hands, he scrambled over the edge and dropped out of sight.

A moment later his head reappeared and he whistled softly. Something pattered down beside me, and, feeling for it, I discovered it to be a coil of rope. In an instant I was clambering up the well side and was quickly pulled over the parapet by Claypole as I came to the top.

"Gee, that was a bit of luck," he exclaimed. "I found that rope right beside the parapet."

We found ourselves, two dripping objects, in the courtyard of the house, with not a soul in sight. We crept stealthily along the wall which ran down to the fence seuparating the court from the vines and soon had the advantage of their friendly cover.

We went down the hill, crouching between the vines, till we were brought up short by a low stone wall, along which I had come in the taxi some hours previously. Here we paused a moment to get our breath, while my companion cautiously lifted his head and reconnoitered. It was not quite dark, and I judged it to be between enight and nine o'clock.

"Don't think I'm acquainted with this broad highway," said Claypole, withdrawing his head and dropping down beside me.

"It's the main road out of Geneva," I answered. "We've only to follow it and we're bound to make the city in the end."

"That may be so," replied Clapole. "But we can't just take an evening promenade down the main trunk road to that delectable city. No Sir, the whole bunch of toughs will be after us in less than it took a bar attendant to hand you out a highball in the good old days before Old Glory went dry. We got to fix 'em somehow."

He was pulling large tufts out of his mustache, which soon came away altogether, and I watched him in amazement.

"I think," he said, noticing my astonishment, "that this face fungus will no longer grace the homely countenance of Cyrus P. Claypole. Better, perhaps, at this moment to face the world as my Maker made me."

It was only when his mustache was completely off that I realized why his appearance had previously puzzled me with its contradictions. The eyes and mouth and chin were now all of one pattern, alert and eager. This was no longer the face of a harassed schoolmaster from the Middle West.

"Well, we can't stay here," I said, reverting to the problem of our escape. "They'll be searching the vines."

Indeed, at this instant a sudden outcry came to our ears from the house that we had just left. I looked round and saw on the top of the hill lanterns beginning to bob and flicker, while voices mingled with the rustling vine leaves, as the wind, which was rapidly falling, stirred them intermittently.

Claypole turned to me abruptly.

"How far's the lake from here, anyway?" he asked.

"It can't be more than a few hundred yards," I replied. "The road runs right along beside it, as I noticed this afternoon."

"Then we'll hit a trail for that sheet of water and look for a boat."

With a quick glance to right and left, he dropped over the wall and I followed him. We ran across the road nad were soon deep in a small spinney. No sooner were we well beneath its welcome cover than I heard sounds of a car. We turned round and dropped flat, our eyes on the road.

A moment later, a big open touring car passed us in the direction of Geneva, headlights full on, and traveling slowly. There were three men in the car, one at the wheel and two on the footboards on either side. The man nearest to me I recognized. It was Baldassare Marce.

"Cry havoc and let slip the dogs of war," whispered my companion, who, I soon found, was fullest of quotations when most excited.

"The sleuths have their noses well to the ground, and it won't take them long to find we're not on the road."

We turned at his suggestion to our right and began moving through the spinney between the lake and the road, in the direction of Lausanne. A few minutes, sharp walk brought us to the edge of the lake, where our farther progress was barred by a stiff wire fence. There were no signs of any boat on the foreshore and we wonder ed what to do next.

To ou. left, about a quarter of a mile away, several lights were to be perceived, which we took for those of a village.

"We must make that burg somehow," said Claypole. "They'll hardly dare to touch us if there's any one about."

I agreed, and we continued along the fence for about a hundred yards, till we found a place where it was practicible to cross it. We scrambled over, Claypole tearing his trousers in doing so.

"Rend your hearts but not your garments, as the pastor said when he found a trouser button in the collection plate," chanted Claypole, as we stumbled on. "If my old Ma could see my pants, she wouldn't stop talking for a week."

We hurried along, being careful to avoid any open spaces, and, after climbing two hedges, arrived at a little lane down which we turned to the right. We were about half-way along it when we heard sounds of an automobile descending the lane behind us. The lane was very narrow, and in order to let it pass we should have had to draw ourselves close back to the hedge. Claypole, however, had no such intention.

"Get busy, friend," he said. "For we've got to beat it," and he started running at a remarkable pace down the road.

I toiled after him; but it was a hopeless task. The car was gaining on us rapidly, the headlights creeping up along the hedge on either side till I felt them on my back. Then I heard a shout from behind.

At that instant, however, we turned sharp to the left round a corner, and found ourselves suddenly in front of an open-air cafe with tables, at which a number of people were seated, drinking the white wine of the country. The cafe was situated at the end of a stone jetty which ran out into the lake, and over the shore end of the jetty was a placard with the name "Creux de Genthod" printed on it.

For a moment I was bewildered at the unexpected view of the cafe with the customers, so normal and familiar, taking their ease with no though at all for the desperate events in which we so strangely figured, and I stood still, mentally at a loss and physically dazed by the lights and sounds of the place.

It was then that I felt Claypole's hand on my arm.

"Quick," he said. "The steamboat."

He gripped me by the wrist and pointed as he ran. I looked ahead and saw at the end of the jetty the lights of a small lake paddle steamer. Her nose was toward Geneva, and she was just casting off. Sounds of music came from her upper deck, and she looked an altogether admirable refuge, suggesting tourists and Thomas Cook, and all that was most gregarious and commonplace.

CERAMIC BOOKS 'GREAT GATSBY'

Lois Wilson and Warner Baxter Head Cast.

"If the Jazz Age has done nothing else, it's made mothers popular," according to Lois Wilson, featured along with Warner Baxter, Neil Hamilton and Georgia Hale in Herbert Brenon's new Paramount production, "The Great Gatsby," which is at the Ceramic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

"Only a few years ago," says Miss Wilson, "no young actress would play a mother role. It was a sure sign that she was definitely out of the ingenue class. The lady was automatically relegated to that slightly innocuous, care-worn decrepitude of haus-frau. Night clubs, the Charleston and Prohibition cocktails were taboo. Her hair was gray—and small wonder. The parts written for her were likewise drab and dull. Even though a mother in real life, that fact had to be guarded like some terrible secret.

"Now all is different. Playing the part of a young mother is merely a tribute to one's versatility. The jazz mama, similar to Daisy Buchanan which I play in 'The Great Gatsby,' is often more attractive than her daughter. I can name several examples of screen players who have recently been cast in mother roles: Aileen Pringle, Alice Joyce, Florence Vidor, Esther Ralston, and numerous others. They are all young and beautiful and will be playing flappers or ingenues tomorrow. So much for the much-decried Jazz Age. Its destructive energies have broken down the line between age and youth, with results that are by no means confined to the mimic world of stage and screen."

Motor Courtesy Prizes

A motor courtesy week, with prizes offered to the most courteous drivers and other prizes offered to the persons who report the courtesies of the courteous, has been inaugurated in Cleveland with its automobile show. Among the acts listed as "courtesies" are stopping to let children cross the street; driving carefully through crowded areas; keeping in the proper traffic lanes and giving more swiftly moving vehicles the right of way; driving quietly by hospitals; parking properly and "behaving on the street as one would in his drawing room before guests."

Well, it is a fine thing to emphasize courtesy in driving. It is perhaps a safe guess, however, that the judges in this particular contest are going to be overwhelmed with names of candidates for the prizes, if all courteous drivers are reported.

It is probably true in every community that there are more courteous drivers than the other kind. A very few discourteous drivers can make a great deal of trouble for everybody else and can do considerable mischief on highways. If the latter type predominated, however, driving would come to an early end, because there would be worse accidents, more smash-ups and impossible jamming everywhere.

The Farmer's Day

It isn't right, according to the Saskatchewan Farmer, that farmers should have to stick so rigidly to their eight-hour day—"eight hours before dinner and eight hours after."

"Why should not the farmer," it asks, "take full advantage of the new freedom given by new and improved agricultural machinery, and shorten his hours of work so that he may be able to enjoy life as he goes along, instead of wearing himself out, so that when he finally breaks down with rheumatism, spavined knee, heaves and his digestion pretty well gone from too hastily gobbled meals which he did not have time to digest, he may creep to town to linger on a few years as a retired farmer."

All right, why not? Henry Ford has the same hunch, and shows the way.

Ford's plan seems to be that the farmer should do all his farm work in about four hours in the morning, with the aid of tractors and accessories, then eat a leisurely meal—not a "dinner" but a light lunch—and spend four hours in the afternoon working in a Ford factory set up at the nearest waterfall or a Ford assembling plant in the nearest village. From which eight hours' labor the farmer would derive such emolument that he would be in the market every few months for another Ford car or truck or tractor.

It's a beautiful and luring ideal. Yet somehow, as you think it over, a suspicion may arise that agriculture isn't quite so simple as that.

Clearing House For Road Facts

A Highway Engineering and Research Council is being organized in Ohio for the purpose of gathering and studying the latest, most economical and efficient road practices. It is to act as a clearing house for information about the construction and testing of good roads. Ohio is pioneering in this effort to make the experience and wisdom of any part of the state available to all the rest of the state.

The council will be headed by an authority on foundations and soils. Its personnel will include a city manager, a service director, a former state highway director, members of legislative highway commissions, a park board director, professors and laboratory men, engineers, contractors and road material men. All shades of opinion will be represented as well as all types of road-building experience.

If the new council does its work well and its findings are promptly used to the best advantage by state and local communities in building and maintaining roads, Ohio should experience a great advance in the quality of its highways. Better roads at most economical costs are worth working for.

Cars And Cars And Cars

This automobilious country, already saturated with motor cars, gained 10 per cent last year, bringing the present registration up to about 22,300,000. This means one car for every five people. According to the usual reckoning, it means an average of one car per family.

By all the prophecies of previous years, it should mean supersaturation. Yet the manufacturers keep right on producing new cars at the rate of several a minute, and the public keeps right on absorbing them. Two and a half millions a year are needed now merely for replacements, as the old wrecks fall by the wayside. And probably a couple of millions more can be sold this year, to people whose consciences are already weakened as they figure out the installment possibilities.

A new idea is rapidly taking possession of the American family mind. Having got used to one car, the family needs two cars. Anybody can see what this is going to lead to.

"Automotive industry" is right. That industry is self-moving, and can't be stopped.

Business, after a slight holiday lull, is speeding up again. But it can't fool the professional pessimists.

A MATTER OF PHYSICS.

In the old wicked days when there were saloons on the corners, there was in Chicago a corner saloon-keeper who sold his whiskey, at the standard price of ten cents a throw, but was proud of the excellence of his wares and hated a customer who poured too freely.

A stranger walked in one day and by way of beginning flattered the proprietor so palpably on the worthiness of his stock that the latter became suspicious. The customer then laid down his dime and asked for whiskey and bitters. He was given the bottle and a glass and while the proprietor turned to get the bitters the caller performed a scientific job by filling the glass brimful without spilling a drop or overflowing.

The saloon-man surveyed the handiwork calmly and then stuck a plump middle finger into it.

"What are you doing?" demanded the patron sharply.

"Making a hole for the bitters to go in," said the saloonist.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANLEGES, Cal., Jan. 15.—Last night we dined with Tom Mix. Nothing has struck me as so symbolic of movie romance as the view of his lighted palace on the hill from the spiral approach to his estate. Fifteen years ago he was an obscure $20 a month cow-puncher.

Now he receives a $15,000 salary check every Saturday night. Mix is indeed a strange mixture. He clings to the virginal argot of the corral, mixing an occasional metaphor and splitting a quondam infinitive—I suspect he does it purposely.

Yet underneath one detects a shrewdness and challenging artistry convincing enough that he is equipped for the movies with something infinitely greater than a horse. His high ceiled, blue domed drawing room is a phantasmagoria of incongruity still oddly artistic.

On the walls are gleaming pistols in fan shaped sprays, racks of quick functioning guns, mounted saddles—one owned by Madero, another by Brigham Young — bison and deer heads and polished long horns. In one corner his desk piled high with fan mail and the swankily racked telephone of perfidious old Albion.

Also a brace owl eyed English butlers in ramrod dignity. Mrs. Mix is a cultured English lady, and the chief interest of each is centered on their precocious little dauhter Tommy. There is a tennis court and a hidden swimming pool, which may be emptied almost immediately by pressing a button at Mix's bedside.

This in case roystering Hollywoodites decide upon a midnight bathing party without formality of invitation. In the center of the dining room table is a fountain rising and falling and shot with hidden, colored lights. The delicate lace tablecloth was so fragile I determined that if a spark from my cigarette despoiled one thread I would repair to the drawing room and pistol myself behind a large and translucent ear.

At the entrance hall departing, I playfully slipped on his cream colored, four dimpled hat. He disappeared and presented me with one. He buys them by the crate.

Movie stars have almost given up golf and substituted tennis therefor on private, secluded courts. They were so assailed on the links by brash salesmen attempting to sell them real estate, stocks, bonds, automobiles and such that the game was shorn entirely of its relaxing quality.

Los Angeles should broadcast the marvel of Magnetic Hill. It comes very nearly being the eighth wonder. The hill is a natural optical illusion. To all appearances a motor car with dead engine will run up hill and it requires top speed to make the car mount what seems to be down hill. Only by pouring a bucket of water do you realize the apparent up grade is down. Topography of the surrounding country is responsible for the illusion.

The biggest literary colony, next to New York, is here. This does not include the army of movie writers. Scores of scribblers have found they can market their wares from here as well as back east. The latest newcomer is Don Herold who has moved his family to Altadena.

It is not easy to leave this sunshine and warmth in the dead of winter. The tourist finds he wants to linger awhile.

But this tourist must be on his way and in a few days will welcome that familiar cry: "Manhattan Transfer—next stop Grand Central."

And to visit Hollywood and only mention Chaplin, Doug and Mary in a fleeting last paragraph such as this is, I submit, an achievement.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Increasing Use of Cotton.

WASHINGTON, D. D., Jan. 15.—In their efforts to relieve in a measure the situation created by the over-production of cotton with a resultant demoralization of cotton prices, manufacturers have been endeavoring in every way possible to create a wider demand for cotton fabrics. To this end they are giving especial attention to the problem of making cotton fabrics more attractive.

They want American women to use cotton as extensively as they have come to use silk, and their selling experience has convinced them, they say, that they can not expect to do this until they have produced cotton fabrics that will arrest the feminine eye and gratify the feminine desire for goods that is soft and clinging and that conveys to the wearer a feeling of luxury and comfort. In short, it has been made evident that the American woman will wear silk until she finds something that she likes better.

One of the notable accomplisnments in this direction is the comparatively recent development of celanese, a fabric that looks like silk, feels like silk, and, it is claimed, wears like silk, along with possessing some desirable qualities that silk does not possess. Among the last is its price. In its various uses, milady can be clothed entirely in celanese from the cloche that crowns her head to the toes of her hose.

Selanese has been confused with rayon by many buyers, and even by some mill men and converters, but it is not a rayon. As one authority on cotton and its products explains, all the well known varieties of rayon consist, fundamentally, of cellulose—cotton linters or wood pulp—which has been converted into a cellulose thread by dissolving it in some solvent, squirting the solution through a fine hole, and regenerating, the original cellulose changed only in physical appearance.

Cellulose Also Used for Celanese.

The manufacture of celanese yarn also starts with cellulose, but instead of proceeding immediately with its solution and regeneration, the cellulose is put through a lengthy chemical process which changes its nature entirely and converts it into an entirely different chemical substance, cellulose acetate. It is this substance which is ultimately transformed into the new yarn which differs fundamentally in chemical composition from any of the varieties of rayon, making its properties as a textile yarn wholly dissimilar from those of rayon.

For instance, celanese is not dyed with the dyes used for rayon or cotton, because by reason of its different chemical composition it has no affinity for those dyes. Special dyes therefore had to be developed, and these colors dyes calanese and will not dye cotton or rayon.

The chemical nature of celanese also gives to the yarn a very high resistance to water and acid, it is claimed. A test of the effect of sea water on all the know textile fibres proved that while every other fibre was completely disintegrated at various periods up to one month's immersion, the celanese fibre after six months' immersion had no marine growths on it, nor had it suffered an appreciable loss in strenth. This quality, it is believed, opens up to celanese a big field in the lingeries and other trades the products of which must be subjected to repeated washings, and its resistance to acid enables perspiration-proof fabrics to be made from the yar.

Another physical property induced by its chemical composition is the high elasticity of the yarn, which gives to fabrics woven from it the soft, silk-like feel impossible to obtain with any other fibre except natural silk and likewise gives celanese fabrics a length of life equal to those made from natural silk, although the actual tensile strength of natural silk is considerably higher than that of celanese.

The new fabric has the deep soft lustre of real silk, and in handling celanese the dyer has complete control of lustre. If he wants a highly brilliant surface he can have it, if he desires a soft lustre he can get that finish, and if he wants an absolutely dead flat finish like cotton but with the feel of silk a simple process will obtain that.

Still another selling talk that is used for celanese is that it possesses an extremely high insulating power. Thus it is claimed that the same garments made of the fabric will keep the body of the wearer warm in winter, when the body temperature is higher that the outside, and similarly keep the body cool in summer when the outside temperature is the higher.

How It Helps Cotton.

The new yarn helps cotton, obviously, because it increases consumption since it is made from cellulose which in turn is made from cotton linters. Then, too, the yarn is used in connection with cotton in weaving a combination fabric. From a mechanical point of view, it is claimed, celanese yard is ideal for use in a cotton loom, and properly handled, weaves as easily and more perfectly than cotton Mill men like its uniformity, for any imperfections discovered in goods woven part or in whole of celanese can be traced directly to the mechanical imperfections in the loom or errors in weaving adjustment.

For use with cotton one of the first things about the new yarn that appeals to the manufacturer is the advantage that can be taken of its individual dyeing properties. Celanese yarn cross-dyes with cotton in the same bath. A cotton-celanese mixture lends itself to an infinite number of color combinations, and these combinations can be had without the necessity of using the dyed yarn.

Also it is said that the manufacturer can weave or knit his cotton-celanese mixture and then hold it in his warehouse to be dyed to order, solid or any contrasting shades desired by his customers. Thus the mill need never be caught with thousands of yards of goods or hundreds

Dear Friends:

Every day in the year is a birthday to somebody. Maybe there's a birthday this week in your own family.

If that's the case you can find a birthday gift here at Reese's Store that will just exactly suit from Grandma down to the Baby. Last night I read a jewelry advertisement that said their gifts combined practical utility with unique artistic charm. That's exactly what ours do, only I can't say it quite so beautifully.

We have some mighty pretty vanity cases that would solve the gift problem for wife, sister or lady friend.

That's just a suggestion.

Austin Wylie's Orchestra Appears In Canton Tuesday

Austin Wylie and his orchestra will play at Moonlight Ballroom, Canton, Tuesday evening, Jan. 18.

Wylie is the dean of Cleveland dance orchestra leaders. He has played in Cleveland for dancing longer than any one else here. He has established a record for continuous playing at one place.

On the twentieth of next month Wylie begins his fifth year at the Golden Pheasant restaurant.

He took up study of the violin when about seven years old and like most boys didn't like to practice. He had no idea of making it a profession, for he went to business school and then took a position in a railroad office.

One day he was asked to fill in on a dance engagement which put the germ of the idea into his head. He was an excellent violinist an had the natural directorial ability so he was put at the head orchestras playing at Anderson's old dancing academy about 10 or 12 years ago.

When war was declared Wylie visited Europe with the famous 135th division. He and Ev Jones, who has since become famous for his novelty radio programs, formed a jazz band in the army and spent thirteen weeks entertaining the boys "over there," after the armistice was signed.

Returning to Cleveland, he teamed up with Elmer Wahl, banjoist, forming the popular Wylie-Wahl orchestra which has played successfully at the Crystal Slipper for two seasons.

GIFFORD PINCHOT, RETIRING FROM GOVERNORSHIP OF PENNSYLVANIA, DESCENDS ON WASHINGTON

(Gifford Pinchot, retiring governor of Pennsylvania, militant, a Roosevelt progressive and constantly in the public eye, has created some wonderment in Washington by his decision to go to the national capital in the interest of old Rooseveltian policies. To learn first hand what Pinchot expects to accomplish, the Review-Tribune sent its New York correspondent, Alexander C. Herman, to Harrisburg, and the interview, the first given by the retiring governor on his future plans, is printed below. It is exclusive.)

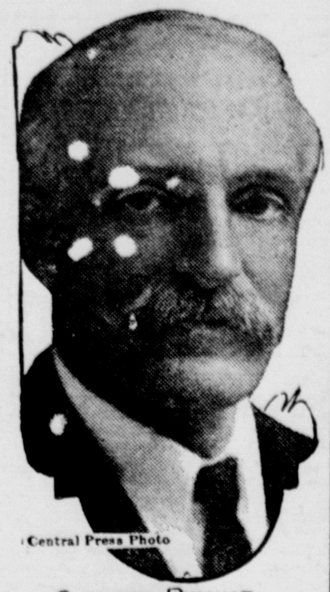

By Alexander C. Herman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Gifford Pinchot, retiring from the governorship of Pennsylvania, moves on to Washington—and far sighted political wise-acres there are furrowing deeply their brows.

It soon will be open season for presidential booms and bombs. There is no telling who may spring one, or throw the other.

That is why the presence at the capital of this outspoken critic of bad government, who revolutionized the administration of a corrupt, boss-ridden state in just one term of office, begins to loom into national importance.

Pinchot, naturally, dismisses such interpretation with modest gesture.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

"I am just going back," he says, "to my first love—that of conservation."

Broader Field Now.

But that term, which he and Roosefelt originated to cover the preservation of forests and later, of all natural resources, now is applied to other fields, too.

"It includes," the governor admits, "child welfare, public health—and the like."

"Good government, too?" I asked him.

Snap came the reply:

"One cannot conserve that which does not exist."

And therein lies the key to concern in certain political quarters. For Pinchot is relentless in his attack on what he deems wrong.

In his own state he assailed the government machinery "administered chiefly for the service of political insiders, while the people got little more than the crumbs which fell from the rich men's tables."

Outspoken on Prohibition.

In the Coolidge government, he lambasts the prohibition attitude.

"The federal service for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, with its entire control over the sources of illegal drink, has broken down not only disgracefully, but dishonestly," he says.

"Prohibition can be enforced.

"If the federal government had any intention to enforce this law, this country would be completely dry."

He minces no words about political ring corruptness, developed "as a part of the business of certain great moneyed interests.'"

"There is today," says Pinchot "no question more vividly before the people of the United States than election frauds. I speak from practical experience. My own administration would never have come into office except for an error of judgment on the part of the Philadelphia gang as to how many votes they had to steal."

Another Concise Opinion.

In the senatorial election he refused to support Vare, his party's candidate.

It is this conciseness of expression, and fearlessness, that is making party leaders quake a bit. For Pinchot has never forgotten his allegiance to the Progressivism of Roosevelt.

"The general let-down of moral standards is not limited only to our politics," he says. "It is evidenced in all phases of our national life. What we need is a return to the simple virtues and direct point of view of Roosevelt—a Renaissance of the Ten Commandments.

"Progress in the right direction is being made. People are willing to talk things over. There is a realization that the control of special interests is not the best in the world.

"But the shifting is slow, from that point of view so well expressed by Bill White: 'Nobody cares what happens to anybody except to an investment broker.'"

A knock at the door interrupted the interview. The game commission was making its last call. Felicitations. . . . And a warm good-bye.

The governor returned beaming.

"After all, I am sorry to have to give a' this up. It has been four years of fun."

Silence. Then a broader smile.

What He'll Do.

That's what he likes best to do—and that is what he will do just as soon as he can get away from Washington. There, officially, he will devote himself to a study of the Muscle Shoals project (Pinchot was one of the first to fight Henry Ford's offer), the Boulder Dam agitation, the development of giant power, and the grazing in the national forests.

Then, he'll run up to Milford, Pa., where he has a fine home, good streams and a 2 3-8-ounce rod that lands 'most everything.

If needs be, he could bring this rod down to Washington. But Pinchot still is undecided whether there is any good casting after further office or nomination.

MEXICAN LAND LAWS ARE CLARIFIED BY WRITER

CALLES SYSTEM OF TENURE IS COMMUNISTIC

Farm Land Below Rio Grande Held by State.

ALLOTMENTS MADE

Kellogg Denounces Mexico's Plan as Confiscatory.

By Charles P. Stewart.

(With a view of learning in an unbiased manner the exact nature of the Mexican land laws, which have created an international problem of grave nature, the Review-Tribune had its Washington correspondent, Charles P. Stewart, examine them from beginning to end. His report—made by a man who has passed much time in Latin America as an American correspondent—is presented below. It is written in a careful, interesting, easy-to-read, unprejudiced manner.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Is the Calles government of Mexico communistic?

Secretary of State Kellogg has made the charge over and over again. How much is there in it?

The answer to the question hinges on the present Mexican land laws. If they're communistic, then the government is communistic, for the government is trying to enforce them. If the laws are not communistic, then the government is not, for its land laws are the only thing about Mexico that, by any stretch of the imagination, can be interpreted as savoring of communism.

Mexico's system of land tenure, from before the Spanish conquest up to 1874, undoubtedly was communistic, in a way.

That is to say, the farm land was held by the state.

An Example is Quoted.

When a young Indian married and wanted to set up an establishment of his own, he applied to the authorities of his village or town for an allotment of land. He always got it, for the country was not sufficiently crowded not to afford room for everybody.

There was a choice of land, of course. The young couple was at liberty to take the best it could find, provided it was unoccupied. It was also welcome to as much as was available, upon one condition.

It must all be cultivated by the family to which it was granted.

As soon as a landholder permitted any part of his farm to go uncultivated, that part was automatically open to occupancy by another applicant.

If a farmer could only make half a dozen acres productive, that was all he could keep. If he could make 1,000 acres productive, it was his so long as he kept it productive.

Ideal for Agriculturists.

The average holding was of about 15 acres. That was about all one head of a family could farm unaided. He was under no temptation to take more since he would be sure to lose it.

This system was ideal for the agricultural masses.

It was unsatisfactory, however, to capitalists who saw an opportunity to enrich themselves still further by the acquisition of vast acreages in fee simple.

Accordingly, in 1874, a law was passed requiring all farm holders to register these holdings within a specified period under penalty of eviction, and setting up a new system by which the land might be re-acquired, as soon as vacant, in unlimited area.

The Mexican peasantry was almost wholly illiterate. Notices of the new land requirements were perhaps posted conspicuously enough, but practically none of the small farmers could read them. Few were aware of the necessity to register. Few, consequently, did so, and promptly upon expiration of the stated period almost the entire agricultural population of the country found itself landless.

The forfeited farm immediately passed into the hands of great lords of the land, whose former independent cultivators were transformed, at a stroke, from free farms to peons, hardly removed from a state of actual slavery.

Difference of View.

Under present laws the Calles government is attempting to restore the old system. It is this attempt which Secretary Kellogg denounces as confiscatory and communistic. The Calles contention is that it seeks only to restore stolen property to its original owners.

The dispute over the petroleum land laws is slightly different in form.

The Spanish conquerors established the principle that all minerals vested in the crown. The same rule was carried over into the days of Mexico's independence. Even holders of land were not entitled to mineral deposits beneath its surface except upon the governments' terms.

The terms were not and are not onerous; are, in fact, milder than those governing mineral claims in the United States. They always, however, have prevented the outright acquisition in perpetuity of Mexican mineral deposits. The system was one of leasing and neglected claims were and are open to relocation.

Under the Diaz regime an exception was made as to oil and coal deposits. They had not originally been thought of as valuable. As soon as they became so, the law was made to provide that they might be acquired as ordinary private properties.

Oil and Coal Category.

In 1917 the Diaz exemption was repealed. Oil and coal were placed in the same category as other minerals. They may be developed upon conditions which are not so severe but that fresh claims are constantly filed. They are, however, available only upon a leasehold basis.

But the new law of 1917 is not retroactive. All owners who, prior to that year, secured legal titles under the then law are confirmed in them. The Calles government's sale demand on them is that they file their titles, as deeds are recorded in this country. If they are valid, they stand. If they prove defective, of course, claimants under them are in the same position as any other claimant under a defective title.

It is reported that Count Salm, from Europe, who married a daughter of the Standard Oil, Miss Rogers, will withdraw all claims against the lady and her father for balm in the shape of $325 000.

Old Bible times are no more. Mrs. Potiphar walked away with a piece of Joseph's coat. Count Salm walks away with a piece of Standard Oil change. And the mother must allow him to see his dear little boy. Very touching scene in modern domesticity.

Overrules Motion For New Trial in City Court Action

Motion for a new trial in the case of the Liverpool Paint and Wall Paper company against George Peters in which the plaintiff was awarded The motion waso etaoinshrdlu $158.95 this week by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley was overruled today. The motion was filed by Foulks and Stevenson representing the defendant.

Arguments for new trials were heard in the cases of Mary Allen, Toronto, against Edward F. Arnold, of West Third street, and also of Chris Panalopolous, Klondyke, against Valentine Neiser, both of which were decided in favor of the defendants at trials this week. The judge reserved his decisions.

either in Nicaragua or Mexico, finds no suport among the church groups.

"Now is the time for the United States to give concrete reality to the prophetic utterance of President Coolidge in his Omaha address in 1925, when he declared that 'our country has definitely relinquished the old standards of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding.'"

As regards the specific dispute with Mexico over the land and petroleum laws, Dr. Cadman said, "there is room for an honest difference of opinion. This statement is at decided variance with the views expressed by Secretary of State Kellogg, who has held that the laws are confiscatory on their face and indefensible from the standpoint of principle.

Arbitration Tribunal.

With this inflow of pressure from church organizations not to break with Mexico, and with Senator Heflin (D.) of Alabama, publicly charging on the senate floor that Catholic organizations are seeking to "bring about war with Mexico" there has crept into the present acute situation a religious aspect that is worrying administration officials exceedingly.

Meanwhile President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg maintained today complete silence as to the arbitration proposal advocated by Senator William E. Borah. At the state department, the Borah proposal was not viewed with much enthusiasm. At the White House, President Coolidge declined to answer questions concerning it.

In the opinion of some administration officials, there is already in existence a tribunal which could be resorted to in the land law dispute. This is the general claims commission, set up in the treaties by which recognition was accorded the Calles government, some three years ago. This commission is empowered to deal with all cases involving property rights in Mexico. Inasmuch as the present controversy deals almost entirely with property rights — Mexico's "interference" in Nicaragua being legally a side issue—the availability of the commission to deal with the present controversy is under consideration. The commission consists of one Mexican, one American and one Hollander.

WEALTHY MAN SHOT WHEN HE ANSWERS RING

New York Bachelor Wounded as he Awaits Girl.

BLONDE FAINTS

Apartment House Scene of Louise Lawson Strangling.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The strangling of Louise Lawson, girl singer, was recalled today by the mysterious shooting last night of Snatz Salz, 48, fountain pen manufacturer, in the apartment house at 22 West 77th street where the Texas girl was murdered two years ago.

Salz, who was awaiting the arrival of a girl at his bachelor apartment, was shot at the door by one of two men when he answered their ring. The bullet entered the right side of his back and lodged in the abdomen. He was taken to a hospital where it was said today that he was seriously wounded, but probably would recover.

An attractive blonde, who called at Salz's apartment, shortly after the shooting occurred, fainted when told Salz had been shot. She said she had a dinner engagement with Salz. The girl refused to give her name, but told police she was married. After questioning her for several hours, detectives said they did not believe she had any knowledge of the crime.

Police believed that the two men shot Salz because of jealousy over a woman. They dismissed a robbery motive when jewelry and $4,000 was found in Salz's clothes.

Salz could give police only a vague description of his assailants, who escaped without attracting attention. He said that just before he was wounded, one of the men shouted 'give it to him.'

Salz was well known as a patron of night clubs. Detectives recalled that in addition to the Lawson murder, two other unsolved murders, those of Joseph B. Elwell, bridge expert, and Dot king, Broadway butterfly, took place in this neighborhood.

nacle addition to the main church building at last night's service. The new structure contains 1,920 square feet of floor space which added to the 1,600 square feet in the old church auditorium makes a total of 3,520 square feet in the building. This will seat approximately 880 persons, allowing four square feet for each person. The tabernacle was erected Thursday by volunteer labor.

The church had an active membership of 150 on January 9, the opening day of the Fife campaign. The church property is valued at $10,000. The debt is $550. The cost of material for the indebtedness will be underwritten and nated by men and women under the leadership of John W. Smith. The indebtedness will be underwritten nad paid in 12 equal payments, beginning March 1.

Contributions this week will be used to meet overhead expenses of the evangelistic campaign. A thank offering for the Fife brothers will be given on January 30, closing day of the meetings.

During the coming week two headliner sermons—"Bobbed Hair' and "Let No Man Take Thy Crown," based on the Tunney-Dempsey fight—will be delivered.

The "Bobbed Hair" sermon will be given on Tuesday night when all high school students of the city are invited.

Rev. C. Melvin McKay, pastor of the tabernacle-Church of Christ, said "Everything is now centered on the dedication of the tabernacle at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"We ask the help and prayers of all God's people in this city for the salvation of souls and the unbuilding of all our churches, especially in this part of our city. We feel that this should challenge the fire and zeal of the entire city and believe that it will. The presence and help of our friends is certainly appreciated."

the first sub-zero temperatures of the winter today, as the mid-western cold wave moved in from Illinois to the Bucke, state.

Toledo reported a drop in the mercury to four below zero, and was the coldest point in the state, according to the weather bureau here. Cleveland experienced a minimum of eight degrees above, while Cincinnati, at the other end of the state, recorded a minimum of 3 degrees below.

No relief from the cold weather was promised during the next 24 hours, the forecaster said, although the cold wave was reported moving slowly eastward into West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania.

Cloudy weather Sunday probably will bring snow in parts of the state, with somewhat higher temperatures, the forecasters said.

One Ohio Victim.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 15.—John Franklin Baker, 60, is dead here today an indirect victim of the cold wave in Ohio. He dropped dead in the basement of his home last night while stoking the furnace. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The weather bureau today issued a northwest storm warning, advising of disturbances centering south of Nantucket, and extending from Cape Hatteras to Boston. The storm will move northeastward with increasing intensity, causing north and northwest winds of gale force, diminishing tonight.

Relief for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The toll of the greatest Chicago cold wave since Jan. 21, 1924, was set at 13 today as a slight rise in the thermometer from the official "low" of nine below, bore out the weather man's prediction of more moderate temperatures by tonight. The fatalities were partially due to conditions resulting from the storm but not directly caused by Arctic weather, more than six having resulted from accidents.

The frigid wave blew in from the Canadian northwest, following the course taken by the snowstorm of two days ago. No immediate relief is in sight, according to weather bureau forecasts. The cold wave is expected to follow the course of the storm, reaching the Atlantic seaboard and New England states late tonight or tomorrow.

International Falls Coldest Spot.

The extreme cold centered over the northern plain states. International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border, with a temperature of 27 below zero, was the coldest spot in the United states. Devil's Lake, N. D., reported 21 below.

Beatty Pays Fine When Court Refuses New Trial Motion

Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today overruled a motion for a new trial in the disorderly conduct charge, filed by police against J. C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, and upon which he was convicted December 31. Beatty paid his fine of $25 and costs.

The charge of intoxication, which was also filed against Beatty and upon which the judge reserved his decision, was dismissed. The two charges against Beatty were prepared in connection with an alleged disturbance in the Larkins restaurant, Market street, on Christmas eve.

EARTH TREMORS IN TIFLIS ZONE

TIFLIS, Jan. 15.—An earthquake is reported from Shusha Agdam Zansigur, 100 miles from Tiflis. The populace fled from its homes and spent the night without shelter despite extreme cold. The earthquake was also felt in Tiflis. No casualties are reported.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Railroad stocks were pushed to the front in the short session of the stock market today. Renewal of merger discussion affecting some of the well known transportation systems, with prospects of new combinations of the smaller roads at strategic points, stimulated speculative buying of stocks which have been comparatively inactive of late.

The downward trend in motor stocks continued, the same tendency being in evidence in the high-priced industrial and specialty stocks which led the rally in the early part of the week. General Motors and United States Steel were freely offered in professional speculative quarters, and prices here were inclined moderately downward. The oil stocks made a good showing, good buying being in evidence in Standard of New Jersey Pure Oil, Skelley and Phillips Petroleum.

The common and preferred stocks of Wheeling and Lake Erie, Western Maryland, Chicago and Alton and the reorganized St. Paul road led the activity in the so-called speculative rail group. Wheeling and Lake Erie common advanced to 32, while the preferred stock reached a new high at 58. The Northwestern rails, with Colorado & Southern attained a slightly higher market rating. Great Northern preferred moving up another point to 86½.

The battle of the big railroad interests for representation on the board of Lehigh Valley was reflected in a continuation of the spirited buying of the stock which created such a sensation at Friday's close.

Engineer and Road Foreman Are Blamed For 19 Deaths

Interstate Board Holds Locomotive Crew Responsible for Wreck at Rockmart, Ga. — State Investigates Another Theory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Blame for the southern train wreck at Rockmart, Ga., on Dec. 23, in which 19 persons were killed and 123 injured, was placed today by the interstate commerce commission upon two employes of the road—Engineer Keith and Road Foreman of Engines Pearce.

The commission found, after investigation, that "the failure of Road Foreman of Engines Pearce and Engineer Keith either to have thorough understanding as to the contents of a train order which required the train to take a siding at Rockmart for another train, or failure of Pearce to remember the contents of the order" was responsible for the disaster.

Signal Light Removed.

ATLANTA, Jan. 15. — Aroused by evidence that a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the Ponce De Leon, crack Florida-to-Chicago train at Lindale last night, the Georgia public service commission ordered a thorough investigation today.

The Ponce De Leon is the same train that figured in a disastrous wreck December 23 at Rockmart, resulting in the death of 19 persons.

A preliminary investigation by Southern Railway officials revealed that a 16-foot signal light had been removed and thrown into a nearby sewer, causing the Ponce De Leon to pass through the open switch. The locomotive and three cars left the rails.

J. G. Waitt, engineer of the train, was seriously injured. The station agent declared the light was burning properly a half hour before the derailment.

THREE DAMAGE CASES SETTLED

Long Standing Actions Removed From Common Pleas Docket.

Damage and personal injury cases totalling $60,000 and which have been pending in common pleas court for a long period of time have been settled out of court, according to journal entries just filed.

The case of Joseph Markovich against the Natural Gas company of West Virginia, wherein $45,000 damages was claimed was the first to be settled out of court and at the costs of the defendant.

On October 12, 1925, Mary E. Deming filed a $10,100 damage action against C. V. Rakestraw, of Salem. This also was a personal injury action. This cause has also been settled out of court at the costs of the defendant.

In this connection, Helen B. Deming filed an action against the same defendant seeking $5,200 damages for personal injuries. This was also settled.

ROBERT EWING HANDED FINE

Robert M. Ewing was fined $50 and costs and given a 30-day jail sentence, which was suspended by Mayor Robert Clark of Lisbon on a charge of petty larceny.

Ewing with Roy Santullo of Lisbon are alleged to have taken two tires and a wheel lock from automobiles during a recent evangelistic meeting at the Lisbon Christian church.

Santullo's case is to be disposed of by Juvenile Judge Lodge Riddle next week.

In the case of Lloyd Robusch against Louis Howells, which is an appeal action from a lower court, the court has granted leave to the defendant to file his answer and cross petition at once.

Because her husband, Shelby Carlisle, is now an inmate in the Mansfield reformatory, serving a long sentence upon his plea of guilty to robbery, Mrs. Pearl Carlisle was granted a decree of divorce from her husband by Judge W. F. Lones.

The custody of the children was given in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Carlisle of Jordonville.

of pounds of yarn dyed up in color combinations that have suddenly gone out of style, and mobility of stock is achieved, with the undyed fabric in his warehouse the manufacturer can always dye up quickly and cheaply any portion of his stock to meet the everchanging and often unpredictable demands of fashion.

One of the hurdles that it has been said cotton could never make in a race with silk for woman's favor has been for use in the intimate underthings that in present day fashions must be soft, clinging, and very light, to say nothing of soothing to the feminine form divine. Celanese, it is insisted, puts cotton over in this respect. It has all those qualities, and in addition it wears well, stands up under repeated washing, and never fades or turns yellow. And in the matter of hosiery, celanese yarn is made into an article that should please the most fastidious—just as silky as the silk which it isn't.

Merchants are said to find one virtue in the new fabric, a virtue that recommends it to them mos. highly, aside from the appeal it is making to shoppers, which evidences its marketability. That is, celanese fabrics do not deteriorate on the shelves A merchant can carry his stock almost indefinitely knowing that it will not become shop-worn and fit only for the bargain counter.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

When Winter Comes
Good Elimination Is Essential.

HABITS of life change with the changing seasons. Winter brings us more indoors; we are apt to get less fresh air and exercise, to eat heavier food and to be less active generally. These winter-time habits impose heavier burdens upon our hard-working kidneys.

Sluggish kidney function permits retention of poisonous waste in the blood and makes one an easier victim of winter's colds and chills. Presence of these unfiltered toxins makes itself felt in many unpleasant ways.

One is apt to feel tired, achy and listless—to have drowsy headaches, dizziness and perhaps a dull "toxic" backache. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning secretions.

At such times the use of a stimulant diuretic* to the kidneys is indicated. Doan's Pills act on the kidneys only. Grateful users the country over recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The 'Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

534. Does the Bible say that Christ has the keys to hell (Hades)?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 1:18.

535. What will He do with the keys of Hades (Hell)?

Answer: He will unlock the prison-house of Hades and call all prisoners forth.—John 5:28, 29; Isaiah 42:7.

536. Does the Bible say that Hades will deliver up the dead that are in it?

Answer: Yes. See Revelation 20:13.

537. When the time comes that no more go into Hades and all are called forth from that state or condition, what will become of Hades?

Answer: Hades will be no more. It will be destroyed.

538. What is meant in Revelation 20:14 where it says that Hell (Hades is "cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death?"

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and the text quoted means the destruction of Hades, or the condition of Adamic death. The second death means utter destruction.

539. If Sheol in the Old Testament means the same thing as Hades in the New Testament, does not the Bible say that Sheol is to be destroyed?

Answer: In Hosea 13:14, it says: "O grave (Sheol), I will be thy destruction."

540. Does this same verse (Hosea 13:14) show that Sheol is to be destroyed by bringing all out of the condition of death (Sheol)?

Answer: It does; for it says: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave (Sheol)".

Ellis Tells of Advantage of Journeys To Foreign Lands

True Realities are Faced by Readers Who Turn to Sunday School Lesson on Prayer.

One advantage of long and repeated journeys to foreign lands is that the traveler thus learns to look beneath the surface of the life which at first seemed so novel and interesting. Beginners in travel are absorbed in the strangeness of speech and of clothes and of customs. They pay more attention to a turban than to the head beneath it. "Queer" houses mean more to them than the sort of life that goes on within the walls.

This is the kindergarten stage of travel; the sort of thing that interests the children back home. Doubtless some persons have kindergarten minds, which they never outgrow. Such see only the superficial aspects of their fellows — the clothes they wear, the automobiles they drive, the styles of houses in which they live. Mature observers of life, however, are more interested in what goes on inside a man's clothes than in what he wears; in what sort of thoughts he thinks than in the language he speaks; in his spirit than in his circumstances. For "the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Obviously, for instance, Arabs wear flowing robes and head-rolls and daggers, and have dark skin and a stately mein. More important, though, is the fact that the Arabs of Arabia today have turned anew to their religion and to prayer, as well as to deep-flowing purposes of nationalism. The religious revival in mid-Arabia, led by the Akwan, is one of the portentous phases of present politics. China's turbulent patriotism today is of vaster significance than her pigtails or pride or poverty. Russia's ideas mean more than Russia's markets. Egypt's new national self-consciousness is far more important to the world than her antiquities. The ideas of patriotism that are boiling in the heads of the people of Syria and of the Holy Land outrank their ruins and persisting customs. The sober thinking that is going on in the English-speaking world signifies more than the day's noisy jazz or its battleships. The real life of mankind is its inner life. Things always have been and always will be of secondary importance. Everybody's true identity is spiritual. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." A person's prayer-life really means more to him and to the world than his position in business or in society.

Getting Down To Realities.

So when a score of millions of persons turn this week to the consideration of the Sunday school lesson on prayer, they are facing the true realities. This inner life is none the less real because it cannot be shared even by one's nearest and dearest friend. The man who is alive in his spirit has an identity which even the wife by his side does not apprehend. Nothin else is so important as this unplumbed, unshared experience of the soul. Perhaps it was in recognition of this principle that Jesus said, "When thou hast shut thy door;" and "The Father who seeth in secret." Only God may partake of the intimacy of a man's spiritual yearnings.

Wistfully I have watched uncounted men in foreign lands at prayer—Hindus in Benares; Moslems in the desert; Chinese worshippers in ancient emples; Japanese pilgrims at the Imperial Shrine at Ise; Thibetan monks turning their prayer-wheels, inscrutable Russians in scores of churches all over that vast land; Italians peasants making the rounds of the great churches of Rome; Afghan devotees in St. Sophia—and ever I have wondered about the passion of their prayers. Their tongues and their forms were strange to me; but their upreach toward God was the universal and ageless quest of the human soul. It has been my privilege to visit scores of unearthed ancient temples of many forgotten faiths; and they seem to me to symbolize the race's ceaseless procession of prayer. When a man seeks to find God for himself, he is following the oldest fashion of human nature.

In this unity all mankind are bound together. There have been times when the reality of religion, the sense of the spiritual and the power of prayer, have been for a time denied by large blocks of people. A noisy section of our own era's population is just now engaged in asserting that only the materiai matters. But when we listen to the ether made vocal, almost continuously for a fortnight, with Christmas music; and when dozens of radio stations broadcast prayers and hymns and sermons, and when we read the returns of a nation-wide newspaper census concerning religious belief, we are reassured that the human quest for God is more vocal than ever before.

Seen Across the Years.

"Teach me the patience of unanswered prayer," sang the poet. There is something better than that. It is the patience which waits to see prayer answered. One of the great lessons taught by mature experience is that God is not in a hurry, but that He surely does fulfil His word. "I want what I want when I want it" chants childish selfishness. That sort of praying does not seem to impress God. He gives what we need (often a different matter entirely from what we want) when we need it. In times of meditation I find myself marveling at the way in which the Heavenly Father has quietly and almost imperceptibly granted the deep desires of life. His ways are not our ways; His times are not our times; but, nevertheless, God does fulfil His Father-function toward His children.

So one first lesson to be learned in the school of prayer is patience. Spurgeon once spoke of seeing a weather-vane inscribed "God is love." He accosted the farmer with "Do you mean to say that God's love is as changeable as a weather-vane."

"Not at all;" returned the farmer heartily; "that motto means that God is love whichever way the wind blows." Despite denials and disappointments, despite all adverse seeming, "God is love," and love always answers.

Often forgotten in man's petty self-engrossment, is the tremendous truth of the greatness and wisdom of God. He is on His throne, as surely as we are on our knees. Shall the petitioner impose his own will upon the Sovereign? Has God no kingrights, that He may be commanded by every wilful, undiscerning subject? As the Moslem loves to throw down a prayer-rug on which to pray, so the Christian's prayer-rug, on which he reverently prostrates his spirit, is the word of Jesus, "Father, if it be Thy will." Who would be so foolish, once he has given throught to it, to want anything contrary to the will of the Father who is allwise as well as all-loving?

Places, Postures, Phrases, Practices.

This morning, as I moved about my room, the radio brought the familiar strains of "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed by the usual morning prayer service, broadcast from New York. It symbolized and vocalized the unity of the volume of prayer which every morning flies through the ether of all the world to the heart of God. What lessons of universality the radio is teaching us all! While we ceaselessly marvel at its wonders yet we cannot forget the greater wonders of the ancient wireless of prayer, which has always been in operation between seeking souls and the bountiful Being who is the Source and Center of the universe.

Any place is a good place for prayer: once the Outlook printed a remarkable poem describing a city man's ride in the crowded subway as his daily hour with God. Jesus sought the desert, where it seems natural to pray. Apartness is essential to truest prayer. Any posture is possible in prayer; through the attitude of devotion is itself a symbol of supplication. Prayer phrases, such as Jesus taught in the Lord's Prayer, are desirable; for elevated language lifts up the level of thought; but ever the holiest phrases may become petrified and meaningless. We cannot forget the contrast between the Pharisee's rounded periods and the publican's blunt ejaculation, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"

A cry in need it should be; and an ever-present attitude of the spirit — life's desire directed Godward—but prayer is also a habit of life, a regular practice, as recurring a soul-food as breakfast or dinner. Jesus consistently practiced prayer, and did not reserve it for emergencies. So much a part of His being was the usage of prayer that in His extremity He could say, "Not what I will, but what Thou wilt."

Wellsville Christian Church Organized By Mahlon Martin

First House of Worship, Established in 1843, Was Log Structure in Flats School District.

With a charter membership of about 50 persons, the First Christian Church, of Wellsville, was organized by Elder Mahlon Martin in 1843. The first house of worship was a log structure which occupied a site in what is commonly known as the Flats school house vicinity.

William Wells, who founded the city of Wellsville, deeded the congregation a lot in what was known as Phelps addition, Main street, in 1845, two years after the church had been formally organized. On this site there was erected a church building in the same year. This structure was built under the supervision of Trustees Alexander Campbell, George Martin and Thomas Hamilton.

In 1896 the present building was erected on the Main street site. This building covers the entire lot. In 1924 because of a lack of room in caring for the growing church school the Bright property, adjoining the church on the east, was purchased at a cost of $10,000. This building which was a commodious double dwelling was remodeled inside and connected with the church building and is now used as a church school annex. The church office and pastor's study is located here and the cradle roll, beginners, primary and junior departments also meet there.

Upon the purchase of the annex the entire property was overhauled inside and out. The buildings were given a coat of stucco. The church building was completely cleaned and redecorated. A new and beautiful metal ceiling was placed in the auditorium and an indirect X-ray lighting system installed. This lighting system was probably the most pleasing change that was made.

The church maintains a completely

graded, well manned church school. It is the desire of the church to be of service, to build up the life of the community out of the life of the church.

A complete list of ministers who have served the church in Wellsville not available but following is a list of names of men who have ministered here: Mahlon Martin, Israel Bolton, Eli Reagle, William Beaumont, Mr. Van Horn, Dr. Lucy, Dr. Dite, D. J. White, Henry White, William Baxter, C. P. Cowen, J. M. Van Horn, M. P. Hayden, P. H. Jones, H. H. Tilock, J. A. Lytle, Edward Bowers, H. Newton Miller, W. L. Barnes, W. C. Prewitt, H. E. Sala, C. L. Morrison, A. A. Honeywell, B. R. Johnson, John Nielson, A. O. Henry, J. J. Cole, Thomas B. Shaerer.

The present minister is L. E. Lee.

'Revival of Religion,' Topic of Rev. J. F. Dimit's Sermon

Pastor of First Methodist Protestant Church Refers to Greatest Blessing That Can Come to Individual.

By Rev. J. F. Dimit.

Habakkuk 3:2—"O Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years."

The greatest blessing that can come to the individual, the community, and the nation is a revival of the Lord's work. I think the prophet had this in mind when he prayed: "O Lord, revive they work in the midst of the years." He observed existing conditions. He saw faith on the wane, love cold, morals low, and sin wrecking life and characters. The prophet believed that the remedy for existing conditions was in a revival of the Lord's work.

What is a revival of religion? Rev. W. A. Sunday says, "a philosophical common sense result of the right was of divinely appointed means.' It is an interest in spiritual things. An interest in politics is a political revival. An interest in business is a business revival. An interest in learning is an intellectual revival. Thus an interest in spiritual interests is a religious revival.

A revival of religion has a logical place in the work and service of the church. There is much time given each year to teaching and preaching in the church and Sunday school. The revival meeting is the reaping time. The time when the church centralizes her efforts to influence men and women to make a definite decision for Christ, and seven out of every ten church members have made their decision during special meetings.

When may a revival be expected? The Scriptures answer in no uncertain language, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face and turn from their evil ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their wound." God always keeps his promises. When his people preach and teach the Gospel, when they pray and believe and keep humble before Him. He knows all their sincere efforts and gives a spiritual harvest.

What are the results of a revival of the Lord's work? I am not thinking of some mere emotional or superficial results that some may term a revival. I am thinking of spiritual results. What are they? A deeper interest in the Bible. The quickening of the spiritual life. The church and its services taking precedence over all other things. New faces in the prayer meeting. A closer walk with God. The conversion of sinners. These are the results of a real revival of religion. Therefore in my humble judgment, there is no more worthy cause to which we can give our time and energy than to the promotion of a real revival of religion.

Turkey's "Grand Old Man" Has Competition In Longevity Race

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Zaro Agha, Turkey's "Grand Old Man," who is reputed to be 153, has a competitor in the race for longevity in Teku Oglu Ali Agha, who claims to be 147.

Ali Agha appeared as a witness in a case in the courts here, and the announcement of his age caused a mild sensation. It was nevertheless established to be true.

MAY DIVORCED FROM DECEMBER

Three Americans Given Decrees by Seine Tribunal.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Seine tribunal has granted a divorce to Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, the former Salena Elizabeth Wrentmore.

Harrison was formerly governor general of the Philippines Islands and his marriage to his present wife, who is considerably his junior, occasioned considerable comment in social circles.

Divorces were also granted to Mrs. Lacias Mahon, the former Charlotte Brosby Barnett, who was married at Fort Plain, N. Y., September 1, 1915, and also to John Randall Powelson from Evelyn Allen of 535 West 136 street, New York.

Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, who was Miss Elizabeth Wrentmore of Berkley, California, was the third wife of Harrison. At the time of their marriage she was but 18 years old while her husband was 45. The marriage took place almost immediately upon the issuance of a decree of divorce from his second wife.

Since their marriage the Harrisons have lived almost exclusively aboard, spending a great of time at their home in Scotland.

Harrison was at one time active in Democratic politics in New York state.

WELLSVILLE MAYOR WILL FIGHT PROCEEDINGS

FOGO READY TO GO TO MAT IN COURT CASE

"I'll be There," he Says When Petition is Served.

HEARING DELAYED

No Formal Answer on Defendant's Part Necessary.

Following receipt of a copy of the petition filed against him in common pleas court, Mayor W. L. Fogo, today announced he will fight the ousters proceedings to a finish.

"I'll be there," said the city's chief executive.

Merely a copy of the petition, signed by 417 persons, which was filed several weeks ago, demanding that Mayor Fogo be ousted fro moffice, was served upon him yesterday by Sheriff George Wright of Lisbon.

This, according to court officials, is the only step that will be taken prior to the actual hearing of the charges, 10 of which were cited in the petition, filed through Attorney W. H. Spence of Lisbon.

The case will proceed as any other court action. Following the service on the mayor yesterday, the next step will be the assignment of the case for hearing.

No formal answer is necessary on the part of the defendant prior to the hearing of the charges.

Statutes provide that the formal notice to the defendant be made 10 days prior to the trial but the great amount of work already on the court docket indicates, it is said, that the case will not be called for several weeks.

APPROVE BONDS OF LOCAL MEN

Fusco and Carbicella Released From Jail.

Bonds of $5,000 each have been approved by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine for the release from the county jail of Frank Fusco and Rocco Carbicella, Wellsville, re-indicted by the January grand jury for an attempt to bribe Sheriff George Wright with $390 to "lay off" the investigation of the murder of Patrolman James Kenney.

Approved valuation of the bonds means in reality that the two men have been released under $10,000 each, as the value of the bond by law must be double the amount required as bond.

Both men entered a plea of not guilty to the re-indictment.

They were convicted by a jury when first tried, and a motion for a new trial was sustained when argued before Judge W. H. Spence.

ASSESSMENT SUIT IS FILED

The City of Wellsville and Fred Eckfeld, its city auditor, in addition to County Auditor E. E. Walker and County Treasurer Jo Pike have been restrained from collecting a street improvement assessment on Wells avenue, Wellsville, on property owned by Luther E. Merical and Rachel M. Mercial. A petition seeking this restraining order has been filed in common pleas court, and a temporary order has been granted by the court. The assessment has to do with the recent improvement of that thoroughfare, which is a part of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road.

EXPECT DOZEN BIDS ON NEW HIGHWAY JOB

Salineville-Summitville Work Attracts Contractors.

WILL ACT MONDAY

First Major Road Project to be Started This Year.

Bids for the surfacing of the Salineville-Summitville road will be received and opened by the county commissioners at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. It is expected that at least 12 proposals will be submitted, and as some of the largest contracting interests in the state have been inspecting the plans at the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, it is taken to mean that competition for this job will be keen.

This project is one of several included in the road improvement program approved by the county commissioners several years ago, and resulted in a bond issue of $950,000 being authorized for the county share of the program.

The Salineville-Summitville road is to be surfaced for a distance of 4.60 miles, the top being of concrete. The estimate for the project, should gravel be used as a course aggregate, has been placed at $121,058.82, and should limestone be used as an aggregate the estimate shows $125,527, and should slag be used as an aggregate, the estimate has been placed at $116,590.

It is not probable that the project will be awarded by the commissioners Monday, the rule being that the proposals lay over for one week after they have been tabulated.

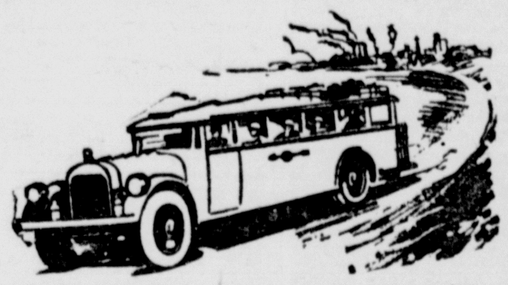

This will be the first of the major road projects to be put under construction this year, and should favorable weather prevail, it is believed the road will be completed within three months of actual work.

Bids for the surfacing of the Salem-Hanover road will be opened by the commissioners January 31, it was announced today.

ELKS CAPTURE OVERTIME DECISION FROM DAMASCUS HERE, 38-34

HIGH SCHOOL PASSERS DROP TWO CONTESTS TO SALEM SQUADS

Practically Clinch Loop's First Half Championship.

IN a sensational battle that went five minutes over time before a final decision was rendered, Bill Powell's Elks last night turned back the Damascus Quakers, their most dangerous rivals, and practically clinched their hold on the first half championship of the Columbiana County Amateur basketball league with two weeks' play remaining.

The game was fast from the first whistle to the last, faster than the Salem engagement here in which the noted "Red" Matticks and his mates bit the dust. Both teams were off in their shooting, especially their efforts from beneath the basket, due largely to the fact, doubtlessly, that guards on both teams were rushing and harrying the rival forwards every second of play. There were no "pose" shots. The ball did not tarry long in the finger tips of team marksmen. It came and was gone, from any and all angles and scoring, as a result, suffered to a certain extent.

The desperate battle waged by the visitors in the final half to overcome a 10-point lead held by the Elks at the half way mark and to tie the score at 32-32 when the whistle ended the engagement after 40-minutes of warfare, and then the thrilling rally by the Elks to sink two fouls and two field goals in the extra five minutes of play provided the top spots of the clash.

Practically all of the lodge players had a hand in the scoring, showing a well balanced attack against the Quakers, as contrasted with the offensive movements of the visitors, which were placed largely in the custody of Gilbert and Grice, the two forwards, with Center Oesch backing them up.

Grice played a brilliant game, especially under the basket, serving as an excellent foil for the performances of Center Wilde, of the Elks.

This pair battled through the game to a deadlock for field goal honors, each bucketing the leather seven times. In the matter of total points Grice had the advantage of three which he counted from seven foul chances while Wilde was unable to make the ball drop in four attempts from the free zone.

This, however, did not detract from his floor game. He was guard, center and forward, all in one, the key man in most of the offensive drives against the Quaker goal. On one occasion he brought the crowd to the edge of their seats with a lone handed dash with the ball from one end of the floor to the basket at the other end, there to deposit it neatly inside the ring.

The "pony express" crew Pusey and Wilson, were almost lost from sight at times when the bulking forms of the stalwart Damascus representatives towered above them in scrimmage, but they lost few opportunities to add a point or so when it was needed. McConville, Canne and Clark starred at the guard positions, Clarke substituting for Canne in last period. "Chuck" McConville was first to score at the beginning of the game and was the lead-off man in the overtime period when he dropped a foul to break the 32-32 deadlock. Damascus went into a 5-4 lead for a few minutes in the opening quarter but was trailing, 11-7 at the end of the period. The Elks found the basket in the second period for 14 more points and the reckoning was 25-15 at the half. The gap narrowed in the third period as the Quakers began to creep up, with the count 29-25, Elks, at the intermission. A rally enabled the visitors to erase the difference altogether and when the timer's whistle blew again, the score was knotted up. Grice sank a field goal in the extra period, but fouls by McConville and Pusey and field goals by Wilde and Pusey clinched the contest.

Wisconsin Swimmers Win.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—University of Wisconsin's swimming team defeated the University of Chicago tankers by the margin of one point in the dual meet at Bartlett gymnasium last night. The score was 35 to 34. The diving event, won by the Badgers, decided the close meet. The Maroons won the 150-yard relay event in 1:18, which ties the present conference record.

Movin' On

BURLEIGH GRIMES, recently traded to the Giants by the Dodgers in a four-cornered deal, will look odd in his new "uni." He wore a Brooklyn one for nine consecutive seasons.

GRIMES

Most folk know that, but may not know that the Detroit Tigers, always hard up for pitchers, owned him for seven days in 1913. Bought him from Otumwa, June 12, 1913, and sold him to Chattanooga, June 19.

He played with Chattanooga, Birmingham and Richmond clubs before the Pirates bought him Aug 8, 1916, from Birmingham. He remained with that club through 1917 campaign but his total five victories didn't impress Pirates bosses, who let him go to Brooklyn with Ward and Mamauz for Stengel, Cutshaw and some dough.

Six of his nine years with Brooklyn he was a winning hurler. Best years were 1920-21-24, when his won and lost records were 23-11, 22-13 and 22-13. During his major league career he has won a total of 163 games and lost 140. Won 12 and lost 13 last season.

WOLCOTT STOPS SHUFFLE IN 7TH

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Those lucky few who wagered odds that the Shuffle Callahan-Wolcott Langford fight would result in a knockout were around collecting their bets today.

Langford, pride of Chicago's black belt, had Callahan, Chicago Heights eight, so badly beaten in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout here last night that Referee Miller stopped the fight.

Callahan has a powerful right with which he has knocked out many careless fighters. But he has little or no defense, and a clever boxer who can keep away from his pile-driving swings always beats him. That is what Langford did.

RED AND WHITE QUINTET LANDS 31-17 DECISION

Miss Imbrie Stars as Girls Lose 30-15 Game to Rivals.

PLAYING one of the strongest teams that has represented Salem high in recent years, Coach N. F. Lorah's scholastic passers last night were defeated by the Red and White, 31 to 17, while the locals were losing to the Salem lassies 30 to 15.

Both Salem teams were "on" and played bang-up contests all the way through.

Forward Rush and Center Campbell led the attack for the Red quint, the former collecting six field goals and the latter four and four fouls.

The East Liverpool lads played their Salem foes to a standstill, as far as scoring is concerned, in the first period, when the count stood 4 to 4, but Rush, Campbell and their crowd definitely located the hoop in the second quarter and ran the tally up for 18 more points, the score standing 22 to 4 at the half.

The Blue and White added four more points in the third quarter while Salem was getting five and outscored the north county five, 9 to 4, in the concluding period. But that second quarter did the damage that could not be overdone.

English led the East Liverpool scorers with three field goals, McKeever collecting two.

A record crowd of approximately 1,500 fans jammed their way into the high school auditorium, the S. R. O. sign being hung out early.

Tonight the local lads are back on the home court, meeting Youngstown Chaney, a new opponent on the Blue and White schedule.

Miss Imbrie, East Liverpool forward, provided the thrills for Ceramic City fans in the preliminary between the girls' teams. Besides playing an excellent floor game, she starred as the chief team scorer with six field goals and one foul for a total of 13 points, all but two of the squad's entire score. Miss Corns contributed the other field goal.

The Salem sextet led, 8 to 3, at the end of the first quarter and widened the gap to 14-5 at the half. The locals outscored the home lassies in the third period when the tally stood 19 to 11, but lost out again in the concluding quarter when the Red and White piled up 11 more counters.

153 Aquatic Stars On Their Toes for Catalina Marathon

AVALON, CATALINA ISLND, Cal., Jan. 15.—Avalon, summery little metropolis of the sea-snatched isle of Santa Catalina, 21 miles out in the Pacific from the nearest point on the southern California coastline, was today temporary capital of the wide domain of Neptune.

The occasion was the gathering on the island of 153 swimmers of all ages, sizes and degrees of ability and from all parts of the United States and Canada to compete in the $40,000 Wrigley ocean marathon between Isthmus Cove, near here, and Pedro Point, Los Angeles harbor.

The race was expected to get under way at 11 a. m.

Sixteen of the contestants are women with such swimmers as Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmel, of Howard Beach, Long Island, N. Y.; Clarabelle Barrett, Pelham, N. Y., and Lottie Mayer of Chicago, Ills., given an edge over the rest of the feminine field and a good chance of finishing.

Norman Ross, entry from Casa Del Mar, Chicago, ruled a heavy favorite among the men entrants even though at the last minute he announced he would not don the usual coat of grease considered necessary to protect him against the numbing cold of the Catalina channel waters.

SALINEVILLE AT CHESTER

Wilde's Teams to Figure in Double Bill Tonight.

Coach Ray Wilde's Chester high school athletes, idle, with the exception of regular practice workouts, since their victory last week over Irondale, are set for their clash tonight with Salineville on the Chester court.

The two teams will put on a double header, with both the girls' and the boys' squads in action, the preliminary beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Salineville has been hitting a fast stride to date with victories over several good district teams and are expected to provide the West Virginians with plenty of opposition.

Ty and Tris Fired For Third League Ideas, Says Writer

Dropped From Organized Baseball Because They Were Accused of Having Negotiated With Promoters of Proposed New Major Loop.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times, in a copyrighted article today says:

"Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were dropped from organized baseball because they were accused of negotiating with promoters of a proposed third league to rival the American and National leagues.

"When a high American league official was quoted in the Times yesterday as saying Cobb and Speaker would never again appear in the American league he added, 'the half has never yet been told.'

"Well, here is the other half.

"Cobb and Speaker were dropped from organized baseball, not because they were accused of having made a bet on a ball game back in 1919, but because they are suspected of having flirted with eastern promoters with the idea of forming a third league to run in opposition to the American and National leagues.

"The incident of 1919 was merely a subterfuge. That Commissioner Landis does not consider matters that happened back before he took office as significant today is indicated by the fact that immediately after he dipped his brush in whitewash and cleansed the players accused of having thrown games in 1919, he immediately recommended to the rules committee of the majors a statute of limitations. He recommends that incidents happening prior to the time he took office in 1920 be outlawed.

"I have it on the best authority that more than a year ago it was charged that both Cobb and Speaker did confer with the men who were trying to establish a league to rival the American and National.

"It is understood that it was proposed that each of these stars should lead a team in the new circuit.

"Ty Cobb himself seems to verify this suspicion. He told the writer that he knew he was slated to go more than a year ago and that only the testimonial banquet given him in Detroit, when he was lauded to the skies, saved him for the time being.

"This new information doubtless will explain why both Landis and Johnson have been so reticent regarding the status of Cobb and Speaker. They have tried, doubtless, to suppress the real reason for the dismissal of the two foremost players fearing that it might lend encouragement to prospective rivals of the major leagues.

"When correspondents wrote to Cobb, immediately after his withdrawal from the Tigers, and suggested that he and Speaker head a movement for a third league, Ty told this writer that he would not consider it.

"'It would take too much money,' he said, 'and it is not practical.'

"That remark alone would indicate that he had studied the situation and knew what he was talking about.

"The alleged acts of Ty and Tris that brought about their banishment took place early in 1926 or late in 1925."

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 15.—Although Tris Speaker referred all interviewers to his attorney, William H. Boyd and the latter said "It's all news to me," local baseball fans seized on the report from Detroit that Speaker and Cobb had been fired from baseball for flirting with a third league as being more than gossip.

During the period between the end of last season and Speaker's retirement, they point out, local newspapers carried many hints of the possibilities of a third circuit. Speaker's name was mentioned prominently in connection with these reports.

Iowa Hopes Dimmed.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Jan. 15.—Iowa's hopes for a basketball championship this year were given a setback last night when the Michigan Wolverines broke through the Hawk defense to a 41-22 win in the first conference game played in Iowa's new field house.

The new building was dedicated before the game by Gov. Hammil.

Harrigan and Petrie shared the high scoring honors of the game with five field goals apiece while McConnell, all-conference guard last year, led the scoring for Iowa with seven points.

ORANGE QUINT VICTORS, 24-11

Defeat Carrollton Five; Play Mingo Tonight.

Wellsville high school passers triumphed over Carrollton's scholastic five last night at Wellsville, 24 to 11, leading the visiting cagers all the way.

The Orange and Black squad held Carrollton to four points during the entire first half while running up a score of 15 themselves. The Klinck five continued to outscore the opposition in the last half.

Calhoun and Snowden were the chief point makers for Wellsville, the former collecting three field goals and the latter four.

Tonight the two Mingo Junction squads, boys' and girls,' will be in action on the Wellsville court.

SAFETY, ECONOMY—

in this anti-freeze that 8,000,000 motorists used last winter

COLDER WEATHER COMING!

The U. S. Weather Bureau predicts a drop in temperature for this locality. Be sure today to put Pyro Denatured Alcohol in your car.

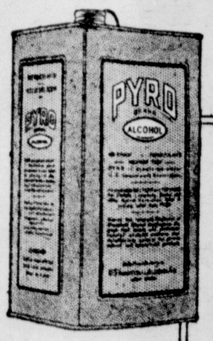

NO matter how cold it gets, there's an easy way to protect your car. Put Pyro Denatured Alcohol in your radiator, today.

You can't buy equal safety cheaper—you can't buy greater safety at any price. The Pyro Proportion Chart shows how much Pyro is needed to give you complete protection at any temperature. Ask the garage man for your copy.

Pyro Denatured Alcohol is the best anti-freeze for any make of car. No fear of rotting hose connections or corroding metal parts. 40% of all motorists in the United States last winter used Pyro.

Almost every garage and filling station handles Pyro. Stop and get some today. See that the garage man takes it from the blue-labeled drum bearing the Pyro name. After the first filling all you have to do is to add a little Pyro and water from time to time to take care of the natural evaporation. Take home a gallon can of Pyro for this purpose.

A Pyro-Meter tells you in an instant whether you have enough Pyro in your radiator. If your garage cannot supply one send us $1.00 and we will mail it promptly. U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., 110 E. 42nd Street, New York

Also in convenient gallon cans. Keep a can of Pyro in your garage

Pyro Denatured Alcohol is sold in bulk from drums bearing the blue Pyro label

LOAN COMPANY HOLDS MEETING

Officers and Directors Elected at Annual Session Here.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hancock County Building and Loan association held this week in the First National bank building, the following directors were elected: W. C. Lynch, Fred B. Lawrence, Robert R. Hobbs, Thomas R. Timothy, J. C. Cunningham, George E Conkle, E. V. Wehner, Robert A. Douglass, Frank Finley, A. L. Skinner, W. W. Thompson, John E. Newell, Perry L. Rigby, J. S. D. Mercer, W. W. Ingram and Austin Stewart. The latter was named to succeed his brother, the late Thomas Stewart. Ingram is a new member of the board.

The directors organized and elected the following officers: President, John E. Newell; first vice president, A. L. Skinner; second vice president, Frank Finley; secretary-treasurer, Robert A. Douglass; assistant treasurer, Harry Hobbs; assistant secretary, Ady L. Webber; attorney, W. W. Ingram.

The company now has assets of $3,711,272.84. During the past year dividends to share holders amounted to $170,307.59, and an extra dividend of one-fourth per cent was paid for the last six months, making a total of six and one-half per cent for the year.

24 FIRE DEATHS DURING DECEMBER

State Fire Marshal C. L. Topping reports 24 people fatally burned last month, a larger number than for any other month in the five years he has been directing the department and probably a record monthly fire mortality since the department's institution. In November 19 deaths were recorded and that set a near high record up to that time.

Fifteen of the December casualties are charged to unscreened open fires. The victims last month were mostly children whose clothing ignited from homef ires which they approached too closely. Eleven of the 15 are dead, one is still living and there is hope for the recovery of another. Two others were very seriously burned.

The palm for lowered fire waste in West Virginia in 1926 will go to Huntington, it is stated by Mr. Topping. The Cabell city's percentage decrease will be much greater than for other communities in its class and doubtless will exceed the reduction per cent of any city or town in the state.

Huntington's fire losses in 1926 totaled $188,459, a reduction of $715,599 from the total of $904,058 in 1925. The abnormal loss in 1925 was due to a series of serious fires, one of them the burning of the Zenner-Bradshaw department store.

More than 50 agricultural and home demonstration agents opened their annual conference at the university agricultural extension division headquarters today.

The day's program was brought to a close tonight at a "brass tacks" banquet.

SERMON GIVEN BY EVANGELIST

Rev. C. E. Rostofer Talks on "Baptism" in Christian Church.

Rev. C. E. Rostofer, of Ashtabula, O., who is conducting revival meetings in the First Christian church, had as his subject last night, "Christian Baptism."

He spoke in part as follows: "Baptism should be thought of and received in the same spirit in which we approach prayer and the Lord's supper. We must not over emphasize or undervalue it in the plan of salvation. Baptism is the consumation of the process by which men and women become disciples of Christ According to the new testament teaching when penitent believers were baptized they put on Christ, were baptized in his name and then wore his name. No one is called a christian in the new testament until after the ordinance of baptism was observed."

"I am not exalting baptism above faith and repentence, for without true vital faith and repentence baptism is an empty ceremony. God has provided three great changes in the process of becoming a christian; the change of heart, change of life and change of state or relationship. He has also provided three agencies to produce these changes. Faith is provided to effect a change of heart which involves the intellect, affections and emotions. Repentence changes the life and baptism changes the state of or relationship to God."

Rev. Rostofer will have as his subject tomorrow morning, "The New Man," while in the evening he will speak on the topic, "The Church Glorious." Bible school and the Young People's society will meet at the usual hours.

Special music will be given at the evening services by the Shingleton sisters under the direction of C. C. Woods.

DUNDEE WINS FROM ROBERTS

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—For forty breathless minutes last night the immortal Stanley Ketchel lived again in the flesh and blood and fighting heart of a young Italian from Baltimore, who, hit on the jowl in the first few minutes of the fourth round by Eddie Roberts in San Francisco, came back even as Ketchell did against Billy Parke, and in getting the decision at the end of ten rounds, showed that he had about everything except the ability to swallow an ivory cue ball.

First of all, he was as tough as an old suspender and proved it in the fourth round when Roberts crossed the dreaded right that ended matters so abruptly in their first fight. It almost was a repetition of the San Francisco disaster, for Dundee forsook the perpendicular for a long count and then weaved his way to the welcome bell.

This was Robert's big chance and he gave it a Snodgrass, muffing the play badly, although he had upward of two minutes in which to finish a man who didn't know whether he was in a fight or a frolic.

Second, Dundee had speed and he used it all the way to left hand the other gent silly. Third, he was ring-smart and always was one jump ahead of the game, barring that slight misunderstanding in the fourth round.

Dundee Forces Fight.

Finally, he could punch and Roberts knew it full well before the end of the tenth round. For Joseph boldly went to the attack whenever possible, which was often, and only the bell saved Roberts from a knockout in the tenth.

In all the writer gave Dundee seven rounds, called two for Roberts and another was a stand-off.

The recapitulation sounds the part of an easy victory for Dundee but if you think that way, you wrong me deeply. It was one of the greatest fights the town has known in years and there wasn't a moment when Roberts didn't have a white man's chance.

The boy is a puncher, sure enough, and he can block very neatly with his chin without visible annoyance. His legs have the slightly convex trend of the true hitter and the gent has real speed, particularly that right. But he can't accept them with any degree of equanimity in the body and it was Dundee's punching below that pared Robert's speed down to a saunter in the late rounds.

The first three went to Dundee without particular incident, barring the fact that Roberts scored with an overhead right near the end of the third, giving due warning of what was to come.

Dundee is Floored.

It came early in the fourth. Roberts led with a left and, as Dundee headslipped the punch, the Coast entry followed through with a right cross. It was the same punch that knocked Joseph into the right field stands at the first fight and Joseph tendered it exactly the same reception. He flopped like a stuck balloon, arms outflung and head canted back on the canvass at a sickening angle.

But Dundee was in there to win this fight and no man ever won on the floor. So he got up and, goofy as he was, he managed to slip another right lead and hold on. Right after the break, Roberts scored with a right and left and then followed in to finish it but, somehow, he had punched himself out and toward the end of the round Dundee was fighting back so well that he hooked Roberts back on his heels with a left. So much for Roberts, at least at this stage of his development. A first class fighter couldn't have missed in this round. The rest, with the exception of one round, was all Dundee for he became progressively stronger as Roberts became weaker and it was a good bet that the latter wouldn't have lasted much beyond the tenth.

However, no sprinter ever scored a victory at 101 yards and since last night's fight only was scheduled to go ten rounds, they paid off at that point. And while they were about it, they were forced to concede that this young man, having rocked Dundee with rights in the seventh, eighth and tenth, was just as dangerous then as he was in the first.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Now go to the opposite extreme in holding the head still—and we find it in the putting stroke. And what head-moving does to the ball in putting serves as a fine example why the head should be held fixed when making the swing for the long shots. The first precaution in putting is to keep the head absolutely still, for the least movement of the head lets the body move with it—the head is heavy—and the putt will invariably show the result of it. To keep the head still during the stroking of the ball for the putt is more difficult than the player might suspect. To accomplish it I like a rather wide stance for the putt—not very wide, but enough spread of the feet to thoroughly anchor the body. It is well to add to this a push against the left foot during the address. This will have a tendency to hold the body weight back and keep it still while the blade is swung. Then all you have to do is see the blade go through the ball. Time will teach you, too, to avoid being in too great a hurry to look up and see the ball go.
